Hometown Pours Heart Out To Sharon

people. "It was very festive and a true celebration of Sharon."

One of the many highlights of the event included the attendance of Wauwatose Fire Captain William Grimord, who initiated the fund for Swatek, along with his wife. Capt. Grimord joined family members in thanking people for their enthusiastic support of Swatek, a member of the Quincy High School Class of 1976, and her family.

The surprise of the night came from Denise Gavin, a former classmate of Swatek's at Johnson and Wales College in Rhode Island, who presented two full scholarships for Al and Kelly Swatek on behalf of the college.

"It was a sight to behold," said DiPietro, who heads to Milwaukee this week along with Quincy Firefighter Mark Paolucci, Sharon's brother, to present $70,000 in local donations to the main fund as well as participate in a golf tournament fundraiser. "There has been such a tremendous outpouring of support from people in the community."

As a special thank you to guests, Swatek sent a family photo to the benefit at St. Joseph's. The picture showed the two prosthetic arms recently fitted on Swatek, a detail which seemed lost in the photo amidst the smiles of the Swatek family.

It will be several months before Swatek can be fitted for prosthetic legs, which cost an estimated $70,000 apiece.

DiPietro said his niece was in good spirits despite the long rehabilitation process, which has included a setback involving the loss of her knees, which doctors had been trying to save for the past six months.

"She's still upbeat," DiPietro said. "She wants this to be over so she can get back to her life."

Swatek, 42, is the daughter of Mrs. Rosalie (Kyler) Paolucci of Sumner St., Quincy Point, and the late Albert Paolucci of the Quincy Fire Department.

Donations are still being accepted for the Swatek fund and there are additional fundraisers planned, including a Craft Fair Saturday, Sept. 22 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, Washington St., and a golf tournament Oct. 5 at Presidents' Golf Course.

More than $130,000 has already been raised to benefit the Swatek family.

Those wishing to help may send their donations to: Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund, c/o Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 380 Washington St., Quincy, MA, 02169.

DENISE GAVIN, Sharon Swatek's roommate at Johnson & Wales College, announced the college is presenting two full scholarships to Sharon's children, Kelly, 9, and Al, 11. With her holding the awards is Capt. William Grimord of the Wauwatose Fire Department in Wisconsin of which Sharon's husband, Lon Swatek, is a member. Grimord is heading up fundraising events in that area. At left is Neil Gavin.

AMONG THOSE ATTENDING the benefit were, from the left, Fr. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Church, Bill Lewis, Joanne DeCristofaro, and (seated) Ann Lewis.

AN ESTIMATED 600 people attended the benefit Saturday for Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek, raising a total of $50,000.

Boating Skills And Seamanship Course To Begin Sept. 9

Quincy residents are invited to participate in a Boating Skills and Seamanship course offered by Flotilla 1204 of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary.

The 13-lesson course is directed to the first-time boater and as a review for the more experienced boater.

Subjects to be covered include boat construction, boat handling, safety and legal requirements, navigation rules, aids to navigation, piloting, marine engines, marlinespike, weather, radiotelephone, and trailering.

The first course will be held Sunday mornings from 9:30 to 11:30, beginning Sept. 9 at the Metropolitan Yacht Club, 39 Vinedale Road, Braintree. Class registration is from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. prior to the first class.

The second course will be held Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m., beginning Sept. 27 at the Weymouth

High School, 1051 Commercial Way, Weymouth. Registration will be held prior to the first class.

There is a $40 course fee to cover the cost of materials. Pre-registration is suggested due to the limited classroom space.

For more information contact L. William Fuller, Jr., public education officer, at 781-848-2906.

Seniors' Bingo At HN Community Center

BFDS To Offer Computer Classes At Thomas Crane Public Library

Boston Financial Data Services (BFDS) will offer a variety of computer classes at the Thomas Crane Public Library computer lab this fall.

"Conducting Searches on the Internet" is an introductory class that will demonstrate the basics of using an Internet browser and show how to quickly locate information on the World Wide Web.

In "Creating and Saving Letters in Microsoft Word," students will be shown how to create, save, format, and print documents on a word processor.

Four additional workshops will cover IRAs, the Options/Derivatives Market, the importance of investing, and understanding financial markets.

Each class will be repeated several times.

To register, call the library's Reference Desk at (617) 376-1316.

Atlantic Studios Dancers Perform At Chinatown's 2001 Festival

Quincy residents Siné Callanan and Nicole Chan and Milton resident Lauren Tilton, all high school students, recently performed extensive dances at the annual Chinatown Festival in downtown Boston.

All are advanced students having studied for over 10 years at Atlantic Studios of Dance Education in North Quincy and East Milton. In addition, Callanan and Chan have successfully auditioned for and performed in Jose Matteo's Ballet Theatre of Boston "Nutcracker" for several seasons. The festival has given these dedicated students a valuable opportunity to demonstrate their own style and choreography while gaining confidence and poise.

Atlantic Studios of Dance, entering its 22nd year, is accepting registrations for the 2001-2002 season, which begins the third week of September.

Open House and formal registration will be held Monday, Aug. 27 at the North Quincy studio (Evangelical Church of Atlantic, 65 Newbury Ave.) and Tuesday, Aug. 28 at the East Milton studio (East Congregational Church, 610 Adams St.).

Hours for both nights are 5:30 to 7:45 p.m. Fittings for dancewear may be taken at this time as well.

To enroll your child at any time in the toddler, preschool, ballet, tap, jazz and creative combination classes, call the studio at 617-698-2881.

Director/teacher Julie Moffatt, a 1974 Wheelock

College graduate with a degree in early childhood education, has been an active member of the Dance Teachers' Club of Boston for 23 years and is currently serving her fifth term as Membership Examining Chair for the organization, where she has served in several other capacities. In addition, she is also an active member of Dance Masters of America.

Both clubs require examination for membership and offer student workshop sessions during the academic year.

After 19 Years

LaRaia Bowing Out Of Summer Concert Series

Joseph LaRaia is bowing out after 19 years as coordinator of the summer concert series at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre.

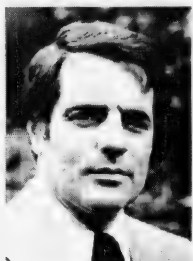

LaRaia will turn the reigns over to the city when this season ends Aug. 29, he said.

LaRaia said he indicated to Mayor James Sheets and Rhonda Merrill, city director of events and tourism, earlier this year that he would be stepping down.

At the start of this year's season he also said in an interview on Quincy Access Cable that this would probably be his last year.

LaRaia started the concert series outside City Hall in 1983 and transferred it to the amphitheatre two years later.

He authorized the construction of the amphitheatre while mayor in 1976 and coordinated its completion — after a delay — in October, 1983.

Award-winning Quincy born actress Ruth Gordon, for whom the amphitheatre is named, came home to participate in its dedication Nov. 10, 1984.

It was her last visit home. She had planned to return to perform on the stage of the amphitheatre but it was not to be. She died in 1985 at age 88 at her summer home on Martha's Vineyard.

"I wish to thank the many people who came forward over the years to allow the program to continue without interruption for 19 years," LaRaia said.

"The support of Mayor Sheets went a long way to keep the program going."

The final season concert Aug. 29 will feature The Continentals in a big band concert.

LaRaia said at season's end $1,000 will be donated to the Stephen Owen Kenney Scholarship Fund. Stephen died last year at age 8.

He was the grandson of Carol and Own Trainor. The latter was the architect who designed the amphitheatre during LaRaia's administration as mayor.

CRIME WATCH SIGNS were recently installed in Germantown as part of an ongoing Crime Watch Program, representing a collaboration among Quincy Police Sgt. Brian Tobin of Community Policing, Quincy Housing Authority Drug Elimination Coordinator Kathy Ross, and Roy Pettinelli of the city's Traffic and Parking Department. Anyone interested in participating should contact Quincy Police Sub-station at QHA Support Services, 26 Figurehead Lane at (617) 479-7151.

Kickoff Event Saturday For Norfolk County Democratic League

Two Quincy residents, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 2 Democratic Chairwoman Susan Connolly, are heading the drive to gather support for the newly-formed Norfolk County Democratic League.

The two have organized a kickoff event for the new league to be held Saturday, rain or shine, from noon to 4 p.m. at the Norwood Lodge of Elks, which is located on Elkway off of Walnut Ave. off of Washington St.

"Our organization will be modeled after the Plymouth County Democratic League that has demonstrated for years how effective local grass roots organizing can be for our party," said Connolly, who is a close friend of John Walsh, the executive director of the Plymouth Democrats. "We have the support of the Massachusetts State Democratic Party and organized labor."

The cookout is being held free of charge through the generous sponsorship of numerous elected officials who represent Norfolk County as well as organized labor. Indoor and outdoor facilities are available.

Some of the planned activities include a cookout, a moonwalk, a dunk "Dubya" tank manned by Massachusetts Young Democrats, and a softball challenge from the Plymouth County Democratic League as well as "lots of Democratic politics."

"Some of the goals of the League will include grass roots organizing, a voter history project for Norfolk County, 'Get out the Vote' drives, post-primary unity rallies, and targeted Democratic victories in all executive, legislative, county, and local offices," said McDermott. "We hope to provide a forum for all Democrats in Norfolk County in order to strengthen the party locally and statewide."

To be included on the Norfolk County Democratic League email database, send an email to PMNERCA@aol.com.

Seawall Project Still On Track For Spring 2002

A $4.5 million MDC project to repair a portion of the Wollaston Beach seawall in the Rice Rd. area is still scheduled to begin in the spring of 2002 following a productive meeting Monday between the MDC and the state's Coastal Zone Management, which had voiced concerns over the project.

"It was a very positive meeting," said Paul DiPietro, Water Resources Section Head for the MDC's Engineering Division. "Hopefully, these issues (raised at the meeting) will be addressed in the final design and we can start in early spring."

The "issues" referred to by DiPietro included the relocation of an access ramp, the "slight tapering" of the stone revetment to blend in with the existing sand and dune system, and a slightly steeper and slightly more exposed stone protection in front of the new seawall.

After discussion, a suggestion to shift parts of the project closer to the sidewalk along Quincy Shore Drive was rejected because of its proximity to an MWRA "force main" which services the Squantum neighborhood.

A spring construction date came as welcome news to Doug Gutro, who as a member of the Wollaston

Beach Task Force has been monitoring the situation closely.

Gutro said that he was "relieved" any possible obstacles to construction had been resolved and that he was "looking forward to seeing the actual work done."

Deadline for public comments on the seawall restoration project is Tuesday, Aug. 28. File number for the project is 12560 and residents should send their comments to: William Gage, Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act (MEPA) Office, 251 Causeway St., 9th Floor, Boston, MA 02114.

Dear Neighbors:

Please consider my application for the position of your City Councilor. I believe I am well qualified to assume the many and varied responsibilities of the position, and well prepared to perform the required duties in an excellent manner. I have enclosed my resume for you to review at your convenience

Individual issues come and go, but the fundamental challenge to any City Councilor is oversight of the efficient and effective application of public funds (your money) for legitimate public purposes. He or she must balance your needs for public services with your willingness to pay property taxes.

Over the past several years, our property taxes have increased substantially (far above the inflation rate) while the condition of the public roads has declined markedly. At the same time, tens of millions of your money and property have been transferred to private entities (Quarry Hills, the shipyard, Squantum Gardens). It all adds up to poor oversight of your municipal government.

I will be mailing each of you a detailed explanation of my observations and plans. I believe I can do better. I promise to do my best!

Sincerely,

Patrick

Answer Awaited: Rooming House Or Two Separate Apartments?

LaRaia explained further that he had expected a "group inspection" by members of the License Board, who took up the issue Aug. 7 following a complaint given to License Board Chairman and City Clerk Joseph Shea. What he got instead, LaRaia said, was a "team inspection" Aug. 17 by the various departments at 10 a.m., two hours before he received a certified letter from Senior Building Inspector James Anderson asking to set up a date for the inspection.

"There were eight or nine people there, essentially dissecting the place," LaRaia said. "It was illegal because there was no notice."

As for the property itself, LaRaia reiterated his position that the building, in which six people rent rooms, was a two-family home "which is 100 years old" and common in the Quincy Point neighborhood. Complaints of an illegal rooming house, he claimed, were motivated by his current role as an assessor for the city.

LaRaia said he has been in contact with his attorney and is ready to contest charges of an illegal rooming house should the License Board make such a decision.

He added that recent work done at the site was "simple repair work" and not construction work in need of a permit.

White, a member of the License Board who emphasized that he did not personally attend the meeting in which the matter was discussed, responded that the city makes no distinction between "group" or "team" inspections and that it was "common practice" for the License Board to send qualified experts to conduct inspections.

As for the legality of the inspection, White said certified letters were not required for inspections but had been sent in this instance because LaRaia had refused an inspection earlier in the week.

White added that, had LaRaia felt the inspection illegal, he could have refused entry again, which he did not.

The city defines a rooming house as a building with four or more unrelated persons living in separate, secured rooms.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

DENTURE MAINTENANCE

If you wear dentures, you idly. This would make future have as much reason to continue visiting the dentist as If you have questions about when you had all your natural teeth. After some, or all, of your teeth are removed, there is less support for facial muscles. The gums are also likely to change. If, and when, these things happen, your dentures may not fit properly and could cause discomfort. By visiting the dentist regularly, dentures can be kept fitting properly. Although there are over-the-counter products available for relining and repairing dentures, this is a project best left to the dentist. Improperly relined or repaired dentures exert pressure on the jaw, which could cause the jawbone to shrink more rapidly. This would make future fittings all the more difficult. If you have questions about your dentures, we invite you to call our office. We want to provide you and your family with the best dental care possible in a comfortable, professional environment. Prevention - brushing, flossing and regular professional cleanings and checkups - is still the best road to dental health. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. ## Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Clam Stuffed Artichokes

Sometimes all I need is a near cool day and I head for the stove in place of the grill.

This particular day, I made stuffed artichokes with fresh minced clams...and they got raves!

STUFFED ARTICHOKE

6 artichokes (or more or less if you like)
 3 slices of bread (soaked in water)
 1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs about 6 ounces of fresh minced clams (canned can be used, but fresh is better)
 3 tablespoons tomato sauce
 1/4 cup grated cheese (any kind) 1 teaspoon basil salt and pepper to taste stems of the artichokes (cut up after boiling in small pieces (optional)) 2 tablespoons olive oil some extra sauce for the bottom of pan

Place the artichokes in a large pan, cover and boil until they are a darker green in color (about 10 minutes)

While they are boiling, soak and squeeze the bread. Place in a bowl and add all the other ingredients except the oil. Blend until mixture is the consistency of mashed potatoes.

Cool the artichokes, clip the sharp edges off the tops of the leaves with a scissors, and after removing the stems, they should sit well in a baking pan. Open the top of each artichoke and place the stuffing. I usually place the stuffing in each layer of the leaves and tighten.

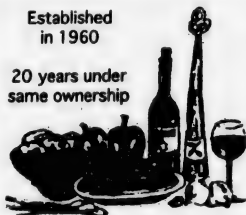

In a baking pan, put a cup of water and some tomato sauce. Arrange the artichokes side by side. On top of each, sprinkle a bit of the olive oil.

Cover and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 45 minutes (or until leaves are tender). You can also cook on the top of the stove well covered for about the same amount of time.

When served, they can either be cut in halves or enjoyed as a whole. Better have something on the table to put all those eaten leaves!

Mariano To Seek Re-Election To School Committee

Ronald Mariano announces he will seek reelection to a fourth term to the School Committee.

A former Quincy schoolteacher for 12 years, he has a Masters Degree in Education and a degree in Business Administration and currently serves as a state representative.

"I am extremely proud of the many good things that my colleagues and I have accomplished," said Mariano. "We have maintained a class size in our school-rooms that is the envy of all the surrounding communities."

"The school building plan that was approved by the School Committee is well on its way to being completed. We have seen the reopening of the Wolaston School, the expansion and reopening of the Beechwood Knoll School, additions constructed on the Bernazzani and Parker Schools, as well as the new construction of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center and the Marshall School, and finally the total renovation of the Point Webster Middle School."

"We are now in the process of building a new Quincy High School and we will continue our plan to upgrade our children's facilities throughout the city."

Mariano, who also serves as state representative for the Third Norfolk district, said his experience on the school committee and as a state representative is extremely valuable to the residents of Quincy.

"The perspective that I bring to the committee as a state representative is unique. It allows me to understand the problems in the implementation of the state laws and to serve as an agent of change at the state level. I have worked hard to change the bilingual education laws and the special education laws as a result of the problems we face in Quincy. My position as a school committeeman and state representative has allowed me to move quickly and have our building plan included in a state budget amendment that allowed for a 90 percent state reimbursement for new school buildings."

RONALD MARIANO

Mariano stressed his contribution to the development of the Alternative Learning Center as an attempt to remove disruptive students from regular education classrooms. He also stressed his efforts in developing a truancy and tardy policy that was acceptable to all factions of the educational community. Mariano restated his commitment to work with the two new athletic directors to bring back middle school sports.

Mariano, who did not vote for the Education Reform law as a representative, has been critical of using the MCAS test as the sole criteria for graduation.

"The education reform law has come to an end and MCAS is staring our students in the face. The Quincy public school system under the direction of the school committee is committed to providing all of our students with the tools needed to pass this test."

"Although I do not believe that the MCAS should be the only criteria for graduation, we must prepare our students for the reality that is now the standard."

"When I was first elected, the school committee faced a number of difficult decisions. Revenues were declining and difficult choices had to be made about programs and staffing in our system. I am proud of the fact that we managed to reduce the budget without layoffs or without eliminating programs. This experience is an invaluable asset to the taxpayers of Quincy."

Mariano currently coaches middle school boys' basketball in the Presidents Youth Basketball Program.

"My commitment to the youth of Quincy began in the early 70's and continues today through my service on the School Committee and through my coaching. I would like to continue serving the students, parents, and taxpayers as a member of the Quincy School Committee."

Cain Says Seniors, Retirees Must Be A Priority

Ward 3 city councillor candidate John Cain, said that after meeting throughout the precincts with seniors and retirees, he is convinced that they remain to be "one of our highest priorities."

Cain said he plans to participate in improving the flow of information important to our seniors and retirees.

"There are, for example, several prescription options available, that might help our seniors and retirees save money," Cain said. "There is also Medicare information about many different services for seniors and retirees, that should be distributed more efficiently, so that it can be of a benefit to Ward 3 seniors and retirees.

Cain said he also plans to introduce information for seniors and retirees through local cable TV, a monthly newsletter, his website, local radio and newspapers.

Cain said he has met with Tom Clasby, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, and plans to work with him to benefit seniors and retirees. Cain said he also plans to continue to work with the state and federal agencies, and keep up-to-date with any new changes, and report them to residents.

Quincy Adult Education Receives $4,500 Grant From Verizon

Quincy Public Schools Adult and Continuing Education announces it has received a $4,500 grant from the Verizon Foundation, the separate charitable institution of Verizon Communications.

The grant will be used to provide scholarships to financially needy students to take technical, trade, business, or basic adult education courses from Quincy Adult Education.

"We are extremely grateful to the Verizon Foundation for their generosity," said Segalla. "This scholarship will enable many students who might not be able to afford to train for new careers or get their basic education the chance to take these courses. That can make a real difference in their lives."

The programs that Quincy Adult and Continuing Education offer, including GED, English as a Second Language, and computer courses are an ideal fit with the goals of the Verizon Foundation grants: increasing literacy and closing the "digital divide." The "digital divide" is a particular interest of the Foundation.

"Some people have better access to technology than others," said Noble. "Sometimes it's regional -- there might not be somewhere to access technology. Sometimes it's economic -- people can't always afford computers or online access. And sometimes it's generational. We've been working with senior citizens groups to train more seniors."

The Verizon Foundation annually awards about three to four million dollars statewide. Quincy schools have received well over $100,000 in grants in the last few years.

"It's about giving back to the communities where we do business," said Noble. "It sounds corny, but it's important to us at Verizon to be a good neighbor."

The grant is available as scholarships for courses at Quincy Adult Education. Applications are available at the Quincy Public Schools Adult Education office at the Center for Technical Education, 107 Woodward Ave., Quincy.

Patrick Conroy Candidate For Ward 6 Councillor

Patrick Conroy, of 272 Billings St., North Quincy, is a candidate for Ward 6 City Councillor.

A 1975 graduate of North Quincy High School with degrees from U-Mass Amherst, U-Mass Boston, and Babson College, Conroy is the president of New England Prostate Services, Inc., and is a per diem emergency nurse at both Quincy and Boston Medical Centers.

"I plan to approach the campaign as a job interview," he said in making his announcement. "I see the position of ward councillor as one that requires relentless and passionate advocacy for the public interest and I believe my unique combination of experience, education, and skills qualifies me to excel as city councillor."

"The focus of local government should be public health, public safety, public education, and public property. Over the past few years, we have seen tens of millions of public money and public property transferred to private interests. While we hear that there is no money available to keep the streets and sidewalks repaired, we see the taxpayers' money going to a pri-ivate golf course, a private shipyard, and other private entities. The city council must exercise oversight of the city's finances, and I will insist that it does."

During the 1980's, Conroy was a public school teacher in Braintree and taught accounting at Quincy Junior College. He said he has maintained a strong interest in public education, and is an independent member of the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

"We are about to spend $100 million on new schools," said Conroy, "and I have seen no indication that there is a clear plan to spend your money either efficiently or effectively."

"While an adequate physical plant is necessary, I believe the most important influences on a child's in-school education are the interaction between the teacher and the student, and the time spent on learning tasks."

Conroy vowed to "take personal responsibility for the taxpayer funds appropriated for public education."

"The roads in North Quincy are deplorable, and East Squantum St. is crumbling and my first order of business will be a complete inventory of planned and needed infrastructure repairs," Conroy said. "My second order of business will be a repair plan with a firm schedule. There will be no more 'You're on the list.'"

Conroy is an Emergency Triage Officer with the U.S. Army Reserve, Nurse Corps. He is committed to maintaining the availability of an acute care hospital at Quincy Medical Center.

The unions endorsing him are: United Auto Workers, Massachusetts Chapter; Eastern MA Bricklayers; Local 33, roofers; Local Union 424, carpenters; Local 2222 IBEW, Verizon; Local 7, iron workers; and Local 103 IBEW, electricians.

"I am grateful for the growing support I have received throughout this campaign, especially the support from working families," said Gutro. "These seven organizations represent hundreds, if not thousands of people who live and work in the Quincy area. I am looking forward to serving as a reliable voice on the many issues which are important to working families throughout the city."

In July, Gutro received the endorsement of the Norfolk County Labor Council comprising 42 unions.

Preliminary elections are set for Sept. 11.

New Toddler Playground For QCAP Head Start

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc.'s (QCAP) Head Start Program was joined by Mayor James Sheets and members of the Celata family at a recent ribbon cutting ceremony to dedicate a new playground at the Germantown Early Childhood Center, 9 Bicknell St.

The playground was made possible with financial support from the Federal Department of Health and Human Services' Administration for Children and Families, the Quincy Community Partnerships for Children Council, and through the generosity of family and friends of the late Joseph "Joe" and Jane Celata.

In addition, QCAP officials said, the project could not have been completed without the support and assistance of the staff from the Quincy Housing Authority and the city's Park and Forestry Departments.

QCAP dedicated the playground as a memorial to Joe and Jane Celata for their lifelong devotion to improving the quality of life for children and families, especially those in the Germantown community.

The Celatas were born in Boston and lived in Milton during their adult lives, with Jane Celata summing in Houghs Neck during her youth.

The two were praised as "unsung heroes" in the Quincy community, adopting families from QCAP's Head Start Program each holiday season and involving Putnam Investments in the Head Start Program through the efforts of daughter Caroline.

Joseph Celata played hockey for the Boston College Eagles in the 1950's, earning the Bean Pot MVP award in 1957. He was inducted into the BC Hockey Hall of Fame in recognition of his outstanding hockey career.

QCAP's Germantown Early Childhood Center provides a comprehensive full-day/full-year early care and education program for 36 toddler and preschool-aged children and their families. QCAP's Head Start Program serves 332 children annually who live in Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hull, and Milton.

90 QHS Students Receive Science Awards

Ninety students were awarded certificates of recognition for their performance in science class this year at a recent ceremony at Quincy High School.

Students were recognized by their teachers as a result of their achievement and diligence. They were named Science Honor Students for the year.

Four students were presented trophies for maintaining the highest average in the highest level first-year courses. They are:

Samantha Amodeo, biology; Priscilla Chan, chemistry; Mathew Germain, earth science; and Piro Lera, physics.

Advanced Placement Book Awards were presented to Priscilla Chan for A.P. Environmental Studies and to Christine Bidan Huang for A.P. Physics 2. Chan was also the winner of the 2001 Quincy High School Annual Science and Technology Challenge.

The Arnold A. Rubin Scientific American Award was presented to Hankun Huang and Kristen Jones. The award is presented to an outstanding junior who displays interest and ability in chemistry. For the first time there was a tie resulting in two winners. Each student will receive a year subscription to the Scientific American Magazine thanks to the generosity of Arnold Rubin, a distinguished, retired Quincy Public Schools chemistry teacher and administrator.

Patrick DelVal was the recipient of the Robert Burns Woodward Award. The award is presented annually by the Friends of Quincy High School and Alumni Association to the senior maintaining the highest average for four years of science at Quincy High School. The award is named for the winner of the 1965 Nobel Prize in chemistry, Robert Burns Woodward, a graduate of Quincy High School.

DelVal will attend Harvard University in September.

Here is a list of all the certificate recipients:

Bay State Housing Market Shows Some Signs Of Slowing

But Sales Of Detached Single-Family Homes On South Shore Increased 16.3% In the Second Quarter

Sales of single-family homes continued at a steady pace across Massachusetts this spring, however, weakness in the labor market and declining consumer confidence have started to affect housing demand in several communities around the state, according to a report issued recently by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

In the second quarter, detached single-family home sales declined 6.4 percent compared to the same period a year ago, falling from 11,850 units sold in the spring quarter of 2000 to 11,092 in the April-June period this year, while condominium sales increased 0.7 percent, from 3,380 units sold in the second quarter last year to 3,405 in the comparable quarter of 2001.

"The slower pace of home sales this spring is indicative of an overall softening in consumer spending throughout the economy," said MAR

President David M. Walsh. "Concerns over job security and weakness in other economic sectors have made many households nervous about overextending themselves financially, and that's pushed some buyers to the sidelines. But there's still plenty of confidence in the housing market and activity remains strong by historic standards."

Data from the MAR report confirms this assertion, as the 14,497 detached single-family homes and condos sold in the second quarter of 2001 amount to the fifth highest residential sales total on record for a spring quarter in the Bay State.

Most regional markets of the state also saw healthy activity in the second quarter, with some observing improved sales over the past year. In the detached single-family home market, sales on the South Shore increased 16.3 percent in the second quarter of 2001 over the same period last year, and in the greater Fall River-New Bedford area sales rose 2.9 percent this spring from the second quarter of 2000. Elsewhere, sales fell modestly by 3.6 percent in the West and 5.8 percent in Worcester County, but more significantly declines occurred in the Northeast (-7.2 percent) and great Boston regions (-20.8 percent).

In the condominium market, the sales results were similar as the Southeast and South Shore regions enjoyed second quarter sales growth of 13 percent and 28 percent, respectively, while the Central region also reported a 5 percent sales gain over the April-June quarter last year. Additionally, sales fell by just six units from year-ago levels in the Northeast and West regions and decreases a modest 5 percent in greater Boston between second quarters of 2000 and 2001.

Sales data for Cape Cod was unavailable for both housing markets due to a conversion with the local MLS system.

Among the market conditions that signify a more normal sales pace, the MAR's quarterly housing report shows that both the inventory of homes for sale and average market time for listings is up measurable from year-ago levels, while average selling prices have started to moderate after eight consecutive quarters of double-digit home price appreciation.

Specifically, single-family property listings are up 6.1 percent across the state, from a monthly average of 24,605 homes for sale in the second quarter of 2000 to 31,412 in the comparable quarter this year. It's the first significant increase in market listings from year-to-year in 11 quarters. In addition, the statewide average days on market before a home sells has increased by nearly three weeks in the past year, from 108 days in the spring quarter last year to 127 days in the second quarter of 2001. In some areas, however, properties are taking as much as three months longer to sell than just a year ago.

While home prices are still on the rise across Massachusetts, appreciation rates are beginning to slow in a number of areas, particularly for detached single-family homes. In fact, the statewide average selling price for detached homes rose by a rather modest 7.2 percent in the second quarter, from $284,891 in the April-June period last year to $305,454 in the same quarter this year. It's the smallest annual quarter-to-quarter gain in selling price since the fourth quarter of 1998 when the average price rose 5.6 percent. Regionally, selling prices increased in all areas of the state in the spring quarter, with the Northeast, South Shore and West reporting 5-7 percent appreciation, and larger 12-16 percent price gains noted elsewhere.

With sales volume up from year-ago levels in the condominium market, double-digit price increases were still the norm. The statewide average selling price for condos even topped $200,000 for the first time, climbing 21.3 percent from an average of $173,322 in the second quarter of 2000 to $210,258 in the same three-month period this year. Regional price gains ranged from 10-11 percent in the West and Central regions to 25-31 percent in greater Boston and the South Shore.

Homebuyer's Workshop Sept. 8, 15 At South Shore Savings Bank

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuying Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with South Shore Savings Bank Saturday, Sept. 8 and Sept. 15.

The workshop will be held at South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Weymouth, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, downpayment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in its approach to obtaining downpayment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Streamlined Loan Process Fuels Home Ownership Surge

By CAROL BULMAN
President

Conway Financial Services
According to recent national statistics, a record-high 66 percent of Americans own a home. This is an incredible number and it appears to be climbing.

Many of the opportunities for homeownership lie in the fact that fewer than 4.5 percent of American workers are unemployed and people still remain, albeit cautious, positive about the months ahead. In addition to most Americans' good feelings about the economy during the last decade, the growth in homeownership has other contributing factors.

Banks and secondary lending institutions, flush with money and faced with federal regulations to lend to the low- and moderate-income households of this nation, have made mortgage money available to many who faced a dead end a year ago.

When given the challenge of lending more money in the form of mortgages, both because of capital available, as well as the need to lend in certain neighborhoods under the Community Reinvestment Act, the local banks sharpened their pencils. They set out to create mortgage products that would suit the typical first-time, low- or moderate-income buyer. And they did. Through the marketing efforts of bank-employed loan officers and through the use of mortgage brokers, the word got out to the consumer about well-priced and suitably structured loan products.

These products would tout a low interest rate (often a hybrid adjustable/fixed rate type of product), low costing costs, flexible underwriting requirements and the possibility of obtaining most, if not all, the needed cash in the form of a gift from a relative. The first-time buyers lined up and the money headed out the bank's door.

Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, also faced with a booming economy and the requirements of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to get their money out, followed suit. Not only did they come up with several mortgage products to meet the particular needs of low- and moderate-income borrower, but they also went to work on what has changed the mortgage origination environment forever.

Enter "automated underwriting." Fannie Mae's version is known as Desktop Originator; Freddie Mac's is called Loan Prospector. These automated underwriting systems are now the vehicles by which Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, the secondary market giants, underwrite a mortgage.

The customer's profile is entered into a computer screen that weighs the risk and the benefits of his or her financial situation. The software will then determine, based on years of loan-servicing data, whether this person will likely stay current on loan payments.

The strict guidelines that heretofore included adherence to certain income and debt ratios and credit profiles are gone. Automated underwriting allows millions of people who previously could not qualify for a loan to obtain financing.

Fannie Mae reports that 80 percent of all loans they have purchased this year were approved using the desktop originator program.

These automated systems have not only allowed many Americans to purchase homes who otherwise could not, they have streamlined the system of processing a loan. Although not yet truly a paperless mortgage, there is far less support documentation required of today's borrower. The automated system determines what paperwork is needed based on the measurement of risk that it applies to the mortgage amount being considered.

The "American dream" is alive and well and swiftly becoming a reality for more and more U.S. families.

South Shore resident Carol Bulman is chair of the Massachusetts Mortgage Association, the trade organization of the Bay State's mortgage brokers. Bulman also is president of Norwell-based Conway Financial Services. ## Quincy Community Action Homebuyer's Workshop Sept. 8, 15

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturdays, Sept. 8 and 15, at Tufts Public Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through QCAP, Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, and other financing options.

Agenda includes comprehensive presentations from realtors, attorneys, home inspectors, lenders, and other homeownership professionals. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within a budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for one's needs.

The fee for the workshop is $10 per household for the month of September. Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

Jack Conway & Co. Among 100 Largest Firms In U.S.

A national industry group recently named Jack Conway & Co. the largest privately owned, independent real estate company in Massachusetts, and placed it among the 100 largest firms in the United States.

In its annual ranking, REALTOR Magazine, the official journal of the 750,000-member National Association of Realtors, listed the South Shore-based real estate and mortgage-brokerage company as the 98th largest in the nation according to the number of transactions, and as the 82nd largest in combined sales volume.

Chairman/CEO Jack

Conway noted that NAR's rating comes just weeks after the 44-year-old company was ranked the 49th largest privately owned independent in the U.S. by Real Trends, a national magazine that tracks the real estate industry.

Both surveys ranked Conway tops in its category in Massachusetts.

"This is a wonderful achievement by everyone on our team," Conway said. "I'm particularly proud of the fact that we have reached this level and remained an independent company."

Jack Conway & Co., which closed almost a billion dollars in gross sales last year, was founded in a small storefront in Hingham Square in 1957. Today, the Norwell-based company has more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Tiffany Williams & Co. To Produce Concert Series

Quincy-based Tiffany Williams & Co. will produce nine weekly live concerts featuring the music of some of the best-known bands of the 1960's and 1970's Wednesday nights throughout September, October, and November at Vincent's in Randolph.

Scheduled concerts are:
Jefferson Starship, Sept. 19: The group features founding members Paul Kantner and Marty Balin and hits such as "Somebody to Love," "White Rabbit," "Miracles," "Count On Me," and others. Tickets are $25 in advance and $28 day of show.

ABBA Again, Sept. 26: The group is the country's premier ABBA tribute band, recreating the Swedish group's memorable hits such as "Dancing Queen," "Waterloo," and "Mama Mia." Tickets are $22 in advance and $25 day of show.

Badfinger, Oct. 3: The band, which was recently showcased on VH-1's Behind The Music, features original member Joey Moland. Badfinger will perform such songs as "No Matter What," "Day After Day," "Baby Blue," and "Come and Get It." Tickets are $23 in advance and $26 day of show.

Southern Rock Rebellion Band, Oct. 10: The group features founding members of such southern rock bands as Molly Hatchet, The Outlaws, Stephen Stills Band, and others, playing such hits as "Flirtin' With Disaster," "Green Grass and High Tides," "There Goes Another Love Song," and others. Tickets are $23 in advance and $26 day of show.

Mark Lindsay and Mitch Ryder, Oct. 17: Lindsay, lead singer of Paul Revere and The Raiders, and Detroit rocker Ryder share the bill while performing such hits as "Kicks," "Indian Reservation," and "Devil With The Blue Dress." Tickets are $26 in advance and $29 day of show.

will perform their legendary blues/rock sound that includes songs such as "Free Ride" and "Frankenstein." Tickets are $25 in advance and $28 day of show.

Magic Dick & Jay Geils' Bluestime, Nov. 7: The show features founding members of the great J. Geils Band and their smoldering blues sound, along with such hits as "Whammer Jammer." Tickets are $22 in advance and $25 day of show.

Orchestra, Nov. 14: The band features members of Electric Light Orchestra and ELO Pt. II and will perform such songs as "Living Thing," "Evil Woman," "Turn to Stone," "Don't Bring Me Down," and "Roll Over Beethoven." Tickets are $27 in advance and $30 day of show.

The Soft Parade, Nov. 28: This tribute band to The Doors closes out the series with a show that original Doors keyboardist Ray Manzarek has labeled "an eerie recreation of The Doors experience." Tickets are $20 in advance and $23 day of show.

Vincent's is located in the Lombardo's complex, conveniently accessible from Exit 5A off Rte. 128. All shows start at 8:30 p.m. with doors opening at 7:30 p.m. All shows are 21 and over.

Tickets for all shows are now on sale by calling toll-free (866) 468-7619 or by stopping by any Strawberies Records & Tapes.

Bryan Connolly, candidate for Quincy Ward 4 city councillor, urges city officials to acquire the seven-acre parcel of land in West Quincy offered by the state Highway Department to preserve it as open space controlled by the city.

Connolly Urges City To Acquire West Quincy Parcel For Open Space

"West and South Quincy have experienced unprecedented development over the past six years, with little advocacy for open space," Connolly said. "As new commercial developments continue to overtake our ward, bringing thousands of new cars into our neighborhoods, this offer presents an invaluable opportunity that we cannot afford to let slip through our fingers."

Connolly said that in the last two years the City Council has approved large-scale developments such as the High Point complex on Quarry St., the Rosecliff Apartments on Willard St., the Village at Quarry Hill, the Home Depot on Centre St., and consistent expansion of Crown Colony Office Park. He said he wants to ensure that the seven-acre parcel which abuts several West Quincy neighborhoods is preserved as open space under the direction of the city. Located between West St. and the Southeast Expressway, the parcel is the former site of Howard Johnson's restaurant.

"We need to show vision in working to accept this offer," Connolly said, noting that the city has only until Sept. 10 to make its decision. "Twenty years from now, would we ever look back and regret preserving such a large piece of land for open space or recreational purposes?"

Connolly said the city could acquire the land below market value by restricting the use to a public purpose like open space. He also said that the city could tap into its recently instituted hotel tax, which is primarily earmarked for open space, to pay for the land.

"We cannot afford to repeat the same mistake we made on Quarry St., which led to the permitting of High Point apartment project," Connolly said, referring to city's decision not to acquire the piece of land on Quarry St. that will become the site of more than 1,000 apartment units. "Guaranteeing that the city will control open space on that site prevents yet another adverse development project that changes the character of a neighborhood."

"While some zoning safeguards may be in place, that does not mean that the city should not pursue taking total control of the use of this parcel," Connolly said. "That way, we can ensure that neighbors will have a say in how the site is used."

"I agree with Senator Michael Morrissey when he says our city can always use more open space and possible cemetery space," Connolly said. "By investing in open space like this, we are making a valuable investment in the future of our city."

Keenan Urges City Implement Open Space Plan

John F. Keenan, candidate for city councillor at-large, urges the city to implement an open space plan by utilizing revenue generated by the hotel/motel tax.

"With just approximately 100 acres of developable land left in the city, it is imperative that the city act now to preserve as much of that land as possible," Keenan said.

"The preservation of open space in an urban environment like Quincy is extremely beneficial," added Keenan, citing its positive effect on property values and air quality, its role in reducing noise pollution, and its overall contribution to an improved quality of life.

Keenan pointed out that the hotel/motel tax, passed by the city council and the legislature last year, started generating revenue for the city July 1. The revenue from the tax, by law, must be used for specific purposes only, such as the purchase and preservation of open space and recreational areas.

"The city now has a dedicated source of revenue to purchase open space," said Keenan. "It is separate from the city's budget and at no cost to the taxpayers. We are in the unique position of being able to preserve, protect, and improve open space areas in a financially responsible manner. We should act now."

Tardo Calls For Trash Pick Up Changes

Denis F. Tardo, candidate for Quincy city councillor at-large, says he wants the city to alter the trash collection policies.

"My 'same day collection' plan is simple. Residents put the trash out and have it picked up the same day. My plan will solve a number of problems irritating to the people of Quincy," Tardo said.

Tardo said his plan is a "practical solution" to the concerns of many people complaining about contractor services. The city contracts with a private vendor to collect trash. "From the early morning noise and exhaust of heavily equipped trucks, empty barrels rolling into roads, and food sources for domestic pets and unmanageable wildlife nesting in residential neighborhoods, this is a problem that needs to be addressed," he said.

"My proposal will eliminate problems during the winter months when overnight snow covers trash that is later strewn about the streets. It will be beneficial in summer when household pets and wildlife frequent streets hunting for food. It will also do away with trash trucks blocking traffic during peak morning travel," Tardo said.

Tardo claims his plan would also be possible if the city were to perform this function and would support such a measure.

D'Amico Establishes Campaign Website

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico announces that, in addition to his campaign office at 263 Copeland St., West Quincy, he also has an on-line website.

D'Amico said he is the only city councillor with both forms of outreach.

"I aim to visit every voter at the front door before election day because I care every bit about this job and the people I represent as I did on day one.

But, people should have the chance to visit my campaign anytime and now they can."

Paul Jenkins, D'Amico's campaign chairman, designed the website and said that "in just a week, the site had more than 350 clicks."

He added that in addition to campaign information on D'Amico, voters can also use the site to locate their polling place by street or precinct and get immediate updates on the campaign.

The website is www.DAmico2001.com.

Matthew Joyce Receives Francis Galligan Award

Matthew Joyce of Quincy, a graduate of Boston College High School, recently won the Francis J. Galligan Memorial Award at Senior Class Night, an evening set aside to celebrate and reward its seniors.

Joyce received the award from Margaret Florentine, vice principal of BC High, who commended Joyce for his achievements in scholarship and cocurricular activities and for being an outstanding exemplar of the school's values.

The Francis J. Galligan Memorial Award is given annually to a resident of the city of Quincy who is a senior at BC High and who is in good standing in his class. The recipient should be continuing his education at a four-year institution of higher learning with special consideration given to students who plan prelegal studies or legal careers. The award, however, is not restricted to a student pursuing such a career.

In addition, Joyce also

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A troubling situation takes a positive turn and moves toward a resolution that should please you and your supporters. Meanwhile, make time to deal with new domestic issues.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to reassess your goals and consider shifting directions. Remember to keep an open mind, and be prepared to make changes as new opportunities arise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Rely on your strong Mercury aspect to help you close that communication gap before it becomes too wide to cross. A sibling or other family member has news.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're about to get off that emotional roller coaster and start experiencing more stability than you've been used to. This is a good time to let someone new into your life.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Good news: A trusted friend comes through for you. But you still need to shed that last scrap of self-doubt and once more become the cool, confident Cat we all know and love.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Things should be getting back to a less hectic pace. Enjoy the more peaceful atmosphere. You earned it. But don't forget about those still-unresolved issues.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A more positive family relationship develops as misunderstandings are explained away. A job situation appears promising, but check it out before you act on it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Congratulations. That on-the-job situation is working out as you'd hoped. Now's a good time to relax and to enjoy the company of family and close friends.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might feel as if you're caught in an emotional tug-of-war. But don't be rushed into a decision on either side. Wait for more facts before you act.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The Goat's usually high level of self-confidence is brimming over these days. This should help you deal with a situation that you've avoided far too long. Go for it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Relationships become more intense. But be careful not to be pushed into decisions you're not comfortable with. Remember: You're the one in charge of your life.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You need to show more confidence in your ability to reach your goals. Make that long-delayed decision, and avoid floundering around in a sea of self-doubt.

BORN THIS WEEK: You appear to be strongly opinionated, but you can also be open to other ideas — so long as they are presented with logic and clarity.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Granite In Synchrony After Bye Week

By CHRIS POISSON
It's almost the end of August and the Quincy Granite already has the same amount of wins as last season — six.

Showing no signs of rest after a bye week, the unbeaten Granite (6-0) extended their winning streak last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium against the Randolph Oilers (3-2), a matchup that is burgeoning into an electrifying rivalry.

Facing each other for the second time in five weeks, Quincy quarterback Mike Thomas fired an 18-yard touchdown pass to wideout Randy Campbell with a little over a minute left in the game to cement the come-from-behind, 19-14 win.

In the first meeting July 13, the game wasn't decided until the final play of the game when Randolph quarterback Anthony Comer threw an incomplete pass on a game-tying two-point conversion attempt, enabling Quincy to escape with a 14-12 victory.

Quincy has another bye this week and it returns to action Sept. 1 on the road against the poisonous Middleboro Cobras (4-2). Not only is this game important in the standings, but Quincy needs to beat Middleboro to find out if it's ready for primetime.

Granted, the Granite are working on a perfect season and should be mentioned with the elite teams, the Middleboros and Marlboros. But two of their wins were against the Boston Cowboys, which has since disbanded, and another was against the depleted Hyannis Hurricanes (0-5).

"People talk about the Cowboys and that they had low numbers, but that wasn't our fault," said defensive lineman/co-founder David Harris. "We can't control that. We went out there and beat them twice."

Last season, Quincy lost once to Marlboro, the 10-time defending champs, and twice to Middleboro, including the first-round of the playoffs. Until Quincy can beat one of these Eastern Football League powers, it will not get the respect from some of the other teams.

Randolph, 19-14

"Yeah, we're not getting respect right now from some teams," Harris said. "In the Randolph game, we showed what caliber team we have. We rose to the occasion."

This year, it seems the Granite have their best chance to catapult to the "next level." Last week, tremors were felt across the league when both Marlboro and Middleboro lost, which happens about as much as Derek Lowe pitching a perfect nine.

"I'm shocked," said head coach Ken McPhee. "I didn't expect either of them to lose, except when they play each other. Now Middleboro is 4-2 and Marlboro is 3-1. It's not a bad time to have a bye this week. Now we can get prepared for Middleboro. They're not a bad team."

Against Randolph, Thomas started at quarterback as Liam Higgins didn't attend the game for personal reasons. Thomas took full advantage, completing 9 of 21 passes for 175 yards and three touchdowns. He also picked up 28 yards on four carries.

Although he completed just 43 percent of his passes, McPhee pointed out that several receivers dropped some of his bullet passes.

"He throws the ball so hard that sometimes the receivers have trouble catching it," McPhee said. "He had a great night."

"This year he's the real deal," Harris said. "He's a team leader and an excellent ballplayer. He's the first guy at practice and that says a lot. He's making other people

North Girls, Boys Cross Country Teams Practice Aug. 27-31

Coaches Geoff Hennessy and Damien Kellogg announce practice times and sites for all candidates interested in joining the North Quincy High School boys' and girls' cross country teams.

step up. He rallied us back against Randolph."

The offensive line had a lot to do with the quarterback's success. The guys in the trenches turned in their best game of the season, as they allowed no sacks and gave Thomas plenty of time to get rid of the ball.

They also anchored the running game, which totaled 167 yards. In the absence of starting tailback Jackson Vetiac, Will Felix stepped in to rush for 99 yards on 15 carries. First-year back John Morant added 38 yards on six carries.

"They really stepped up," said McPhee about the offensive line. "They did a great job. We had 167 yards rushing and 175 yards passing. Pretty even. It was pretty balanced."

After a scoreless first quarter, Quincy grabbed a 6-0 lead in the second when Thomas tossed a 19-yard strike to wideout Bo Garcia. Matt Kulesza missed the extra point. Randolph answered immediately. On its next drive Mike Waithe plowed in from four yards out to put the Oilers up, 7-6.

Quincy regained the lead, 13-6, on its ensuing drive. Thomas hit Garcia with a short pass over the middle and Garcia jetted 65 yards into the end zone for the score. Near the end of the half, however, Randolph reclaimed the lead, 14-13, on Waithe's second touchdown, a 2-yard plunge at the goal line.

In the second half, Quincy's defense picked it up a notch, shutting out the Oilers to set the stage for the late-game heroics. The Dark Side finished the game with three sacks and five fumble recoveries, with linebacker/co-founder Sean Halpin recording one of each.

With September around the corner and the playoffs not too far behind, the perfect Granite now find themselves resting on the threshold of greatness.

"This is what me and Sean envisioned three years ago," Harris said. "This being my last season, I want to win. It took three years to get here. Now we're in the driver's seat."

COOLANT TIPS

The antifreeze/coolant in your vehicle's cooling system is designed to remove excess engine heat, thereby preserving good engine performance. It is necessary, therefore, to make sure there is always sufficient coolant in the system and that it is maintained in its most effective state. Most antifreeze/coolants are formulated to last a long time. It is still a good idea, though, to flush the system and replace the fluid about once a year. The thermostat should be replaced every three years. The water pump is the hardest working component in the cooling system. The conditioners in antifreeze/coolants are designed to prolong the life of the water pump and save costly repair, providing one more reason to pay attention to the antifreeze/coolant. Maintaining your car routinely can help prevent later problems. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is very proud of our ASE Certified technicians and of the equipment they have on hand to properly service every system of our car. Whether your car needs a cooling fluid change, a simple tune-up, or major repairs, see us first. If you are in the market for superior service that you can count on, then visit us today at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We're also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles. HINT: When topping off antifreeze/coolant, always use distilled water.

Quincy Senior Softball: A Game Of Recreation And Exercise

No longer do they dream of professional baseball, those thoughts having faded long ago.

Instead, these men play for recreation, exercise — and to get out of the house.

The Quincy Senior Softball League, for men ages 55 and over, is currently in its second season. Organized by Bob Maguire and Dick Laracy, about 25-30 players meet Saturday mornings at 9 at Faxon Park Field for batting practice and games.

An informal league, there are no membership fees and all the equipment is provided.

"We do it for recreation and exercise," Maguire said. "All it takes is getting up from the tube and putting down the remote."

And Maguire hopes more men take that advice. The league is looking to expand next season and is need of more players to swing some one. There are several players from Hingham, Marshfield and Weymouth. And it's still not too late to join the league, which begins the Sunday after Patriot's Day and continues through the end of September.

Quincy Senior Softball also fields a traveling team, which has taken on senior teams from Marlboro and Tewksbury so far.

Maguire thanked Barry Welch, Dick Koch and Ray Cattaneo of the Recreation Department for their help.

Local 1139 recently captured the Quincy Youth Baseball Babe Ruth city championship for the first time in over 15 years with an 8-4 win over Grant City.

Dom Delgardo earned the win to finish the season with a perfect 8-0 record. Local 1139 had great offense and defense throughout the season and really turned it on in the playoffs to win four straight games.

After finishing the regular season with a 12-6 record,

Local 1139 defeated Sons of Italy, 6-3, Gold Print, 5-4, and Grant City, 6-5, to earn a bye to the title game.

Delgardo, Matt Grazioso, Matt Lavery, Brendan McDonald, John Fitzgerald,

Applications Available For North Quincy High School Women's Sports Hall Of Fame

Applications are now available for the North Quincy High School Women's Sports Hall of Fame.

The committee wants to honor distinguished female athletes as well as coaches, teams and friends of women's athletics.

Eligibility is as follows:

- Female athletes will be eligible 10 years after the class of which they were a member graduates from North Quincy High.

- Teams will be eligible 10 years after the team's season has ended.

- Coaches will be eligible two years after service to the athletic program has ended.

For an application, call Brian Buckley, athletic director, at 617-984-8912, or write to the Women's Hall of Fame, c/o The Athletic Department, NQHS, 316 Hancock St., North Quincy, 02171.

Deadline for applications is Sept. 30. The ceremony will be held April 7, 2002.

Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament Sept. 10

The Quincy Animal Shelter announces the 13th annual Bill Shea's Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 10 at the Halifax Country Club.

The tournament enables area residents and businesses to show their support for Quincy's homeless pet population. All proceeds benefit animals waiting for homes at the all-volunteer Quincy Animal Shelter.

Opportunities for individuals to get involved include playing golf, sponsorship and prize donation.

Individual players, ladies and mixed foursomes are welcome to participate. Tee time for Florida-style best ball tournament is 8 a.m.

Cost is $110 per golfer. Sponsorship opportunities include Corporate Sponsorship for $1,000, Gold Hole Sponsorship for $625, and Hole Sponsorship for $150.

Bermuda Sailing Adventure For Dennis Sweeney Family

By CHRIS POISSON

Dennis Sweeney admitted there was a moment when he and his two sons wished they were back home, rather than in the Atlantic Ocean aboard their 35-foot Island Packet offshore sailboat, the "Water Dance."

On the fourth night of a five-day trip home from a recent family vacation to Bermuda, Dennis and his sons experienced yet another squall — and this particular storm had Dennis second-guessing his decision to travel by sailboat rather than accompany his wife and daughter on a plane.

About 110 miles from the Massachusetts' coast, with gale force winds reaching between 25-30 knots and seas rising to 12 feet, they watched cautiously as tornadolike clouds sprouted out of the water off in a distance and traveled in their direction.

Although not quite like the Perfect Storm, there was still an uneasy feeling aboard the Water Dance.

"[The squalls] were quite amazing," Dennis said. "You look at the sky, see tornadolike clouds building up, pulling up water, and then seeing it come towards you... you believe in God when you see that."

"The main concern was the wind and how fast it was going to hit the boat and at what angle. There was some fear for our lives. That was a day we all wanted to be off the boat and be back home."

Obviously, Dennis, 49, owner of Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home in Quincy, and his sons, Andrew, 21, and Brian, 16, returned to their summerhouse in Hull safely.

Although it was just his second offshore sailing trip, Dennis had run into some tumultuous weather before. In his first trip last November, he weathered out a three-day stretch of strong gale force winds and 25-foot swells on his way from Maryland to St. Thomas.

"The biggest thing is to make sure that everyone is well rested," said Dennis, who has been sailing since the age of 13.

And that advice was followed religiously. Each of them took a two-hour shift sailing followed by a four-hour break. While on duty, it was the person's job to log information on their speed and direction, as well as check the GPS system to make sure they were still on course.

On board, they carried a 50-gallon tank of gas with a spare 30 gallons in reserve.

They brought a two-week supply of food and were fully equipped safety-wise, including a life raft and a harness they attached to themselves when out on the deck. All three were educated for emergencies, as they practiced man-overboard drills several weeks prior the trip.

All in all, the weather was great. Except they could have used some more wind on the 680-mile trip from Hewitt's Cove in Hingham to Bermuda. The plan was to meet his wife, Pauline, 48, and daughter, Laura, 13, who flew down, the same day in Bermuda. However, they arrived three days later thanks to light winds, a southeast rather than a southwest breeze, and some minor engine problems. Dennis estimated they traveled an additional 75 miles just from the extra tacking alone.

"It took forever," said Dennis, as the three-man crew averaged 60 miles per day, at best 90, instead of the targeted 110 miles.

While sailing the waters, they saw plenty of sea life, including dolphins that followed their boat, the Portuguese man-of-war, the stormy petrel and those crazy flying fish. "In the morning you would look out on the deck and see dead fish. They would jump out of the water at night and crash into the cabin," Dennis said.

If you're waiting for stories of how they courageously conquered the Bermuda Triangle, you might as well try elsewhere. "I don't even know where the Bermuda Triangle is," Dennis pointed out.

The most enjoyable part of the sailing, Dennis said, were the picturesque nights. "The nights were beautiful," he said. "Beautiful weather. You could see clear skies and we had a full moon."

After finally docking in Bermuda, Dennis and his sons stayed at Hamilton Princess with Pauline and Laura for five days, hit all the tourist spots, and then prepared for the adventurous sail home.

So why the route less traveled?

"It was the challenge of doing the sail," explained Dennis. "It was a wonderful experience for us to be together and bond as they say."

Asked if there is another offshore sailing trip planned for next summer, Dennis said: "I've always loved sailing. My youngest son wouldn't mind doing it gain. I don't know about the oldest."

Avoiding Back-To-School Backpack Pain

By Dr. MARTIN RIGBY

September is almost here and soon students will begin another year of reading, writing and arithmetic. An unfortunate epidemic has begun to occur among school-aged children: back and shoulder pain due to carrying overloaded backpacks.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, in 1998 there were over 12,000 visits to the nation's emergency rooms caused by backpack-related injuries. Some of these injuries were due to hallway traffic falls made worse by a heavy backpack. However, the majority of the injuries were due to muscle strains and ligament sprains caused by simply carrying a backpack.

Backpacks are useful tools because they are the most efficient method of carrying a heavy load. Unfortunately, too many of our young people are carrying too much weight on a daily basis. Typically, today's elementary student carries a backpack weighing 5-10 pounds. Middle school students carry 10-35 pounds and high school students carry 25-45 pounds. Both the chiropractic and medical community recommend that children carry no more than 15 percent of their body weight. So, an 80-pound 11 year old should carry a backpack weighing no more than 12 pounds. Even a high school student weighing 170 pounds should carry no more than 24 pounds.

The way a backpack is worn and the manner in which the weight is distributed are other factors for parents to consider. Some students carry backpacks over one shoulder, which creates an uneven distribution of weight and causes muscle imbalances. These imbalances can lead to pain and discomfort. Backpack wearers should use both shoulder straps, which distributes the load across both shoulders and back. Also, the straps should be secure around the shoulders, not too loose. The bottom of the backpack should rest at the level of the lower back, not the buttocks or thigh, as some children seem to prefer.

You may be wondering how a parent can determine whether or not their child's backpack is overloaded. The following are three signs to look for. First, if your child struggles to put his/her backpack on or has to rest it on a table in order to put it on, the backpack is too heavy. Second, a person wearing a backpack should stand erect. Therefore, if your child needs to lean forward, the load is too heavy. Finally, if your child experiences back pain that seems to resolve each weekend when the body has a chance to rest and heal, his/her backpack is the likely culprit. Kids tend to heal quickly, so if the pain has not resolved in about four days, there may be another cause for the pain and it should be investigated further.

While there are no long-term studies about the effects of young people carrying too much weight, certain patterns are emerging. Tension headaches have been increasing among school-aged children — perhaps brought about by muscle spasms due to a consistently overloaded backpack.

Also, a condition known as the "Crossed X Syndrome" is an increasingly frequent diagnosis for children. This syndrome is remarkable for the forward thrust in the head and shoulders of the sufferers. The loss of erect stature is due to the sufferer's chest muscles, which have tightened up in response to the weight of the backpack. A person suffering from "Crossed X Syndrome" may also lean forward even when the backpack is removed. While this syndrome is not a permanent condition, it should be corrected by a specific stretching and strengthening program to restore muscular balance.

Hopefully, you are wondering how your child can avoid a backpack-related injury. These are my safety recommendations:

• Choose the right backpack. First, make sure the backpack you purchase is the right size for your child. It should not look too big in comparison to the height of your child. Second, the shoulder straps should be wide and, preferably, padded in order to distribute weight evenly over a large area. Third, a built-in adjustable lumbar support pad is a must. It increases comfort and reduces muscle stress for the user by 80 percent. Belts are helpful, but in reality, kids will never use them. Unfortunately, they just aren't "cool," so you can skip the models with belts.

• Pack correctly. First, carry only those items that are essential. Empty your child's backpack and go through it with them, item by item. You may be surprised to learn that the 5-pound history book is only needed in class twice a week, thus eliminating the need to carry back and forth to school every day. Remember that the loaded backpack should be less than 15 percent of your child's body weight. Second, load the backpack correctly. Put the heaviest items in first so they will be close to your child's back. Then, evenly distribute the rest of the items throughout the pack. Helping your child learn the correct way to pack his/her backpack is an investment in his/her health.

• Put the backpack on correctly. First, face the pack and bend at the knees. Use both hands to check the weight of the pack. Next, lift the backpack by straightening both legs and swinging it around toward a shoulder. Apply one shoulder strap and then the other. Finally, tighten up the straps to be sure the bottom of the backpack is resting at the level of the lower back.

• Backpacks are designed for walkers, not for those using wheels. When children are using roller blades, scooters or bicycles they should not be wearing a backpack. Under these circumstances wearing a backpack causes a child to become top-heavy, less stable, less able to maneuver, and more likely to fall.

• Remove any dangling cords from the pack. A hanging cord can easily get caught in a door and cause a fall or even a fatal accident.

• When driving in a car, store your backpacks in the trunk or on the floor. In an auto accident a full backpack can become airborne and can cause serious injury.

Fortunately, a few backpack manufacturers have recognized the need for a better backpack. They have designed backpacks with features that help prevent injury, such as air-filled shoulder straps and lumbar support pads. These innovations have been shown to decrease the load by 30 percent and muscle stress for the user by 80 percent. They cost about $50 and are well worth the slight additional cost to avoid potential pain and disability. These back-safe backpacks are available at many local retailers, so be on the lookout for them as you buy your school supplies. If you have trouble locating a back-safe backpack in a retail store, please contact my office. I will be happy to supply your family members with back-safe backpacks.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Life is filled with uncertainties. One never knows what is around the corner. This often fills us with a sense of fear, or undue anxiety. On the other hand the uncertainty of life can be inspiring. Walking across a meadow makes us aware of the surprises nature has for us. The beauty of the sights, the happy songs of the birds, the sounds we encounter are but a few of the unexpected and happy surprises we encounter.

Whenever the pattern of life becomes too dull we have a tendency to add our own elements of mystery and drama. Athletic contests, the 'who dunit' novel, amusement centers, the desire to explore are some of the ways we create exciting experiences. We crave the challenge, the excitement of the unexpected. On the other hand, we would like to have certain guarantees with life. Some have suggested that they would enjoy having some guarantee of success in their chosen profession. Yet what if happiness could be assured in every marriage... what if we were guaranteed a life of moral, spiritual and intellectual perfection? Or, that every prayer would be answered with a yes? Couldn't life be boring if this were so?... The certainty of life is that God is with us. We will provide all we need to overcome the events of life that would otherwise shatter us. This we hold on to in all adventures, disappointments, joys and the sorrows of life.

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS
Department of Public Works
James A. Sheets, Mayor
David A. Colton, Commissioner

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts invites sealed bids from Contractors for the Repairs to the HVAC System at North Quincy High School Contract, according to the documents prepared by SAR Engineering, Inc. in conjunction with the City of Quincy Department of Public Works.

The project consists of repairs and upgrading of the existing controls for the HVAC system at North Quincy High School and installation of a new chiller.

General Bids will be received until 1:00 PM local time on Wednesday, September 5, 2001 in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Mailed Bids should be sent to the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and received before the date and time specified above, for receipt of general bids.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the 780 CMR Massachusetts State Building Code, the Mass State Plumbing Code, the Electrical Code, all as last revised, and all other industry standards and regulations, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A refundable deposit of $25.00 (certified check or money order) is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy. The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:00 AM to 3:00 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Contracts/Bidding Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, August 15, 2001.

General bids and sub-bids shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All prospective bidders must be certified by the Division of Asset Management (DCAM) formerly the Division of Capital Planning & Operations (DCPO) in the HVAC category. The bid will only be valid when accompanied by a Certificate of Eligibility issued by the DCAM, showing that the Bidder has been approved to bid on projects of the size and nature of that advertised, and an update statement summarizing the Bidder's record for the period between the latest certification and the date the Bidder submits a Bid for this Project.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents, and Apprenticeship Training must be complied with. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts invites sealed bids from Contractors for the Repairs to the HVAC System at North Quincy High School Contract, according to the documents prepared by SAR Engineering, Inc. in conjunction with the City of Quincy Department of Public Works.

The project consists of repairs and upgrading of the existing controls for the HVAC system at North Quincy High School and installation of a new chiller.

General Bids will be received until 1:00 PM local time on Wednesday, September 5, 2001 in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Mailed Bids should be sent to the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and received before the date and time specified above, for receipt of general bids.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the 780 CMR Massachusetts State Building Code, the Mass State Plumbing Code, the Electrical Code, all as last revised, and all other industry standards and regulations, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A refundable deposit of $25.00 (certified check or money order) is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy. The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:00 AM to 3:00 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Contracts/Bidding Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, August 15, 2001.

General bids and sub-bids shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All prospective bidders must be certified by the Division of Asset Management ((DCAM) formerly the Division of Capital Planning & Operations (DCPO)) in the HVAC category. The bid will only be valid when accompanied by a Certificate of Eligibility issued by the DCAM, showing that the Bidder has been approved to bid on projects of the size and nature of that advertised, and an update statement summarizing the Bidder's record for the period between the latest certification and the date the Bidder submits a Bid for this Project.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents, and Apprenticeship Training must be complied with. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

Mosquitoes Being Caught To Test For Virus

CASEY NEWMAN puts the finishing touches on her face painting masterpiece, a butterfly on the face of Logan White, as Jane Esterquest looks on. Face painting was just one of the activities which took place at a recent Faxon Park Field Day sponsored by Bay State Community Services.

Edward Lee Of Quincy Named Hanover Middle School Principal

Edward Lee of Quincy has been named principal of the Hanover Middle School. Lee was a middle school principal in Ludenberg for seven years.

He graduated from the University of Massachusetts with a bachelor's degree in public health and education. He has a master's degree in education from Lesley Col-

The virus grows in birds and is transmitted from bird to bird and from birds to humans by mosquitoes.

There is no vaccine or specific treatment for the West Nile Virus.

To report dead birds, residents should contact the city's Health Department Public Health Nurses Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at (617) 376-1285 or (617)

376-1286. If the nurses are not available, dead bird reporting information can be received by the Health Department secretaries at (617) 376-1273, (617) 376-1274, or (617) 376-1275.

The Health Department in turn will notify the Animal Control Officer who will then contact the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to receive a tracking number for submittal of the bird.

It is important to note that all reported dead birds will not be tested. The Massachusetts Department of Public Health personnel will assess the condition of a bird as reported by the animal control officer and determine if it will be tested.

Protection Tips Against Mosquito Exposure

The Quincy Health Department, in conjunction with the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project and the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, offers the following tips -- which include steps to reduce the amount of standing water available for mosquito breeding as well as personal protection measures -- to limit your exposure to mosquitoes:

- Pay special attention to discarded tires that may have accumulated on your property. The used tire has become the most important domestic mosquito producer in this country.
- Drill holes in the bottom of recycling containers that are left out of doors. Drainage holes that are located on the sides collect enough water for mosquitoes to breed in.
- Clean clogged roof gutters on an annual basis, particularly if the leaves containers that have become overgrown by aquatic vegetation.

- Fix any holes in screens and make sure they are tightly attached to all doors and windows. Inspect weather stripping around all doors.
- Turn over plastic wading pools when not in use. A wading pool becomes a mosquito producer if it is not used on a regular basis.
- Turn over wheelbarrows and do not allow water to stagnate in birdbaths. Both provide breeding habitat for domestic mosquitoes.
- Aerate ornamental pools or stock them with fish. Water gardens are fashionable but become major mosquito producers if they are allowed to stagnate. Clean and chlorinate swimming pools that are not being used. A swimming pool left unattended by a family that goes on vacation for a month can produce enough mosquitoes to result in neighborhood-wide complaints. Be aware that mosquitoes may even breed in the water that collects on swimming pool covers.
- Use landscaping to eliminate standing water that collects on your property. Mosquitoes will develop in any puddle that lasts for more than four days.
- Avoid outdoor activities at dawn and dusk when mosquitoes are most active. If you must be outdoors, wear long-sleeved shirts, long pants, and use mosquito repellent that contains DEET and follow the directions on the label.
- Cover up the arms and legs of children playing outdoors near swampy areas.
- When outdoors, cover babies' playpens or carriages with mosquito netting. Don't camp overnight near freshwater swamps where mosquitoes are most active.
- When camping outdoors in tents and other areas, make sure your tent is equipped with mosquito netting.

High School Classes Start Sept. 6

School Bells Ring On Sept. 5 For Grades 1 To 9

School bells will ring for Quincy Public School students in Grades 1-9 on Wednesday, Sept. 5 as the 2001-2002 school year opens with a full day of classes.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors at Quincy High School and North Quincy High School will return to school Thursday, Sept. 6.

Freshmen orientation for North Quincy and Quincy High Schools will be Wednesday, Sept. 5. Grade 9 students from both schools should report at 7:45 a.m.

Kindergarten orientation days will be held Wednesday, Sept. 5 through Friday, Sept. 7. Kindergarten classes will start Wednesday, Sept. 12.

School hours for the city's 11 elementary schools are divided into two tiers:

The first tier is 7:45 a.m. until 2 p.m. for the following elementary schools: Atherton Hough, Charles Bernazzani, Lincoln Hancock, Merrymount, and Wollaston.

The second tier is 8:15 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. for the following elementary schools: Beechwood Knoll, Montclair, Francis Parker, Snug Harbor, Squantum, and Clifford Marshall.

School hours at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center will be 7:35 a.m. until 1:50 p.m.

Middle school students (Grades 6 through 8) will attend classes from 8:15 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Central, Point Webster, and Sterling Middle Schools.

School hours at Quincy High School and North Quincy High School are 7:45 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

On Controversial Quincy Ave. Site Phelan Raises Questions, Sheets: 'Been Answered'

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayoral candidate William Phelan, who as a member of the School Committee led the successful fight against siting the new Quincy High School at the former Bethlehem Steel toxic landfill off Quincy Ave., is raising questions about the city's purchase of the property.

Incumbent Mayor James Sheets called Phelan's inquiry "old news," saying that Phelan's questions have been answered time and time again and that the only new developments were recent bids of $4.6 and $5.6 million for the 16-acre parcel, exceeding the land's $4.9 million appraisal and the city's $3.5 million purchase price in 1998.

In a statement released Tuesday, Phelan contended that Sheets knew the site was "highly contaminated" before the city purchased the property from Atlantic Development, owned by developer Donald J. MacKinnon, who Phelan notes is a Sheets contributor.

Project Impact Brochure Spotlights Survival Tips

Are You Prepared For Hurricanes, Emergencies?

As hurricane season gears up along the Atlantic Seaboard, a Quincy Project Impact brochure offers city residents the most important resource in handling any disaster: information.

The brochure -- which is funded through Project Impact, a federal program -- represents a team effort of federal, state, and local agencies along with Quincy businesses and the American Red Cross to create a more disaster-resistant city.

"A lot of people came together on this project," said Jackie Gardner, area director of the American Red Cross, who spearheaded brochure efforts along with Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) and the two chairmen of Quincy Project Impact, Inspectional Services Director Walter White and Planning Director Richard Meade.

The brochure, which White said was available in Chinese dialects as well as English, provides contact information, emergency phone numbers, and useful tips from community partners in their various fields of expertise. For instance, Keyspan Energy Delivery offers procedures for a natural gas emergency while Marina Bay on Boston Harbor offers tips for keeping one's boat safe during a storm.

Related Story On Page 40

Other Community Partners include: The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, Massachusetts Electric, Quincy Medical Center, Stop & Shop Supermarkets, CVS, Curry/Ace Hardware, Agnitti Insurance Agency, and the QCBPA as well as the city's departments of Emergency Management, Health, Inspection, Planning, and Public Works.

The brochure, White said, is an educational component offering disaster preparation and management techniques for many situations but is especially appropriate during the current hurricane season.

White, who echoed a national and international concern that a pattern of more severe hurricanes was expected in the coming years, said hurricane season begins in mid-August but is usually strongest locally in September and October until the weather becomes too cool to support hurricanes.

Gardner said that 5,000 of the brochures were printed. She said the brochures are available at the Red Cross' Quincy office at 1495 Hancock St. and will be distributed at the Manet Community Health Center, the Beechwood Community Life Center, and the Ward 4, Adams Shore, Germantown, and Houghs Neck Community Centers.

QCBPA's Manning said one unique feature of the brochure was that the information from various Community Partners was printed on individual cards tucked into the actual brochure, allowing for easier updates in the future.

Quincy is one of only 80 Project Impact communities across the nation and its accomplishments were celebrated during recent "Make an Impact" ceremonies at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

For more information on the brochure, contact Jackie Gardner at the American Red Cross at (617) 770-2600.

QUINCY PROJECT IMPACT recently sponsored a symposium on disaster awareness and prevention at the Crane Public Library where a rough draft of its disaster resistance brochure, now available, was distributed to guests. The symposium was part of national "Make An Impact Week." From left are: Planning Director Richard Meade, co-chairman, Project Impact; Peter Webber, commissioner, State Department of Environmental Management; Jackie Gardner, area director, American Red Cross; Inspectional Services Director Walter White, co-chairman, Quincy Project Impact; Stephen McGrail, director, Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency; and Kenneth Horak, acting director, Federal Emergency Management Agency. The city is one of only 80 Project Impact communities across the country.

Man Sought In Rape

Police are seeking a man whom a Wollaston Hill woman reported raped her Sunday night in her apartment.

The 32-year-old woman told police she had completed washing her kitchen floor and stepped into a hallway around 10 p.m.

She said the man grabbed her, forced her into a bedroom and raped her several times during a two-hour period. He then later left through the front door.

She described her assailant as black, 26 to 30 years old, about 5-foot, 6 inches and around 180 pounds.

The woman went to a sister's home in Medway from where police were called. She was taken to Quincy Medical Center for treatment.

Officials Throughout State Expected To Attend Swift To Deliver Education Address At QHS Today

Acting Governor Jane Swift's Education Address, which is scheduled for today (Thursday) at 2 p.m. in Quincy High School, is a feather in the cap of the city and its efforts in education reform, said Mayor James Sheets.

"This visit really ranks up there," said Sheets, who compared Swift's address with other notable visits including a recent stop by Andrew Card, chief of staff for President George W. Bush, and a visit to the Crane Public Library by then First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton in October of 1996. "The city is ready for the governor's visit."

The first Education Address, Sheets noted, was held in Malden, site of the signing of the Education Reform Act of 1993 which set out to transform public education in Massachusetts.

Acting Gov.
JANE SWIFT

Swift chose Quincy for the second address, Sheets said, because of the city's strides in implementing those reforms, including Sterling Middle School's recent designation as an "exemplar school" by the state.

Coordinating with the governor's staff for the event are Kerry Knapp, executive assistant to the mayor, and Rhonda Merrill, director of Events and Tourism.

Organizers of the event expect more than 460 in attendance for Swift's address, which is scheduled to last 15 minutes. Expected to attend are 17 mayors; more than 80 school superintendents; members of the Swift's Cabinet; Speaker of the House Thomas Fineran; more than 20 members of the State Legislature; more than 75 city officials including the mayor, the city council, the school committee, school principals, and business partners of the Quincy Public Schools; as well as teachers and education officials from across the state.

On display for Swift's visit will be the Team Hyper robot, which is run by students from North Quincy High School, Quincy High School, and the Center for Technical Education. The robot recently took first place in a regional competition and competed in the national finals in Florida.

Center, police said.

The car, a Toyota Corolla, was heavily damaged when the tree, which snapped off several feet above the ground, fell on the vehicle's roof.

The hearing will be held in the Council Chamber at City Hall.

Interview Committee Gives Unanimous Backing DeCristofaro Recommended As New Superintendent

An interview committee Monday unanimously recommended that Acting Superintendent of Schools Dr. Richard DeCristofaro be approved as superintendent permanently.

If given final approval by the School Committee, which is scheduled to meet Wednesday, Sept. 5, DeCristofaro would succeed Eugene Creedon, who retired in June after serving almost a decade in the position.

Before being named acting superintendent, De-

DECRISTOFARO

Cristofaro served as assistant superintendent under Creedon. A graduate of Quincy's public schools, DeCristofaro has more than 25 years experience as a teacher and administrator in the system.

The interview committee consisted of members of the School Committee, administrators, teachers, and parents of students. The committee made its recommendation following a presentation by DeCristofaro.

DeCristofaro is the only candidate who applied for the position.

Thursday, Sept. 6 will be a full day of classes for all Quincy public school students in Grades 1 through 12.

A reminder: due to space considerations, the Clifford Marshall Elementary School serves as an early childhood to Grade 4 facility and the Point Webster Middle School handles Grades 5-8.

The state mandates 180 school days. The last day of classes for Quincy Public Schools is tentatively scheduled for Monday, June 17. Five make up days (if school is cancelled due to inclement weather, for example) are listed on the school calendar: June 18, 19, 20, 21, and 24.

Graduation ceremonies are slated for Monday, June 3 for Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education and Tuesday, June 4 for North Quincy High School.

'Miss Mildred': A Spry 101

Mildred Gustafson must have the Fountain of Youth bubbling in her backyard.

She doesn't look it. And, certainly doesn't act it.

But she celebrated her 101st birthday the other day at the Beechwood Community Life Center in Quantum.

Surrounded, quite naturally, but senior friends and quite appropriately -- being so young at heart -- by preschoolers who attend the center.

"We asked Mildred about her longevity and life," says Sharron Beals, Beechwood's executive director.

A five-year-old got things rolling with this right-to-the-point question: "How did you get to be so old?"

"Miss Mildred," as the youngsters affectionately call her, lives in West Quincy and is a regular participant in activities at Beechwood's Senior Center, and came back smiling with what you might call her formula for longevity:

"I eat breakfast cereal and fruit every day.

"I stay away from doctors.

"I never say 'no' . . . to invitations to go out! The worst thing you can do is sit too much, especially in your own home.

"I quit smoking -- 80 years ago."

She likes wearing pretty clothes and shoes and still enjoys dancing.

She revealed she has "27 pairs of shoes and three closets full of pretty clothes."

Have you always liked to dance, she was asked.

"Yes, I loved going dancing at Quincy's Wisteria Bungalow. A Wollaston lady ran the dance hall. Wednesdays were wonderful. I could hardly get there fast enough. I was a good dancer, so I always had lots of partners."

Did her husband, Carl, like to dance?

"Yes, I met my man at the Wisteria Bungalow. But he wasn't the best dancer. I told him I would marry him if I could still dance with the other guys sometimes."

MILDRED GUSTAFSON

Mildred, who has a son, Elliot, a Quincy resident; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, was one of three children.

She was born in Lynn. Her father was a coachman. "I loved to ride with him. Sometimes I got to ride with him in his carriage when he made his rounds.

"My mother was Irish and worked. The only mother I knew who worked then. She worked for our doctor and managed his office."

Did you work, a kindergartner asked.

"I've worked all my life. Still do. Housework is work! Until I married I was a kindergarten teacher at the Sweeney School in Dorchester."

Who was your favorite President, another wanted to know.

"President Taft. I saw him and the Wright Brothers at the 1910 Aeromeet in Quincy. I always liked President Taft even though he let himself get a little heavy."

The children presented "Miss Mildred" with handmade cards and a bouquet of summer flowers. And there was sing-a-long piano music with toe-tapping led by the guest of honor.

Tributes from friends attending the birthday party:

"She is so honest, she'll always tell it as it is."

"She's a very pleasant conversationalist and has varied interests."

"Mildred is quick on her toes and doesn't even wear glasses except to read or do crossword puzzles."

"She still plays the piano beautifully."

There's another ingredient in Mildred's formula for longevity.

"I always take things in stride and I roll with life's punches."

Maybe we would all do well to roll along with her.

Residents Learn About Emergency Response Team

An open house has been scheduled for Monday, Sept. 10 so that residents of southeastern Massachusetts can learn more about the Quincy Emergency Management Agency Youth Services Community Emergency Response Team (CERT).

The open house will be held at 7 p.m. on the lower level of the Quincy Emergency Operations Center, 55 Sea St. Those welcome to attend, preferably over the age of 11, are asked to RSVP at 617-376-1205 to insure that space is available.

Course are offered in disaster mitigation, disaster triage, disaster psychology, weapons of mass destruction, terrorism, light search and rescue, communications, first aid, CPR and weapons safety. The CERT team will be on hand to answer questions.

CERT has been active in Quincy since 1998. Youths, special needs, adults as well as seniors take classes in various skills that they will need in worst-case disaster scenarios. Age range for training is 12 through 80 years old.

In addition to CERT training, there are many events and road races to which members of the CERT team volunteer their time, such as crowd control, public safety, setting up and breaking down for events, communications and lighting and power.

There is also an after-school learning program, which takes place every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for the purpose of helping school age children with homework. The program is available from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1910 POSTCARD is a view of the 40-ton crane that was located near the old Quincy Adams railroad depot on Liberty St. in South Quincy. The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad erected the crane in 1907 to provide rail service to the dozens of stone cutting businesses that were in the area. To here, unfinished stone was shipped from quarries throughout the northeast. After being finished by Quincy's stonemasonry craftsmen, the stones, including those of our own famous Quincy granite, were shipped from here to all over the United States.

Thanks For A Terrific Citizens Fire Academy

(The following letter was submitted to The Quincy Sun by the writer for publication.)

Dear Deputy Chief Paul L. Cuddy, Jr.

Chief of Fire Protection
It is with great admiration and appreciation that I thank you and the entire Quincy Fire Department for the truly terrific Citizens Fire Academy held here at 1000 Southern Artery for the last four weeks. You all certainly held the audience's attention and were so knowledgeable and able to improve our understanding of fire prevention and safety.

Each of the instructors had a great rapport with those in attendance. Their enthusiasm and ability to make each subject matter interesting to all is a special talent. There were nearly 100 residents awarded a certificate, which speaks well for your wonderful outreach program. There were approximately 75 residents with us each of the four sessions.

We wish you much success as you reach out across Quincy with your prevention program. Thank you for selecting us for your pilot presentation.

Quincy Environmental Network Candidates' Night Oct. 18

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN), an affiliation of various environmental groups operating in Quincy and the South Shore, is seeking out the views of candidates on a variety of critical questions.

A questionnaire, recently compiled by QEN members, was sent to both incumbents and challengers of ward councillor, councillor at-large and mayoral offices. The questions cover a range of issues, including the proposed site for the new high school, the city's open space plan and the use of materials at Quarry Hills.

Candidates were asked to respond to the questions in writing. The QEN intends to use electronic and print media to distribute their unedited responses.

"The purpose of sending out the questions is two-fold," said Maureen Mazrimas, a long-time Quincy activist.

"To inform voters of how candidates stand on the issues and to keep the environment in the spotlight during this election season."

The written questionnaire is the first in a two-part effort by the QEN that will conclude with a Candidates' Night Thursday, Oct. 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 11 Hayward St. Format for the Candidates' Night will be "question and answer" with the QEN posing questions for the candidates selected from a representative sampling of those offered by members of the group or the public at-large.

Moderator will be Joan Pierce, past member of the League of Women Voters.

For more information, or to propose a question for Candidates' Night, call Gail Macdonald at (617) 773-5120 or Maureen Mazrimas at (617) 328-1121.

Delahunt Forum On Academy Nominations Sept. 13

With the nomination deadline approaching, Cong. Bill Delahunt will sponsor an information forum next month for local high school students and their families interested in educational opportunities at US Service Academies.

The two-hour Delahunt forum is scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at Marshfield High School, 89 Forest St., Marshfield.

It is open, free-of-charge, to all southeastern Massachusetts residents.

The session will feature admissions representatives from the US Military Academy (West Point, NY), Naval Academy (Annapolis, MD), and Air Force Academy (Colorado Springs, CO), as well as the Coast Guard Academy (New London, CT), Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point, NY), Norwich University (Northfield, VT), and Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay. Also participating will be officials of the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) scholarship program.

For more information on the Sept. 13 forum, or about the nomination process, call Delahunt's office at 1-800-794-9911.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Polio Concerns Delay School Openings

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Weymouth, Hanover and Rockland delayed the opening of public schools because of teachers' and parents' concern with polio. In fact, the reported cases of polio in Norfolk County were continuing to decline. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis noted that last week there were 45 cases, compared to 63, 79 and 78 cases the prior three weeks.

The new opening date of Sept. 19 would be followed by parochial schools in Quincy and the South Shore towns.

Football practice and the first games of the season were postponed as well. QHS's first game was scheduled against Everett with NQHS scheduled against Stoughton.

FERRAZZI OPPOSES EARLY SCHOOL START

Police Chief William Ferrazzi voiced his opposition to the proposed 8:30 a.m. start of school, prompting Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa to ask the school committee to reconsider the issue.

Ferrazzi argued the change from 9 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. posed a public safety concern since traffic was heavier that time of the morning. He also said the police department's 8 a.m. roll call would make it more difficult to deploy police at key intersections in time for students' crossings.

It was pointed out, however, that the 8:30 a.m. start worked well in the four schools in Quincy Point: Webster, Pollard, Washington and Adams. During the war, those schools were assigned earlier starts so they could end the day earlier and avoid the rush hour traffic from the shipyard. Since the war they kept the 8:30 a.m. because it has been so successful.

CITY TO RECEIVE MORTON'S ARTIFACTS FROM MT. WOLLASTON

A presentation was scheduled before the city council of artifacts from Thomas Morton's Indian trading post at Mt. Wollaston by historian and geologist Stinson Lord of Weymouth.

The iron ax head and whetstone were found by Lord when he excavated a site near the present Our Lady of Good Counsel Church on Sea St. in 1930.

As a dodge to his Puritan and Pilgrim neighbors, Morton called his trading post Mare (by the sea) Mount, by the real name of Merrymount was more descriptive of some of the frivolity that the place was famous for.

St. Boniface Haiti Foundation Dinner To Be Held Sept. 20

The St. Boniface Haiti Foundation will hold its annual fund-raising dinner Thursday, Sept. 20 at the new Quincy Marriott at Crown Colony.

The event will honor posthumously Judge Leo J. Lydon, former Juvenile Justice in Norfolk County, who was tragically killed last November. Judge Lydon had visited Haiti with a group from St. William's Church in Dorchester and was deeply involved with providing assistance to the people of the country, the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

Proceeds from the dinner will be used to rebuild a chapel in the mountain village of Doriol, where Judge Lydon had visited.

The St. Boniface Haiti Foundation, founded in 1982 by Rev. Gerald Osterman, then pastor of St. Boniface Church, and Germantown resident Nannette Canniff, sponsors work/retreat groups of lay missionaries to Haiti.

Over the years the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation has been able to raise funds to build a small hospital with an operating room and ER as well as a residence for the Sisters of Charity who staff the hospital. As the hospital has expanded, so has the need for funds to pay Haitian physicians and nurses and to provide medicine and equipment along with upgrading the wells and limited water supply.

JUSTICE LEO J. LYDON

Quincy residents who serve on the dinner committee are Mrs. James McIntyre, Mrs. Francis Bellotti, and Mrs. David Rowell. Mrs. McIntyre serves as chairwoman.

Individual tickets are $100 and there are opportunities to become benefactors or table sponsors for the event.

For more information, contact Chairwoman Sheila McIntyre at (617) 773-5449 or Nannette Canniff, director of the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation, at (781) 961-6927.

Stephanie Foy Wed To Jonathan Verrengia

A reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club followed the recent wedding of Stephanie Foy of Quincy and Jonathan Verrengia of Woburn. The father of the groom Rev. Dr. Daniel Verrengia performed the ceremony at Park Street Church, Boston.

The bride is the daughter of Frances and Robert Foy of Quincy. The groom is the son of Rev. Dr. Daniel and Mrs. Verrengia of Woburn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Kathleen Marchetti as Matron of Honor.

James Verrengia was his brother's Best Man.

The bride is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, Braintree and Wheelock College, Everett. She is a first grade teacher in the Everett Public Schools.

The groom graduated from Medford High School and Salem State College. He is a physical education teacher in the Everett Public Schools.

After a wedding trip to San Francisco, the couple are residing in Melrose.

Quincy Author Jane Dews To Read From Debut Novel

Quincy author Jane Dews will read from her debut novel, "Sunrise," Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m. in the ground floor meeting room at the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Square.

The fledgling novelist will discuss her writing process, the publishing and marketing of her novel and the book itself.

Dews, who moved from Texas to Quincy, sets her novel in Houston, where the idea for the story was born.

Written over a period of several years, "Sunrise" combines romance and murder but is essentially a story about friendship and daring to dream. The main characters are women.

Bequeathed $1.2 Million For Scholarships

Harry Beede A Most Generous Benefactor To Quincy's Youth

By TOM HENSHAW

The Young Adults Room in the newly expanded Thomas Crane Public Library recently was dedicated appropriately in memory of the most generous benefactor of Quincy's youth.

The city's young folks can now study in the Harry A. and Louisa P. Beede Room, named for the retired educator who bequeathed $1.2 million to be used for scholarships for high school seniors.

The scholarships, which are awarded by the Quincy Retired Teachers Association, are now in their fourth year and totaled $6,000 each to 13 seniors at the city's high schools.

The association dispensed $110,000 in scholarships to 36 seniors this year and the major portion of its came from the Beede bequest.

Representatives of each of the four classes that received scholarships were on hand for the unveiling of a portrait of Beede by Mary Bozoian and Arthur Foster, president and vice president respectively of the scholarship fund.

The Beede scholars were introduced by Mary Catherine Iannoni, corresponding secretary of the fund. They included: Kara McSweeney (1998), Sarah Proto (1999), Thomas Stowe (2000) and Rebecca Ballard and Matthew Yohe (2001).

The first scholarships in 1998 were awarded to six seniors who graduated from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools. In 2001, the figure was 13. In all, 39 youngsters have received Beede scholarships.

Carl Deyeso, a longtime friend and colleague of Beede, delivered remarks.

Beede began his teaching career in Quincy as a science teacher at North Quincy High; then became assistant principal at North and principal at Central Junior High School.

He was principal at Broad Meadows Middle School when he retired.

St. Joseph's School To Open Sept. 5

St. Joseph's Parish School in Quincy Point will open its doors Wednesday, Sept. 5 for its 74th year.

The school, which houses classes for students in pre-kindergarten through the eighth grade, continues in its tradition of academic excellence. Some teachers from St. Joseph's staff used their summer days to upgrade their skills and knowledge by attending professional workshops and taking college courses.

School hours will be 8:05 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Students will continue to attend school for a full day on Tuesdays.

Besides the core academic curricula, St. Joseph's also employs specialists in the areas of art, music, physical education, Spanish and computer science. Extra curricular activities include choir, girls' and boys' basketball, cheerleading and student government.

The school also takes part in Junior Achievement for kindergarten through grade 8. Volunteers from various businesses have taken on projects with the students from building a city to playing the stock market.

CASPAR, a drug and alcohol education curriculum, is also presented to students in kindergarten through grade 8. Other safety programs such as DARE, Stranger Danger, and bicycle safety are presented to students by the Quincy Police Department. MBTA Officer Francis Mulhern presents "Teens on the T" to the eighth grade class to help prepare them to use the T safely as they move on to various high schools.

This summer the school lunchroom has undergone a face lift, being just about doubled in size. The stove and cabinets have been replaced by new ones, and the window where the students pick up their hot lunches on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays has been lowered to accommodate them.

St. Joseph's School will also continue to offer its After School Care Program. The program runs until 5:30 p.m. every school day. Students participating in the After School Care Program take part in fun activities under the supervision of a teacher. There is also a quiet time in which students are allowed to do their homework.

The administration, faculty and staff hope to make this another successful year for St. Joseph's School and all of its students.

Over 350 Entries Set For Quincy ArtsFest Contests

More than 350 works of arts have been entered into this year's fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 15-16, at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, one Merrymount Parkway. Admission is free.

Four separate shows will make up the ArtsFest show -- a juried art show, a juried photography show, a young artists' show and a Quincy Arts Association members' show.

The judges for the art show will be Robert Burgess and Robert Duffy, both of the New England Water Color Society and art instructors at North Quincy High School, and Robert Aiello, graphic artist and member of the Rockport Art Association.

Prize winners will be announced at the Gala Show Premiere, held on the Friday evening before the show opens to the public. The Best in Show award winner will receive a $500 prize.

"The quantity and quality of the work displayed in the show continues to increase," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park Department. "I am impressed by the talents of our local artists, especially those who have painted or photographed local scenes."

For more information, call 617-376-1254.

Dolan Funeral Homes Providing Memorial Trees

The Dolan Funeral Homes of Milton and Dorchester make arrangements to have a young tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to help renew the forest life in Massachusetts.

These memorial trees are planted on public lands where professional planters determine they are most needed, and they serve more than one purpose. The plantings are meant to bring peace and comfort to the families and to contribute to the health and preservation of the forest. They cleanse the air and provide habitat for wildlife.

The Dolan Funeral Homes are members of the Lofty Oaks Association, a nationwide organization dedicated to renewing forests in all 50 states since 1981.

The Dolan Funeral Homes feel they are making a positive contribution to families as well as the environment.

'Grow Together' Sunflower Contest Deadline Friday

Quincy's seventh annual "Grow Together" Sunflower contest concludes this Friday.

Beechwood on the Bay, Almquist Flowerland and The Quincy Sun sponsor the family contest every year.

"Two hundred families participated this year," reports Sharron Beals, executive director at Beechwood on the Bay. "Sunflowers are blooming throughout the city in yards, on patios, driveways, gardens and pots."

The family whose sunflower is "tallest" Aug. 31 will win a Family Fun Basket, filled with games, books, toys and gift certificates. The winning family will be pictured in The Quincy Sun.

Participating families must call or stop by the Center to register their tallest sunflower's measurement by 3 p.m. Friday. Judges will announce the winners by 5 p.m.

For more information and to register height of sunflowers, call Beechwood at 617-471-5712.

Coughlin Meets With Seniors On Their Concerns

Ward 3 city council candidate Kevin Coughlin recently held an afternoon forum with seniors at Granite Place, 125 Granite St.

The forum provided an opportunity for the residents to raise their concerns with Coughlin and for him to answer questions and discuss his ideas and approach to the concerns presented.

"Traffic and pedestrian safety were of overwhelming concern to the residents who cited numerous anecdotes of speeding and other flagrant violations in front of their building," Coughlin said. "These chronic problems present a public safety threat to the residents as they attempt to traverse Granite St. to stores in the area."

Coughlin offered suggestions to the seniors including heightened selective police enforcement, replacement of the existing signaling with more sophisticated signals which offer audible and visible countdown of time allotted for pedestrian crossing, and the creation of "senior safety zones" around senior facilities.

Coughlin said he subsequently met and spoke with Mayor James Sheets with respect to the seniors' concerns. Sheets advised him that the new traffic and pedestrian signaling would be installed within the next few weeks.

Coughlin, if elected, said he will work with the seniors and city officials to pursue his other initiatives.

Norfolk County Bar Association Receives IOLTA Grant Funds

The Bar Association of Norfolk County has received $37,200 in grants from the Massachusetts Bar Foundation.

The grants were made possible through the Massachusetts Bar Foundation's IOLTA program, which recently awarded a total of $2.49 million to 84 organizations throughout the Commonwealth to support programs either providing civil legal services to low-income residents or improving the administration of justice in Massachusetts.

A grant of $20,000 will be used to conduct monthly legal clinics offering legal services directly to low-income persons in Norfolk County.

A grant of $17,200 will be used to support a pro bono program at the Probate and Family Court in Dedham that will represent indigent pro se litigants with issues of divorce, custody, modification, visitation rights, and contempt of the court.

Connolly Fundraiser To Be Held Tonight

Two Quincy Students Finish Internships At Sheriff's Office

Danielle Smith and Kevin Bowes, both of Quincy, recently finished internships at Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's Office.

Bellotti started the summer internships a year ago and says he looks forward to continuing the program.

"We run a state-of-the-art facility here with accredited programs and some of the finest corrections experts in the country," Bellotti said. "Corrections and criminal justice can be rewarding careers, and we're happy to share our knowledge.

"Our crop of interns this year was outstanding."

Smith, a senior at Seton Hall studying criminal justice, split her time between Bellotti's Victim Services

Unit and Warrant Apprehension office.

Bowes spent his hours in the sheriff's Reintegration Unit, working with case-workers and program experts who prepare inmates for their release back into the community. Bowes is a senior at Springfield College studying psychology.

Bellotti hosted an intern farewell party at the Sheriff's Office where he thanked each intern for their hard work and presented certificates of achievement.

Quincy Point 'Beach Blast' Sees Large Turnout

An estimated 400 residents enjoyed the recent Beach Blast at Avalon Beach sponsored by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission.

"This is the kind of turnout we've been looking for," said QBCC Chairman Leo Kelly, who credited a growing word of mouth campaign for the increasingly popular Beach Blasts, which have been held at various city beaches throughout the summer.

The large Beach Blast crowd, which included Mayor James Sheets and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, enjoyed a barbecue, face painting, entertainment from a live DJ, and various games and contests.

Kelly said the Beach Blasts, part of the larger "Back to the Beaches" campaign, have given residents the opportunity to see recent improvements to city beaches, including new tables, benches, signage, and sand-raking activity.

"We're pretty proud of what we've accomplished," said Kelly, "but we'll get even better next year."

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BREATH OF FRESH AIR

An estimated 27 million Americans suffer from persistent bad breath. While certain foods and medical conditions (sinusitis, gastrointestinal problems, etc.) can produce bad breath, the chronic variety is caused by poor oral hygiene, dry mouth, or dental problems. When particles of food remain between teeth, around the gums, or on the tongue, they produce bacteria that react with stagnant saliva to create foul-smelling sulfur compounds. Thus, ridding oneself of halitosis (bad breath) entails killing or removing the bacteria. This often begins with tongue brushing or scraping and the use of antibacterial mouth rinses. If deemed necessary, the dentist will recommend periodontal cleaning and plaque removal. In any case, chronic bad breath will not disappear with breath mints.

We invite your questions, and we can offer important oral health guidelines for the entire family - for the young to the young at heart. Beautiful smiles are a team effort. If you're looking for a family dentist at this time, please call 617-479-6220. It is never too early to start good dental habits. Our "personal touch" philosophy is reflected throughout our practice in many ways. Enjoy modern dentistry with old-fashioned personal attention. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we make dental visits a positive experience. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. When the body does not produce enough saliva (a condition called dry mouth), bacteria can build up and the chance of bad breath increases.

Select Patrick CONROY for Quincy Ward 6

Dear Neighbors:

Please consider my application for the position of your City Councilor. I believe I am well qualified to assume the many and varied responsibilities of the position, and well prepared to perform the required duties in an excellent manner. I have enclosed my resume for you to review at your convenience

Individual issues come and go, but the fundamental challenge to any City Councilor is oversight of the efficient and effective application of public funds (your money) for legitimate public purposes. He or she must balance your needs for public services with your willingness to pay property taxes.

Over the past several years, our property taxes have increased substantially (far above the inflation rate) while the condition of the public roads has declined markedly. At the same time, tens of millions of your money and property have been transferred to private entities (Quarry Hills, the shipyard, Squantum Gardens). It all adds up to poor oversight of your municipal government.

I will be mailing each of you a detailed explanation of my observations and plans. I believe I can do better. I promise to do my best!

Sincerely,
Patrick

Inmates Helping To Clean Area Near Senior Complex

Inmates from the Norfolk County House of Correction will be out in force over the next week, helping the Quincy Housing Authority and the Park Department clean up the area behind the Martensen Street senior citizen complex.

The work is scheduled to begin today (Thursday) and continue through Friday, Sept. 7, it was announced by Sheriff Michael Bellotti and City Councillor Daniel Raymondi. The inmates, supervised by Bellotti, will remove trash and overgrowth of brush.

Bellotti and Raymondi will sponsor a cookout on Martensen Street Saturday, Sept. 8, to celebrate completion of the cleanup and the successful Neighborhood Watch program. The cookout is co-sponsored by the Housing Authority, the Police Department and the Citizens Police Academy.

Hot dogs, hamburgers, chips, ice cream and cold drinks will be served free of charge while a disc jockey entertains. There will be other activities for the young and old alike.

"I would like to thank those of you who have attended our Neighborhood Watch meetings," said Raymondi. "We have worked very hard over the past several months to improve our neighborhoods. Although we have accomplished a great deal by working cooperatively with our Police Department, there is much that remains to be done."

Phelan Raises Questions, Sheets: 'Been Answered'

Phelan also contended that MacKinnon, who purchased 24 acres off Quincy Ave. from CJ Partnership for $1 million in December of 1997 and almost immediately subdivided the land into parcels of roughly nine and 16 acres, the latter purchased by the city for the proposed high school, knew beforehand that the city was considering the site for the new high school.

"The first public meeting in which this land was discussed was Nov. 21, 1997," said Phelan, referring to a meeting of the School Building Needs Task Force in which general plans for a new high school and a renovated QHS for Central Middle School were adopted.

As evidence of the mayor's knowledge of contamination, Phelan cited an environmental report and a settlement agreement attached to the purchase and sales agreement which was signed by the mayor. As evidence of MacKinnon's prior knowledge of the city's interest in the site, Phelan cited MacKinnon's property subdivision filed Dec. 19, 1997 which lists the 16-acre parcel as "Senior High School Parcel Lot 1A."

"The fact that the developer purchased 24 acres on December 15, 1997, for $1 million dollars, filed a subdivision which separated the parcel into 9 clean acres and 14 contaminated acres on Dec. 19, 1997, then entered into a contract to sell the contaminated 14 acres to the city for $3.5 million dollars on Dec. 29, 1997 is unconscionable," said Phelan.

Sheets responded that he did in fact know the site was contaminated and that Atlantic Development was aware of proposed high school plans prior to the city's purchase. But the site's contamination, said the mayor, was never a secret and, on the contrary, was common knowledge.

"When this property was brought to my attention, it was known that the site was contaminated but could be remediated," said Sheets, who said he was made aware of the property by DPW Commissioner and School Building Needs Task Force Chairman David Colton following the task force's Nov. 21, 1997 meeting. "My first question was, 'Are you sure this site can be remediated and the answer was yes based on the D.E.P. (Department of Environmental Protection)."

Colton, along with City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, confirmed that they had had preliminary discussions with Atlantic Development before the city's purchase and before the Nov. 21 meeting of the task force, which was technically before MacKinnon passed papers on the site, but added that was common practice in the process of development.

"It's part of the process," said Colton. "We were trying to find out what we could about the property."

Colton added that the various dates offered by Phelan did not paint an accurate picture.

"You can spend a lot of time focusing on the closing dates when the fact is that MacKinnon already had control of the property for quite some time," said Colton, adding that the parcel had been under agreement and that MacKinnon already had development plans for an assisted-living community on the property.

Colton also said the task force's Nov. 21 discussion of the Quincy Ave. site and subsequent discussions of the site in local newspapers proved the site was common knowledge to anyone concerned, including MacKinnon. "By Nov. 25, everyone knew," said Colton.

McGrath added that MacKinnon added significant value to the Quincy Ave. parcel in the form of road, drainage, and utility improvements. "He already knew that property had value," McGrath said.

"This is an old issue," said Sheets. "The only thing new is that the city paid $3.5 million (for the site) and it was valued at $3.8 million. We then decided that we may want to sell it and we received bids of $4.6 and $5.6 million.

"When we sell it, if we do, we're going to make a substantial profit. That's the only thing that's new."

Cain Wants Ward 3 Center For Seniors, Young People

Ward 3 City Councillor candidate John Cain says he will push to facilitate the planning and implementation of a community center for seniors and young people.

Cain said he is also concerned about the lack of evening activities for young people, who are congregating in groups of 20 to 30 in the Montclair and Wollaston area.

"Residents have shared with me, their concern about young people creating disturbances around the neighborhood," Cain said.

Cain has met with some of the Ward 3 businesses to assure them that he is currently working as a facilitator with the police, the youth, and local residents to work out a solution.

Cain said he recognizes the immediate need for a community center that will allow young people to have alternative recreational options. Cain proposes establishing satellite community centers, working out of schools or churches in and around Ward 3.

Cain said he has discussed the possibilities with Mayor James Sheets, who might consider working with Ward 3 residents and coordinate a plan with the recreation department. Cain said he also believes the solicitation of sponsors will help defray some of the cost associated with this effort.

Cain said it is equally important to plan and develop programs and activities for Ward 3 seniors and retirees and Cain would like to see activities for seniors and retirees similar to the other successful wards.

Christopher Smeglin Volunteers To Help Jamaican Youth

Christopher E. Smeglin of Quincy, a 2001 graduate of Boston College High School, recently returned from a two-week venture in Kingston, Jamaica.

Smeglin and five of his B.C. High classmates volunteered to travel to Jamaica to help run a summer program for the youth of Kingston.

Fr. Perard Monestime, S.J., diversity director at B.C. High, served as chaplain and teacher and Fr. Ted Dziak, S.J., president of St. George's College, supervised the program.

"This is an exciting venture for us and our students," said Edward Beckett, campus minister at B.C. High. "One of the most exciting elements in the program is the collaborative nature of the experience."

Our students worked side-by-side with St. George's students and developed peer friendships based on mutual service.

"We hope this will serve as a starting point for further collaboration and deeper links between B.C. High and St. George's."

Paul Tully, a computer aided drafting and design instructor at the Center for Technical Education in Quincy, was one of 30 high school teachers who attended a two-week training in the Project Lead the Way program at the New Hampshire Technical Institute in Concord.

The program is designed to teach pre-engineering skills to high school students. Project Lead the Way introduces them to the rigors of math, science and technology that they will study in greater depth in college. NHTI is one of six schools in the country where teachers are being trained to implement the Project Lead the Way curriculum.

Keenan Endorsed By Labor Council, Utility Workers

John Keenan, candidate for city councillor-at-large, has been unanimously endorsed by the Norfolk County Central Labor Council/AFL-CIO.

In announcing the endorsement, the Central Labor Council cited Keenan's "commitment to the issues of organized labor and all working men and women."

Keenan has also been endorsed by the Production & Maintenance Workers' Local No. 369, Utility Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO.

Keenan, an attorney, presently is financial coordinator for the Norfolk County Advisory Board, and recently serves as executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets.

"I am pleased to have received the endorsements of the Norfolk County Central Labor Council and Local 369, Utility Workers Union of America," Keenan said. "My father has been a union member for over 50 years, and so I recognize the important role unions play in the lives of working men and women."

Connolly Campaign Launches Web Site

Bryan Connolly, candidate for Ward 4 city councillor, announces his campaign has launched a web site to further increase his outreach to the voters of South and West Quincy.

He said the web site (www.VoteConnolly.com) enables voters to learn more about his priorities as a city councillor, his background and experience, and the issues that Ward 4 voters have identified as the most important to them.

"My approach to public service is to spend as much time as possible meeting personally with people to discuss their concerns and priorities, which is why I have made visiting Ward 4 residents by going door-to-door the cornerstone of my campaign," Connolly said.

"However, I am also excited to employ the Internet to expand my communication to people in South and West Quincy. This provides another opportunity for people to get in contact with me and learn about my priorities at their own convenience."

The web site also includes news updates and allows visitors to contact Connolly and get involved in his campaign. The web site will continue to expand with further information and features as the campaign progresses, Connolly said.

People interested in learning more about the Connolly campaign may do so by visiting the web site or by calling 617-471-7244.

Open House, Yard Sale At Quincy Animal Shelter Sept. 22

The Quincy Animal Shelter will hold an Open House and Yard Sale Saturday, Sept. 22 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the shelter's 56 Broad St. location.

In addition to shopping, the event, which will be held rain or shine, will offer the public a chance to tour the facility and meet some of the animals.

For more information or to donate items for the yard sale, call (617) 376-1349.

The Quincy Animal

Shelter is an all-volunteer organization incorporated in November of 1999. In its first 18 months, it has found homes for more than 800 dogs and cats.

As a "no-kill" shelter, QAS makes every effort to find an appropriate placement for each animal rendered into its care. Every animal receives age-appropriate vaccinations and, if old enough, is neutered before finding its family.

A Message From Acting Supt. Richard DeCristofaro An Educational Journey Begins With New School Year

Dear Parents and Guardians of Quincy Public School Students:

As the opening of school approaches, students, teachers and families are ready to begin a new educational journey.

This new journey begins with anticipation and excitement. All staff in the Quincy Public Schools are looking forward to this new school year as a golden opportunity to assist your children as they grow to become self-fulfilling citizens.

Your participation in Parent Teacher Organizations, school events, celebrations, festivals, school council and sports activities is very important.

I encourage you to become an active part in your student's school life. This involvement will deliver a clear statement to the school community and your student that you and your family value education.

It is my sincere hope that your student(s) and family take advantage of every opportunity that our comprehensive school system affords. Additionally, I hope that all of the dreams that you desire for your student(s) are fulfilled in this exciting new school year.

Sincerely,
Richard DeCristofaro,

Back-To-School Safety Rules

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

It's that time of year again: youngsters will be leaving their homes, some for the first time, and going off to school. The following are some basic rules that parents should teach their children before school starts.

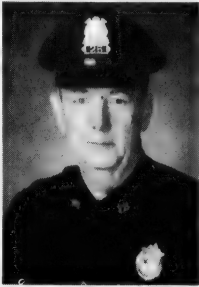

- Make sure that your children are taking the safest route to school. The best way to do this is to walk that route with your children. Show them where they can go in case of an emergency. Tell them to avoid alleys, construction areas, and wooded areas.

- Check your neighborhood for areas that threaten children's safety like brush in wooded area, overgrown shrubbery, abandoned buildings, bad lighting, no sidewalks, or bike paths next to busy streets.

- Encourage your children to walk with friends and to stay in open areas where others can see them.

- Talk to your children about strangers. Explain that a stranger is someone they don't know well. A stranger can be a man or a woman, well-dressed or shabby, kind or threatening, pretty or ugly. If a stranger tries to follow them or grab them, they should run away, scream, and make lots of noise.

Tell them to run to the

nearest place where there are people and to shout, "This person is trying to hurt me" or "Stay away from me" instead of a simple "Help."

- Make sure that your children never take money, rides, or candy from someone they don't know well.

- Rehearse with children their full name, address, and phone number (include area code), and how to make emergency phone calls from public phones. Discuss 911 with your children and how to use it.

- Teach children to go to a store clerk, teacher, police officer, or security guard and ask for help if they feel threatened.

- Don't hang a house key around your child's neck. It's a telltale sign that you won't be home when your child returns from school. Put the key inside a pocket or sock.

- Encourage your children to look out for each other's safety and report anything suspicious to a teacher, police officer, or other responsible adults.

At Home Alone

Often children are home alone for a short period of time after school. The following rules should be discussed with your children.

- Make sure your children can reach you by telephone at work. Post your work number, along with numbers for neighbors, the police, and fire department, near all of your phones at home.

- Have your children check in with you at work or with a neighbor when they get home. Agree on rules for having friends over and going to someone else's house when no adult is present.

- Work out an escape plan in case of fire.

- Tell your children never to open the door to a stranger when they are alone in the house or apartment. Caution them about answering the phone and accidentally letting a stranger know they are alone. Kids can always say their parents are busy and take a message for the parent.

These are some basic safety rules for your children. Discuss them with your children in a non-lecturing way and chances are your children will remember them in an emergency.

Teaching Kids Financial ABC's

With back to school just around the corner and your kids getting ready to hit the books, now is the perfect time to teach your kids the ABC's of money management, says the Massachusetts Bankers Association.

Educating children about managing money and personal finance can produce life-long benefits through promoting financial planning and good money-management habits like saving and investing.

"It is important that we teach our children how to manage their money when they are young," said Kevin Kiley, executive vice president of the Massachusetts Bankers Association. "Establishing good money management habits early on will stand them in good stead for life."

The Massachusetts Bankers Association offers the following tips for building strong money management skills:

- Review with your children how they spend their money each week.

- Give them an allowance with the understanding that part of it goes into their own savings, a first step toward learning to budget.

- Go with them to open up their own bank account and make deposits regularly.

- Instill in your children the importance of saving money every week in case of emergencies.

- For every dollar children earn, encourage them to spend 25 cents on what they want or need now, put 25 cents away for a bigger-item purchase later, and save or invest the balance.

- As parents, show children how to save by example. Adults can save by having a portion of their paycheck directly deposited into a savings account, IRA, or a 401(k).

The following are money management tips for college-bound students:

- Teach your high school and college students how to develop a monthly budget and to track their expenses.

- Emphasize the importance of using credit cards wisely and retaining their receipts and monthly statements in case of an emergency.

- Train your children to be responsible with their money. If your child has a credit card at school, make sure they understand their legal obligations and the importance of paying their bills on time to protect their credit rating.

- Instruct your children to keep their credit history clean and check their credit report once a year.

- Encourage your children to save for their future. Go with them to your local bank and open a savings or investment account.

The Massachusetts Bankers Association encourages bankers to visit classrooms to share savings and money-management tips through its Personal Economics Program (PEP) lending library. Last year, more than 59 banks in Massachusetts and over 5,000 banks nationally participated in the program.

William Kiley, III Ward 6 Council Candidate

William P. Kiley, III of Dudge Road, Squantum, is a candidate for Ward 6 city councillor.

Kiley is a financial analyst for the Boston Water and Sewer Commission and served in other positions with BWSC while a member of Laborer's Union Local 223. He is also a licensed real estate agent and property management representative.

A resident of Quincy for more than 40 years, he is married to the former Maureen Worley and they have three children, William, 10, Caroline, 7, and Andrew, 4.

In his formal announcement Kiley said, in part:

"As the Ward 6 city councillor, I will work to make sure tax money is used in both an effective and productive manner.

"During the course of the last five years, most of the tax bills for the residents of Ward 6 have increased considerably. In some cases the increase has been over 200 percent.

"What local projects have been funded? Is the increase in city revenues being applied to road repairs, sidewalk repairs and new textbooks for the school classrooms? The answer to these questions is no.

"The increase in the tax rate, not only for residential properties, but also commercial properties is the necessary by-product of a series of what could be viewed as extremely poor business decisions."

As an example, Kiley pointed to "the millions that was invested by the city in a partnership with Massachusetts Heavy Industries.

"This investment was made in the form of grants, loan guarantees and tax breaks or waivers for future tax obligations that would be due to the city in the form of additional revenue."

He said the shipyard project instead is "on hold due to the default of a loan to a private individual" and

WILLIAM KILEY

"there is the potential of an additional $10 million dollars in expense to the city while this case is tied up in the court system."

Kiley said the city relinquished control of a prime 180-acre parcel of land (Quarry Hills) to a private group by signing a 50-year lease.

"There is no specific guarantee of revenue nor is there any specific monetary value the city can expect to see," he said.

Kiley said there is a potential loss of state funding due to the confusion about where the new Quincy High School should be sited.

"The bailout of Quincy City Hospital where the city and state had to come up with $31 million to help facilitate the merger with Boston Medical Center is the culmination of a series of bad business decisions that had been made during the 1990s."

Kiley said there needs to be a plan in place to help address both the needs of residents of Squantum Gardens and the future of Squantum Gardens.

The Highpoint development, he said, is another example of what could be viewed as a series of bad business decisions.

He said the city and developer couldn't reach an agreement on the size of the project and spent millions of dollars in the legal process. A compromise finally resulted, he said, but "the residents of the city will foot the bill for his compromise solution."

These are some of the reasons he is running for the City Council from Ward 6.

Carol Cahill Honored Sales of Multifamily Homes Rebound During First 6 Months In Bay State

Activity in the Bay State's multifamily housing market is holding up strong in the face of a slowing economy, but a lack of new construction of multi-unit dwellings in the state continues to put pressure on prices, according to mid-year data compiled by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

Strong demand from single and immigrant homebuyers, dour forecasts for investors in the financial markets, and historically low mortgage rates are all prime factors contributing to the general health and stability of the residential multifamily housing, MAR officials said.

After falling throughout all four quarters of 2000, sales of two-, three-, and four-family homes increased 1.7 percent in Massachusetts during the first six months of 2001, as sales volume rose from 3,235 units sold in the first half of 2000 to 3,290 in the comparable six-month period this year. Regionally, sales rose sharply in southeastern Massachusetts and on the South Shore, with volume up 19.9 percent and 21.6 percent respectively over the first half of 2000. Sales also increased 0.4 percent in the Northeast region, but declined a modest two to four percent in the West, Central, and greater Boston regions.

"Over the last several months, there's been a lot of activity in the multifamily market from entry-level buyers and investors," said MAR President David M. Walsh. "Many singles have grown tired of paying exorbitant rents and now they're purchasing duplexes and triplexes on their own or with family or friends. We're also seeing a fair number of buyers who are tired of suffering declines in their stock and mutual fund values that are turning to investment property to protect themselves from further losses," he explained.

For those who have purchased multifamily homes in the past year, they've likely benefited from the investment as MAR's report found the total dollar volume of 2-4 family home sales has increased steadily from $632,976,336 in the first half of 2000 to $769,489,810 in the same six-month period this year. Although specific price comparisons are not available for two-, three-, and four-family homes, this significant increase in dollar volume indicates that property values for multifamily homes have risen, on average, by 19.5 percent across the state in the past 12 months, from an average selling price of $195,665 in the first six months of last year to an average of $233,887 in the first half of 2001.

"Property values for multifamily homes have been rising steadily for the past several years, and with rents also at a premium, it's not surprising that there's a lot of confidence to buy into this market right now," said Walsh. "Especially at the entry-level, duplexes, and other small, multifamily properties represent an affordable alternative to the higher priced detached single-family home market, and that's created steady demand for 2-4 family homes in recent months."

In fact, buyer demand for multifamily dwellings continues to outpace supply in many markets, with the inventory of units for sale down six percent statewide from year ago levels. This contrasts with a six percent increase in single-family listings that was reported at the end of the second quarter.

"The appeal of the multifamily market seems only to be getting stronger," stated Walsh, who noted that 2-4 family home sales have increased 33 percent in Massachusetts in just the last five years, (2,459 units sold in the first six months of 1996 to 3,290 in the first half of 2001). Unfortunately, the market has not responded, as permits for new 2-4 family homes have declined 18 percent across the Bay State over the past year. "Unless there is a substantial effort to increase multifamily housing production in the near future, I think you'll continue to see upward pressure on the purchase price of these properties for some time to come," Walsh concluded.

NEGOTIATION WITHOUT EMOTION

A seller with an emotional attachment to his or her home might feel insulted by a low offer. This is where a real estate agent experienced in negotiation can play a key role. A lowball bid (anywhere between 10% and 25% below the listing price) may insult the seller, but the agent may see it as an opportunity. The buyer may be under a misguided assumption that the seller is desperate. If a seller remains firm, but flexible, it may be that he or she can parlay that first offer into a second or third. An experienced agent realizes there are more options in a negotiation than simply rejecting the first offer outright, or splitting the difference with a counteroffer.

At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, our goal is to bring buyers and sellers together to the mutual satisfaction of both. We sell on purpose - not by accident! Our services to sellers include a market analysis, coordination of open houses, and listing the home in multiple and in local papers. We negotiate the price of the home with prospective buyers to ensure that you receive full market value for the home. Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway for personal attention and a "marketing partner." We list residential and commercial properties.

HINT: A lowball bid may also come from a prospective buyer who is in love with the house, but cannot see a way to afford it.

REAL ESTATE

House-Hunting On The World Wide Web

(NU) — If you are trying to find real estate, you know that finding the perfect home can be difficult — even when using the World Wide Web.

So you want to find a house in Massachusetts? You go to your favorite search engine and type in "house and Massachusetts." You get 200 matches which include a story of a guy who constructed a model of "the Baird House" in Amherst, Mass., designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and Massachusetts hair care professionals called "House of Style." Then there are bed and breakfasts, fine art exhibitions and stories describing houses in Massachusetts — that aren't for sale.

So you try typing in "real estate and Massachusetts." Your new search becomes slightly more refined, but you still get 200 matches which include real estate lawyers and information on education programs when all you want is to buy a house.

By the time you try other search engines and get the same results, you're reconsidering the move and contemplating hitting your computer. Wouldn't it be great to have an easier and more effective way to find what you want on the Web, like just talking to the search engine like a friend?

Well, now you can. It's called Subjex.com, a new dialogue-based search engine. Subjex uses everyday conversation in a question-and-answer format to learn about its users. This artificial intelligence system learns the motivations behind why the user wants information about a particular subject.

The longer the dialogue lasts, the more information Subjex extrapolates from each user and the better Subjex is able to target exactly what the user is after. For each dialogue conversation it gives only five matches.

For example, if you type in "I am looking for real estate in Massachusetts," Subjex analyzes the sentence structure and does a real-time analysis of the data, learning concepts that are important to "real estate" and "Massachusetts." Then Subjex repeats the process until you are pleased with the results.

So no matter whether you are looking for real estate to buy or have some to sell, the Subjex search engine can help you.

First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop Sept. 8, 15 At South Shore Savings Bank

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with South Shore Savings Bank Saturday, Sept. 8 and Sept. 15.

The workshop will be held at South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Weymouth, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, downpayment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in its approach to obtaining downpayment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Ederly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer's Workshop At Tufts Library

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturdays, Sept. 8 and 15, at Tufts Public Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through QCAP, Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, and other financing options.

Agenda includes comprehensive presentations from realtors, attorneys, home inspectors, lenders, and other homeownership professionals. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within a budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for one's needs.

The fee for the workshop is $10 per household for the month of September. Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

To register or for more information, contact Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

QCAP is an MHFA, CHAPA, and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency.

Full Force Into The Third Year For Impact Quincy

By LILLY MICHNIK
IQ Program Director

As of July 1, 2001, Impact Quincy (IQ) is moving forward into the third year of its grant. Now seems to be the right time to summarize the progress we made, and to celebrate the success we achieved during the first two years of our hard work. This is also the right time to thank the city of Quincy and the community for their wonderful support, help and appreciation of our work.

The best confirmation of our hard work came in the form of a self-reported account made by the students in an annual substance abuse analysis of all middle schools in Quincy. Students anonymously reported in the "The Youth Risk Behavior Survey" that an additional 2 percent of teens do no drink alcoholic beverages, as compared with the data presented in last year's school report.

IQ is a program of Bay State Community Services, a non-profit organization, that is as well a community-based coalition that fully reflects the diversity of the Quincy community. For over 10 years IQ has worked diligently to curb underage drinking among Quincy teens, age group 12-17. IQ's first home in Quincy was the South Shore Council on Alcoholism in 1990. In 1991, Survival Inc. and South Shore Council on Alcoholism combined their resources, creating Bay State Community Services (BSCS).

During the last three years IQ continues to be a federal grantee. The city of Quincy received, among 23 other towns in Massachusetts, money for an "all-out media campaign" that concentrates on reducing underage drinking, and IQ was a proud recipient of this grant. This media campaign is using a social marketing approach, based on science-based environmental strategies (measured ways of obtaining scientific information by using data from surveys received from adults and youth of Quincy) for achieving its goals and objectives.

IQ's structure consists of layers of community support. The foundation layer is comprised of coalitions consisting of six Alliances: Asian American, People of Color, Youth, Gay/Lesbian, Early Childhood and Family Life Alliance. Also included into the coalition is the IQ Advisory Board, whose members represent all major community systems in the city of Quincy: City Hall, Police Department, Fire Services, Quincy Medical Center, Public School System, and numerous other organizations and services.

LILLY MICHNIK

IQ's media component is widely used, as the main part of our preventive strategies, employing all possible media venues available in Quincy. During the first two years we utilized both local newspapers, The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger. On a bi-weekly basis IQ published educational information for parents of our community called "Tips for Parents." Along with "Tips," numerous random articles and IQ editorials were printed monthly in The Quincy Sun, the latter were written by prominent community members of Quincy, including Mayor James Sheets.

During the same period of time, with the help of AK Media, 16 billboards were developed and mounted by IQ, as part of our underage anti-drinking campaign celebrating youth, family, teachers, police and the leaders of the city. IQ also produced, with the help of New England Media Production, four TV commercial ads that are presently played on Cable TV, on channels chosen by teens. These commercials are aimed at youth and are an intricate part of IQ's ongoing campaign.

Two types of posters were developed by IQ as the part of an ongoing underage anti-drinking media campaign. The overhead bus posters were developed and placed on 100 buses running in Quincy (one poster was produced at the beginning of the school year and another at the end), promoting a slogan that the majority of teens in Quincy do not drink alcoholic beverages. Another poster was mailed to each liquor establishment in the city, asking them to support IQ's goals by checking students' IDs diligently, and not selling alcohol to older youth or adults buying for underage teens.

IQ participated in bartenders' training held by the local police department. Trainees were provided with relevant materials asking them to be extra diligent in their work, and not serve or sell alcohol to minors. Recently, IQ took out a half-page ad in The Patriot Ledger thanking residents of Quincy for their support of IQ's objectives. This ad was sponsored by Quincy City Hall, local police and fire departments, Quincy Public Schools, BSCS and The Patriot Ledger.

Finally, IQ continues to move forward full force through the third year of its grant with the ongoing media campaign. The main goal continues to be reduction of the underage drinking in the city of Quincy. The main method — our continuous aiming of highly visible, frequently reinforced positive messages addressing community-wide substance abuse, via various media venues.

The main focus of our media campaign is to target Quincy teens, ages 12-17, with the intent on changing behavior, norms and perceptions. We hope that the short- and long-term outcomes will continue to involve all segments of the Quincy community. The positive results are beginning to emerge. As I stated before, more and more teens anonymously report in school surveys that they choose not to consume alcohol.

The pressure is still there, however, and we all are equally responsible for the underage drinking in our city. If liquor stores refuse to sell to minors, bartenders refuse to serve to minors, young adults refuse to buy alcohol for minors, and parents maintain clear rules about substance abuse, we will all make enormous progress. We will all win.

Thank you for becoming our partners and active fighters in this wonderful and honorable cause. Thank you for helping us keep our city teens safe and happy.

Impact Quincy editorial is a series of high-impact articles published once a month in The Quincy Sun, a format that addresses critical substance abuse issues among underage drinkers in the city of Quincy.

Early Documents Suggest Richardson Balcony Bridge

By CRAIG SALTERS

Was there or was there not once a bridge connecting the north and south balconies of the Richardson building of the Thomas Crane Public Library?

Even those who pose the question, Assistant Library Director Jane Granstrom and Reference Librarian Mary Clark, remain skeptical that such an architectural feature existed in the venerable old building, which was designed by Henry Hobson Richardson and dedicated in 1882.

But at least two documents -- an original floor plan of the building with "a mysterious little line" suggesting a bridge and an 1882 newspaper review of the library referring to "an ornate bridge" -- at least raise the possibility.

And there is the matter that in 1882, prior to the construction of the Aiken Wing in 1908, there would have been no way to access the balcony on the other side of "the turret," the set of stairs leading to the Washington St. side balcony.

"It's certainly not there now," said Clark, who discovered the bridge references recently while researching the original wall-coverings of the Richardson building, which is currently being restored to as close to original condition as possible.

Furthermore, Clark has come upon no photos or other additional documents to substantiate the references. "It's very difficult to say whether or not it was ever there," she said.

One additional detail: a photograph, dated roughly 1890, which shows a spiral staircase -- long since gone -- leading to one of the balconies, the original gas lights of the library still visible.

Perhaps the bridge existed briefly but was replaced by the spiral staircase, and then the stairs of the Aiken Wing? Perhaps one of Richardson's earlier designs called for a bridge but one was never constructed? Perhaps no bridge was even considered and an obvious explanation is being overlooked?

But what of the May 27, 1882 edition of The Quincy Patriot, which Clark reviewed after noticing a reference to it in a 1957 article of The Patriot Ledger, in which a writer with the initials "J.L.F.," reviewing the newly built library, clearly states:

"At the west end is the library proper, occupying full half of the hall, and containing sixteen ornate alcoves in two stories, with a capacity of about 40,000 volumes. An ornate bridge at the further end gives access across the hall, from and to the upper tier of alcoves on either side."

If the 1882 writer is being loose with his writing, it is an exception in an article filled with exacting details of the new building, including: the measurements of the floor, the Easton granite and Longmeadow brownstone, the interior of "figured Georgia Pine," and the report that "to the right and left of the fireplace will hang portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Crane."

Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society, said he had never heard mention of a bridge between the balconies in the Richardson Building. Noting that he intended to research the matter, Fitzgerald offered a first guess that maybe the writer meant "bridge" in a different sense than is used today, possibly to differentiate between the alcoves proper.

Regardless, no one knows what happened to the Richardson balcony bridge, or if it even existed at all, which seems slightly ironic to Granstrom, who said Quincy residents repeatedly told library staff not to lay a glove on the historic Richardson building during the recent $18 million addition and restoration of the library.

Quincy's current love of the Richardson building proves The Quincy Patriot's "J.L.F." not as good a prophet as he was a writer. In addition to his reference to a bridge, "J.L.F." adds:

"But we cannot say that the Crane Library is satisfactory. We have heard many of the townspeople speak of it with much disappointment, and the writer considers it one of the least acceptable of Mr. Richardson's recent works."

"J.L.F." goes on to say that he fails to see exactly where the $50,000 for the project went and adds a more stinging reproach:

"The most pertinent and oft-repeated criticism we have heard, is, why was not the building of Quincy granite?"

"For a Quincy library, in memory of a Quincy man, and, we might say, built and paid for by Quincy money, to be built of any granite but that of Quincy seems unnecessary and inexcusable."

South Coastal Bank Donates $25,000 To YMCA

South Coastal Bank recently presented the South Shore YMCA with a $25,000 donation to support its Capital Campaign.

The donation will be used to help expand the Y's Mill Pond facility in Haverhill.

John O'Connor, president and chief executive officer of South Coastal Bank, praised the role of the South Shore YMCA plays in bringing people of all ages and economic backgrounds together.

"In today's fast-paced society, it is vital that we have an organization like the South Shore YMCA to provide places where we can go to strengthen our ties with the community as well as stay physically fit," said O'Connor.

"Our business philosophy of providing exemplary customer service is extremely compatible with the South Shore YMCA's philosophy of providing outstanding fitness and recreational opportunities for all members of the community."

South Coastal Bank's donation will assist with financing the expansion of the Mill Pond facility, including two indoor pools, one being competition size and one for therapy, a teen center, senior center, art center, new locker rooms, multi-purpose programs space and new parking and driveway areas.

South Coastal Bank is an independent, state-chartered mutual bank. The bank and its employees have a history of commitment to the community. Founded in 1868, South Coastal Bank has branches in Quincy, Braintree, Carver, Rockland and Scituate.

9th Annual Event Sunday, Sept. 9 Degan Race To Benefit Sharon Swatek Fund

Some of the proceeds from the upcoming ninth annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race will benefit the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund, race directors announce.

A Quincy native, Swatek faces mounting hospital and medical expenses after she had both arms and both legs amputated in order to save her life from a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria.

The 10K and 5K road race will be held Sunday, Sept. 9 beginning at 10 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The event is in honor of Bill Degan, a deputy with the U.S. Federal Marshal Service who was killed in the line of duty while arresting armed felons Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, in August, 1992.

Race Director Rick Fitzpatrick said the idea to donate part of the proceeds to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund originated from Quincy firefighter Bill Barron. Swatek's late father Albert was a Quincy firefighter and her brothers Mark and Stephen are Quincy firefighters. Her uncle is retired Quincy Fire Captain John DiPietro.

"I think the donation to Sharon is so wonderful," said Karen Degan, wife of the late U.S. marshal. "That's what makes the race for me and my family so worthwhile."

"Families and firefighters have both written letters and sent in articles about her. My gosh, you don't need letters for something like that."

In addition to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund, donations will be made to the school systems, the DARE program, the Degan Scholarship for Quincy Youth Hockey and the McKeon Boxing Post, which Degan and his father Bill Degan Sr. helped start.

"Each year, what we raise we distribute to beneficiaries. We don't hold any back," Fitzpatrick said.

Over $100,000 has been raised in the eight races. Earlier this year, the Degan Memorial Committee donated $2,000 to the Houghs Neck HOPE Committee for its new playground at LaBrique Field. The committee is also in the early stages of creating a monument in honor of law enforcement officials and firefighters.

"We're thinking about a monument in tribute to law enforcement and firefighters — past, present and future," Karen said. "They're the ones that keep the city safe. We want to portray them as family men. We haven't received a commitment from the police and fire unions yet, but there are meetings coming up in the future."

The committee anticipates over 2,800 registered runners for this year's event, with many local and state law enforcement officers, U.S. marshals and Marines participating. Degan also served as lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Sarah Niles, Degan's niece, will be the this year's official starter.

Refreshments will be included. There will also be a free steak and chicken barbecue for all participants and their families catered by Outback Steakhouse, a major sponsor along with New

14 & Under Travel Softball Champs

The Quincy 14 & Under Travel Softball Team recently captured the Norfolk County Softball Division I championship in Sharon. Quincy knocked off Wrentham, 6-4, in the final. After scoring all six runs by the third inning, Quincy shined defensively, led by Kelly Barden's two superb plays. Molly Mansfield pitched a strong game.

In the semifinal,

Mansfield allowed only one hit and one run as Quincy routed Mansfield, 19-1. Alysia DiMuzio, Rose Bell and Barden powered the offense.

Tony Green New NQHS Football Coach

Tony Green of Quincy has been named interim head coach of the North Quincy High School football team, announces Principal Lou Ioanilli and Athletic Director Brian Buckley.

Green, 37, replaces Peter Chrisom Jr., who stepped down from the position to spend more time with his family. Chrisom, the head coach the past two seasons, will remain on the staff as an assistant coach.

"It feels great," Green said. "All the other coaching positions I've enjoyed, but I have always bled Red and Black. I've been waiting to come home for 13 years."

Since 1994, Green served as co-head coach with his brother, John, at Holbrook High School. Last year he helped resurrect the program, leading the Bulldogs to a 4-3-2 record.

An assistant coach with the Quincy Granite the past three seasons. Green has also coached at Archbishop Williams High School, Milton High School, UMass-Boston, Boston University and Curry College.

Green graduated from Archbishop Williams High School, where he played football, baseball and ran track. He went on to play linebacker and baseball at UMass-Boston, graduating in 1988.

Degan Race To Benefit Sharon Swatek Fund

England Dodge Dealers and Citizens Bank.

In addition to the 10K and 5K races, there will be a 5K walk and activities for families, including pony rides, clowns, face painting, music, raffles and an appearance by McGruff the Crime Dog.

In the 10K race, runners will leave the stadium on Merrymount Parkway and head north on Hancock Street to Quincy Shore Drive. They'll pass by Wollaston Beach, take a right onto Furnace Brook Parkway, a right onto Merrymount Parkway and return to the stadium.

In the 5K race and walk, participants will start on Merrymount Parkway, move north onto Hancock Street, where they'll take a right at Feno Street to Quincy Shore Drive. After passing the beach, they'll head back to the stadium via Furnace Brook Parkway to Merrymount Parkway.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in each division. The divisions are: law enforcement, wheelchair, ages 14 and under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, and 70 and over.

Cost is $15. Those who register by Saturday, Sept. 1 will receive a free T-shirt. Registration will be held from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at the stadium on the day of the race.

Granite At Middleboro Saturday Night

Memo to the Quincy Granite: You'll be walking into a snake pit 7 p.m. Saturday at Battis Field in Middleboro.

Having suffered its third loss of the season Sunday, the Cobras are ready to snap and disprove the notion that their bite is not as fearful as years past.

Although they slither into the game with only a 4-3 record, two of their losses have come against the 10-time defending champion Marlboro Shamrocks. In other words, they're still considered the second best team in the Eastern Football League.

Memo to the Middleboro Cobras: You'll be facing a team hungrier than a teenager who missed lunch.

Having lost twice to Middleboro last season, including the playoffs, the Granite are ready to exact revenge and take the proverbial next step, a huge step, towards elite status.

Quincy struts into the game with a perfect 6-0 mark and a playoff spot already clinched. Coming off its second bye in three weeks, it should be well rested and in good health.

With all that in mind, this game will pack more energy than a can of Red Bull.

TAKING A TEST DRIVE

Taking a test drive is a critically important part of the car buying process. Begin by evaluating seat comfort, steering wheel position, ease of use of controls, and visibility and blind spots. Note the driving position. Next, take the vehicle on the road to see if it has the power to merge easily with highway traffic. Check the performance of the brakes by making a hard stop in an isolated area. Drive the vehicle over some bumps to see how it handles. Assess its cornering ability. Also, consider noise levels at various speeds. Listen to the radio. Finally, evaluate the ease with which you can get in and out of both the front and back seats of the vehicle.

HINT: When considering the purchase of a new vehicle, check the trunk to see if it meets your storage needs.

Recreation Department Holds 6 On 6 Soccer Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual 6 on 6 Soccer Tournament at Faxon Field.

A double-elimination format, the tournament was attended by approximately 75 children from 10 different parks and was divided into three age groups.

In the Midget Division, Squantum Park took yet another title back to its peninsula, mowing down any team that got in its way.

In the Junior Division, Beechwood Playground outlasted a number of teams to capture the title with a 6-0 shutout over Forbes Hill. Beechwood took advantage of a fatigued Forbes Hill team in the second half, tallying four goals to extend a 2-0 lead into a 6-0 cushion.

In the Senior Division, the Montclair boys took on the Perkins boys for the right to face the Montclair girls in the coed championship. Perkins took a 1-0 lead and was able to hold on for a win thanks to solid defensive play.

In the coed game, a contident Perkins team did not consider a team full of girls to be a challenge, but it was sadly mistaken. The Montclair girls carried away

Jeanne Bovinett Clinical Manager Of OR At Quincy Medical

Quincy Medical Center announces Jeanne Bovinett has been appointed clinical manager of the OR at the hospital.

Bovinett is a perioperative nurse educator with over 20 years of clinical and academic nursing experience. Some of her expertise includes: curriculum design, development and implementation, development and implementation of inservice education, staff development and management.

JEANNE BOVINETT

With just a little over a month on the job, Bovinett said she is "home." "I'm very excited to be part of a proactive surgical team in such a caring family environment," she said.

With a focus on education, her job will be managing the OR, recruiting seasoned prep nurses and mentoring all novice perioperative nurses. "My passion is to educate and I'm looking forward to managing through education," she said.

Bovinett comes to QMC from Good Samaritan Medical Center, where she served as Director of Education of Perioperative Services. There, she designed and implemented a perioperative program for RNs. She concurrently served as a perioperative nurse at Boston Medical Center.

She received her undergraduate degree from Laboure College and has a master's degree in education from Cambridge College. She resides in Marshfield.

CHO Seeks Women For Breast Cancer Prevention Study

Women in Quincy and throughout Greater Boston have an opportunity to be part of a national study that compares the effectiveness of tamoxifen and raloxifene, two promising breast cancer prevention drugs.

To be eligible, women must first undergo a risk assessment. Doctors at Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology, PC (CHO), which is based in Quincy and has sites at offices and hospitals throughout Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, will be setting up appointments for such evaluations.

CHO, the region's largest community-based cancer care group, was chosen to be one of the clinical sites for this study, which involves about 22,000 post-menopausal women nationwide, 35 and older, who are at increased risk for the development of breast cancer. Physicians and staff at local hospitals work with CHO on screening and evaluating women who wish to participate.

For more information about cancer services provided by Commonwealth Hematology-Oncology, call 617-479-3550.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

At this time of the year, most people's thoughts turn to the coming change in the season, and the beginning of school. Kids of all ages will be standing, walking, running and in all ways populating the streets... so, let us all take a little more caution when driving... But we'd like to take this thought beyond the basic "School's opening, drive safely" theme, to include some other hopes for the coming school year.

We hope that all teachers, administrators and students approach the new school year with a zest for teaching and learning, to provide the best education that is possible. And we would like to see all the parents of school children examine their own ideas and behavior and make a positive commitment to help in the education of their own kids... Too often, people criticize the schools, the teachers, the administrators and the kids for what some people feel is a general malaise among our youth. When, in fact, a lot of the blame for this malaise starts and grows in the home...

Let us remember that schools, teachers and parents working together can mold young minds and head them in a positive direction.

How To Remain Independent Topic At River Bay Club

As part of National Assisted Living Week and its 10th anniversary, River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St., Quincy, will host an informational seminar entitled "How to remain independent and stay out of a nursing home" Tuesday, Sept. 11 at 10 a.m.

The session will be presented by Ben Lipson, an independent insurance broker who has active in all areas of insurance for 50 years. For the past 20 years, his columns and opinion pieces on insurance have appeared in The Boston Globe.

Lipson is the founder and president of Just for Seniors Insurance Agency, Inc. of Chestnut Hill and editor of Just for Seniors newsletter.

Lipson is well respected as a consumer advocate. He has been featured as a speaker and moderator at more than 100 seminars, meetings and informational presentations on many issues pertaining to health care concerns for preretirees, seniors and their families. His special emphasis has been on the advantages and disadvantages of long-term care insurance.

Lipson received the "Award of Excellence" presented by Massachusetts Home Care for his "outstanding courageous consumer protection work in the field of elderly insurance issues." He also received the annual "MATA Media Award" given by the Massachusetts Academy of Trial Attorneys to a person in the media who "embodies a fairness of spirit and the dedication in their medium to the truth."

Lipson will be a featured speaker at the Boston Globe Personal Finance Conference in November at the World Trade Center on the subject of "Long Term Care Insurance: Who Needs It?"

To attend the seminar Sept. 11 at River Bay Club, call Geri Dussault, director of Marketing and Sales, at 617-472-4457.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The typically tidy Ram or Ewe might want to butt out until things are settled on the home front. But get involved and let your Ovine sense of order help restore domestic tranquility.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's flair for fine-tuning complicated fiscal dealings comes in handy when an unexpected financial problem arises. Stay with it until it's resolved to your satisfaction.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Family aspects remain strong. There might be some unresolved difficulties, but continued attempts to smooth things over eventually prove to be successful. A major purchase looms.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A promise that was made but never kept suddenly re-emerges in your life. You now have to decide if you're still interested in what it offers or if you've moved past it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Romance comes to unattached Leos and Leonas who have been waiting for Cupid to target them for far too long. Domestic purr-fection is also enhanced for paired Felines.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You need to take a much-needed break from that demanding project before too much energy-draining tension sets in. And don't be ashamed to ask for help.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Change makes demands that you might find unwelcome at this time. But instead of concentrating on the short run, look toward potential benefits down the road.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You have a gift for reviving projects that seem beyond repair. Use that same ability to restore a relationship that seems to have turned from loving to lifeless.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Expect to be asked to use your combined wisdom and humor to resolve a problem. After all, folks not only value your advice, they also like how you give it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Most people consider you solid and steady. But you can also be quite capricious (which is Latin for describing the behavior of Goats) when it suits your needs.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) People treat you as you wish to be treated. So if you want a change in your relationship, make it happen. Also expect someone to reveal some long-held secrets.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Stay with the decision you made, despite a sudden torrent of advice to the contrary from well-meaning people. Remember: You know your needs better than anyone.

BORN THIS WEEK: You like things tidy, with no loose ends. You also enjoy research and would make an excellent investigative reporter or scientist.

Michael DeOssie On Mediterranean Deployment

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Michael A. DeOssie, son of Elizabeth A. Eriksen of Quincy, is on a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea and Arabian

Gulf aboard the aircraft carrier USS Harry S. Truman. Carriers like USS Harry S. Truman are deployed around the world to maintain U.S. presence and provide rapid response in times of crisis.

DeOssie is a 1996 graduate of Boston College High School. He joined the Navy in April 1997.

Project Impact Symposium Lauds Prevention, Teamwork

Audience members at the recent Symposium on Disaster Awareness at the Thomas Crane Public Library listened politely and attentively as Michael Parkin, a consultant with Applied Geographics, detailed Flood Plain mapping and Geographic Information System (GIS) development made possible by a fly-over photograph of the city taken in 1998.

But when Parkin set aside "planometric" jargon and, with one computer click, displayed an overhead shot of a section of Sachem St. with enough detail to identify the color and make of cars and the spaces between tree branches, the oohs and aahs of the crowd let him know he'd reached his audience.

"A picture is worth a thousand words," said Parkin, who explained how GIS mapping is being overlaid onto existing maps to create seamless coverage of the city's flood plains and provide new information such as the topography of individual streets and land parcels.

The GIS mapping, an invaluable tool for increased protection from floods, was one of many hazard mitigation efforts undertaken by the city with the financial assistance of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), others being the retrofitting of flood-prone buildings and road elevation along the Squantum Causeway.

Those accomplishments and Quincy's cooperation with federal and state agencies on disaster resistance -- as one of only 80 Project Impact communities across the country -- was celebrated at the symposium, one of the highlights of national "Make An Impact Week."

"Disaster prevention really works best at the local level and Quincy is a great example," said Kenneth Horak, acting regional director of FEMA, one of a panel of guest speakers which also included Stephen McGrail, director of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA); Peter Webber, commissioner of the State Department of Environmental Management (DEM); and Jackie Gardner, area director of the American Red Cross.

"Quincy is a great community partner to work with," said the DEM's Webber, who noted there were 22,000 flood insurance policies in Quincy alone. "We know that the funds we provide to Quincy will be well-spent."

MEMA's McGrail, who reserved special praise for Quincy Emergency Management Director Anthony Siciliano, echoed a common theme that Quincy's disaster resistance success was the result of longstanding public and private involvement.

One example of that cooperation was a disaster resistance brochure, written in both English and Cantonese, created with the help of local businesses under the leadership of the Red Cross' Gardner and Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Mayor James Sheets made welcoming remarks along with Planning Director Richard Meade and Inspectional Services Director Walter White, the co-chairmen of Quincy Project Impact.

The mayor cited flood control success stories at the Strand and on Hollis Avenue and a $7.5 million bond order before the council for sewer and drainage improvements.

"We have ended flooding in areas of Quincy and controlled it in others," Sheets said, adding that even more work was needed to end flooding along the shore and in other areas. "The object is not to help but to cure."

The city's GIS mapping system will not be fully implemented for another two years, said Meade and White, noting that the city has over 800 assessors' maps which must be overlapped with information from the fly-over. However, they both emphasized the potential time savings in terms of zoning or generating targeted mailings.

With the GIS mapping, White said, detecting what properties are in or out of the city's floodplain can be done "in a matter of seconds."

Contests For At-Large, Wards 3, 5, 6 Seats • 35-40% Turnout Seen

Council Races In Spotlight Sept. 11

OPERATION CLEANUP—Sheriff Michael Bellotti and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond teamed with Bellotti's inmate work crew, including Tom Reilly at right, and the Quincy Park Department to clean up litter and overgrowth behind the Martensen Street senior citizen complex. The work will continue through Friday. Story on Page 16.

With the first city council at-large preliminary election in 20 years and three spirited ward council battles, a 35-to-40 percent voter turnout is seen for Tuesday, Sept. 11.

"I believe it will be somewhere between 35 and 40 percent," said City Clerk Joseph Shea.

"The city-wide council at-large preliminary contest plus three good ward races should bring a turnout in that neighborhood."

Six candidates will be nominated for councillor at-large and two each in Wards 3, 5, and 6. They will square off in the final election Nov. 6.

Two years ago with only two preliminary contests in Wards 1 and 6, the turnout was only 24.25 percent.

Eligible to cast ballots Sept. 11 are 52,253 registered voters.

Only two of the 20 candidates on the ballot are women.

With Mayor James Sheets and challenger William Phelan not involved in next Tuesday's action, the city council at-large runoff takes center stage.

But the contests in Wards 3, 5, and 6 for council seats — the one in Ward 3 open — are also generating voter interest.

The at-large field has nine candidates seeking the six nominations for the Nov. 6 final showdown.

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea runs a pre-election test of ballots for the Sept. 11 preliminary election with Ward 6, Precinct 1 inspector Ann Greene and warden Constance Stokinger.

The special attraction here is an open seat, the one Paul Harold is leaving to devote full time as Norfolk County Register of Deeds, to which he was elected last year. Two other incumbents are candidates for re-election.

The council at-large field:

• Timothy P. Cahill, 42, of Grenwood Rd., seeking his eighth term. He is also Norfolk County treasurer.

• Francis X. McCauley, 71, of Manet Ave., running for his third consecutive term. A former four-term mayor, he also previously served as Ward 1 councillor, councillor at-large and as a school committee member.

• Joseph G. Finn, 45, of Williams St., former executive director Father Bill's Place and present executive director of Shelter, Inc., a Greater Boston non-profit agency providing programs and housing for the poor. This

Candidates File Financial Reports Sheets Tops In Fundraising, Spending So Far In Campaign

Campaign finance reports filed Tuesday show that incumbent Mayor James Sheets added significantly to his war chest during the period leading up to the city's preliminary elections Sept. 11.

Sheets, who is seeking an unprecedented seventh term as mayor, is not facing a preliminary election but faces a serious challenger Nov. 6 in School Committeeman William Phelan.

The reports, which had to be filed in the City Clerk's Office at City Hall by 5 p.m. Tuesday, show that Sheets raised $69,018 from January 1 of this year, adding to his campaign fund's previous balance of $24,919.15 for a total of $93,937.15. The mayor reported expenditures of $66,265.79 during the same period, finishing with an ending balance of $27,671.36.

Mayoral challenger Phelan reported $54,137.42 in campaign funds and expenditures of $20,809.18, giving the candidate an ending balance of $33,328.24.

In the councillor-at-large race, where a field of nine will vie for the six top spots in Sept. 11's preliminary elections, the following finance reports were submitted: Denis Tardo, $1,635 in receipts and no expenditures for a $1,635 ending balance;

Jimmy Liang, $7,022 in receipts and $3,391 in expenditures for an ending balance of $3,091; Julie Berberan, $5,745 in receipts and $3,628.15 in expenditures for an ending balance of $2,116.85; Joseph Finn, $15,429.35 in receipts and $9,371.95 in expenditures for an ending balance of $6,057.40; John Keenan, $27,738.47 in receipts and $14,911.56 in expenditures for an ending balance of $12,826.91;

Brian McNamee, $10,668.54 in receipts and $8,320.20 in expenditures for an ending balance of $2,348.34; and Francis McCauley,

Mayor Cites Prior Commitment Phelan Claims Sheets Is Avoiding Debate

By CRAIG SALTERS

News that Mayor James Sheets will be unable to attend a Candidates Night tonight (Thursday) at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School has prompted mayoral challenger William Phelan to accuse the mayor of ducking a debate on the issues.

In response, Sheets said he welcomed debates with his challenger but was unable to attend this particular Candidates Night because of prior commitments which could not be broken. The mayor also said he did not receive an invitation to the event and only learned of it recently.

The Candidates Night, sponsored by the Ward 5 Community Association, will begin at 6:30 p.m. and feature mayoral, councillor at-large, and Ward 5 candi

ACTING GOVERNOR JANE SWIFT, flanked by Mayor James Sheets and Commissioner of Education David Driscoll, delivered the 2001 State of Education Address last Thursday at Quincy High School, reaffirming the state's commitment to the Education Reform Act of 1993 and the use of the MCAS Test as a graduation requirement for high school seniors. "This is the bottom line: we are not giving up on any student," said Swift, who used the address to announce an "Extra Help Guarantee" which would award $1,000 preparation course grants to first semester Grade 12 students who have not passed the MCAS and who have not turned down help already offered in their school districts. ## In State Of Education Address At Quincy High School Swift Promises Financial Aid To Students On MCAS Tests

Acting Governor Jane Swift reaffirmed the state's commitment to education reform and MCAS Tests while promising additional resources to students during her 2001 State of Education Address which took place last Thursday in the Lloyd Hill Center for Performing Arts in Quincy High School.

During her address, which Mayor James Sheets called "another first in education in Quincy," Swift announced that, beginning in September of 2002, $1,000 grants will be made available to Grade 12 students who have not yet passed the MCAS. The grants will help parents pay for preparation courses or other study tools — providing that the student has not refused appropriate programs already offered in his or her school district.

"This is the bottom line: we are not giving up on any student," said Swift, who received several ovations during her remarks.

In addition to the "Extra Help Guarantee," Swift also directed the Department of Education to release $10 million immediately to school districts to fund MCAS extra help programs, whose fates were uncertain, Swift said, given the State Legislature's inability to agree on a state budget for Fiscal Year 2002.

Swift also announced more flexible regulations which would allow private colleges without education schools to train teachers — adding that Williams College and Worcester Polytechnic Institute will be the first to launch new programs under the new regulations — and asked the Legislature to approve $2.5 million from her budget to match the state's most experienced teachers with first-year teachers, with the mentor teachers receiving a stipend for their efforts.

Students who do not pass the MCAS Tests the first time, Swift noted, will have four additional opportunities to take the test.

Swift, who became acting governor April 10 when Governor Paul Cellucci resigned to become the United States Ambassador to Canada, used the address to solidify support for the MCAS Tests, standardized tests which will be a requirement for graduation in Massachusetts beginning with the Class of 2003.

"I want to speak directly to the students and families of the Class of 2003," said

Swift, who addressed more than 400 guests from across the state. "You may be anxious about the test results coming in October, but I want you to know that as your governor and as a mother deeply concerned about education, I am committed to your success. I am confident in it. And I'm putting in place a fair system that provides every possible option and opportunity for you to achieve your high school diploma.

"What's really important here is that your diploma means something. It represents excellence and it will unlock the doors of opportunity."

Speaker of the House Thomas Finneran, who attended the address, said he viewed Swift's proposals as a "spur" to local school systems and at-risk students but said the details of the program required closer examination.

Finneran did voice his approval of Swift's emphasis on the MCAS as a standard for Massachusetts high school students.

"It's a fair test," Finneran said. We'll provide the help but they (the students) have to make the effort."

One audience member who did voice opposition to the MCAS — not the test itself but its use as a "high-stakes" evaluator of students and school systems — was Paul Phillips, president of Quincy Education Association, Inc., which represents the city's teachers.

"It (MCAS) was designed to evaluate curriculum; it's being used to evaluate students, teachers, and school systems," Phillips said. "It's like taking a screwdriver and using it as a hammer.

"What we need to do is stop and figure out what we are doing."

Candidates Night Tonight At Beechwood Knoll

The Ward 5 Community Association will sponsor a Candidates Night tonight (Thursday) from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School located on Fenno St.

Moderator for the event will be Chuck Phelan, former city councillor and current director of Data Processing for the city.

The program will be divided into three segments dealing with contested elections for mayor, councillor at-large, and Ward 5 city councillor.

Due to a scheduling conflict, Mayor James Sheets will be unable to attend the Candidates Night, he said.

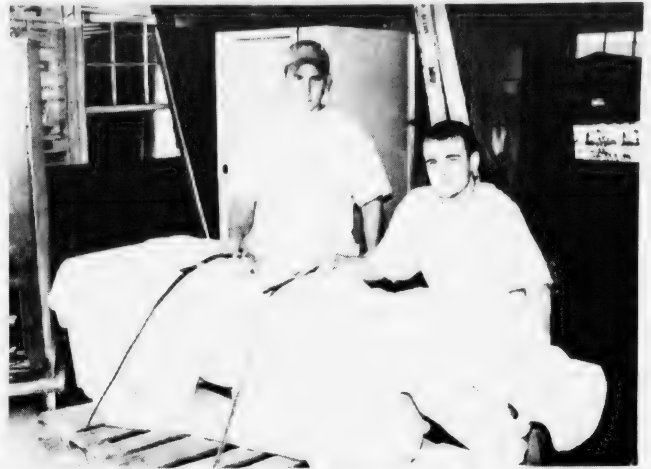

The program will begin with mayoral candidates from 6:30 to 7 p.m.; followed by councillor at-large candidates from 7 to 8:30 p.m.; and ending with the Ward 5 candidates from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Each candidate will be given time for an opening statement followed by a question and answer session and ending with closing statements.

As moderator, Phelan will oversee the forum, enforcing time limits and generally directing the flow of the program.

During the question and answer session, Phelan will choose questions submitted in writing by audience members and ask a candidate to respond. Other candidates can ask for permission from the moderator to respond to a question asked of another candidate and the moderator will have the discretion to allow or refuse responses -- taking into consideration the time constraints of the program.

Contractor for the restoration efforts, which have been estimated at $1 million, was Louis Pasqualucci & Son, Inc., which has recommended that rods be placed atop the church to prevent future lightning strikes.

City Declares Interest In Surplus Land Offered By State

The city has forwarded a letter to the state confirming its interest in the purchase of a seven and one-half acre parcel of land off the Southeast Expressway, once the site of a Howard Johnson's Restaurant.

The letter meets the state's Sept. 10 deadline for expressing preliminary interest in the parcel, which was recently declared surplus land by the Massachusetts Highway Department. A more detailed proposal will be developed in the future.

"The basic issue is how do you protect that acreage," said Mayor James Sheets, explaining that the state is not bound by the city's zoning of the property as open space. If the state desired, the mayor said, the land could be developed for such uses as a salt barn for state DPW crews or a state police barracks.

Although suggestions have been made to turn the land into a park or much-needed cemetery space, Sheets said he agreed with residents of Wesson and Thurston Avenues who recently petitioned his office to maintain the site as open space.

"They very much want the area to remain as it is," said Sheets, who said the parcel provides a much needed buffer for residents from both the sights and sounds of the adjacent highway.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 8, 1565, in Florida, Spanish explorer Pedro Menéndez de Avilés founds San Augustin, which would later become Saint Augustine — the oldest city in North America.

• On Sept. 4, 1781, in an unassuming settlement near San Gabriel, Calif., 44 Spanish settlers settle on a name for their tiny town: El Pueblo de Nuestra Señora la Reina de Los Angeles de Porciuncula. Shortened to Los Angeles, the town eventually became the second largest city in the United States.

• On Sept. 3, 1783, the American Revolution comes to an official end with the signing of the Treaty of Paris. American independence was recognized by the British, and the boundaries of the new republic were agreed upon: Florida north to the Great Lakes, and the Atlantic coast west to the Mississippi River.

• On Sept. 6, 1847, writer Henry David Thoreau moves in with Ralph Waldo Emerson and his family in Concord, Mass., after living for two years in a shack that he built himself on Walden Pond.

• On Sept. 9, 1956, rock 'n' roll superstar Elvis Presley first appears on "The Ed Sullivan Show." Television viewers across the nation responded enthusiastically to his good looks, dynamic stage presence and catchy synthesis of rhythm and blues and country and western.

• On Sept. 5, 1972, on the 11th day of the 20th Olympiad, held in Munich, Germany, members of the Black September faction of the Palestinian Liberation Army infiltrate the Olympic Village and attack the Israeli compound. Two Israeli athletes were killed and nine were taken hostage.

• On Sept. 7, 1986, Bishop Desmond Tutu becomes the archbishop of Cape Town, two years after winning the Nobel Peace Prize for his nonviolent opposition to apartheid in South Africa. As archbishop, he was the first black to head South Africa's Anglican church.

Those Long Election Counts

City Clerk Joseph Shea expects to have the Sept. 11 preliminary election results all wrapped up by 9:30 p.m. that night.

That's only an hour and a half after the polls close.

A far cry from the days of the paper ballot elections when it wasn't unusual for a precinct or two to straggle in at 8 or 9 a.m. the following morning.

Quincy's present opti-scan system and whizzing modern computers make vote counting pretty much a breeze.

But waiting into the next morning for a couple of precincts wasn't too bad, really, compared with Quincy's Plan E days.

Sometimes it could take all week to find out who was elected.

Quincy operated under Plan E from 1950 to 1957 with a city manager and not the mayor running the city as chief executive.

It was like a stormy political marriage with advocates of that plan and those of Plan A bickering through a seven-year itch.

Plan E came in on a referendum and went out the same way.

The mayor back then was like the city council president today and, in fact, was elected mayor by his council colleagues. He was also the city greeter.

Instead of today's nine, (six ward, three at-large), there were seven city councillors, all elected at-large and six school committee members.

The method of voting was by proportional representation known as PR and was quite complicated.

In the first Plan E election in November, 1949 there were 59 candidates for the seven council seats and 15 for the six on the school committee.

By the PR method, voters made their selections in numerical order. They could, if they wanted, vote for all 59 council candidates and all 15 school committee candidates by numbering their preferences 1 to 59 and 1 to 15.

If their first choice candidates didn't make it, they could keep their second choice in the running.

In this election, a quota to win was set at 3,612 first choice votes.

BURGIN

The vote counting started the following morning. Thomas Burgin, former mayor, was the only one elected on the first count. He had 5,934 votes -- 2,322 more first choice votes than needed to meet the quota.

Those extra 2,322 votes then went into a lottery and allotted to candidates who were the voters' second choice.

Amelio Della Chiesa and Edna Austin were declared winners on the 46th count and Alfred Helfrich on the 47th.

Three who didn't make the quota were declared winners as having the next highest votes: Carl Anderson (3,531), Frank Orcutt (3,473) and David Crowley (3,167).

All of this took six days after the election.

The school committee counting was then started and took two days to complete. Elected, in order of their vote, were Dominic Chiminello, William Anderson, Dennis Ryan, A. Wendell Clark, Annie B. Forsyth and Ethel Wiley.

So, it took eight days after the election to learn who would be serving on the city council and school committee.

When Quincy returned to Plan A in 1957, Della Chiesa was elected mayor with today's strong powers, defeating Laurence Curtin.

Those results were known sometime that election night.

And vote counting has gotten better and faster ever since.

DELLA CHIESA

CITY-WIDE preliminary elections have been pretty scarce in Quincy in recent times.

The nine-candidate city council at-large race Sept. 11 will be the first for that office in 20 years.

The last preliminary election year in Quincy was 1989 for mayor and the school committee.

In 1981 there was a field of 10 candidates for council at-large in that year's preliminary election.

The three winners in the final election in order were: former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, newcomer Richard Koch, Jr., and Patricia Toland, only the second woman to be elected to the council in the city's history.

Toland edged veteran John Quinn who served 24 years as a councillor at-large.

In that same election was a new political figure on his way up: Tim Cahill, who finished fifth in the field of six candidates -- just 280 votes behind Quinn.

There were four contenders for the mayor's office in 1989 when incumbent Frank McCauley decided not to seek re-election after four terms.

The four: James Sheets, former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Councillor Stephen McGrath and developer Peter O'Connell.

Sheets, despite his 16 years as Ward 4 councillor, was considered by many political observers to be a long-shot.

But he and O'Connell won the nominations and Sheets went on to be elected in the final election.

Sheets this year is seeking an historic seventh term -- not bad for a former long-shot -- and is challenged by William Phelan, a school committee member and attorney. And who is considered by some observers as this year's long-shot.

SHEETS

With only two candidates for mayor this year, there will be no preliminary contest for that office. Sheets and Phelan will meet in the final election, Nov. 6.

IT'S A NEW career in a new county for Tracy Wil-son McDermott.

She has left Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Keating's office to join a private law firm in Plymouth.

While an assistant district attorney for two and a half years, she headed up elder abuse cases.

Tracy and Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott were married last May. They met on the campaign trail in 1997 while he was running for the city council and she for the school committee.

McDermott, who decided not to seek a third term in Ward 3, is now executive assistant to Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold.

He hints that he -- and maybe Tracy -- could return to the political scene.

Political Rhetoric On Schools Is Flying

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This is election time again and the political rhetoric is flying. The latest rumor I heard is that we build a new Central Middle School and renovate Quincy High School and Sterling Middle School. Are people aware what a change to the current plan would mean to the city?

Changing the current plan of building a new Quincy High, renovating QHS for Central and then renovating Sterling Middle School could jeopardize the 90 percent reimbursement for the project.

One of the reasons we have an approvable plan for the 90 percent is that we are using an existing school which would be Quincy High School.

Changing the plan would put us at the bottom of the list for reimbursement and would change our reimbursement percentage to 66 percent or less, if the plan would be approved at all. At the lower rate in reimbursement the city couldn't afford to build one new school and renovate the two others. Then where does that leave us?

Another rumored scenario is that we renovate Quincy High, Central and Sterling. Renovating the three schools is also too expensive without the 90 percent, and then you have the logistics of what to do with the students while you're renovating. These three schools need extensive repairs considering Central is 107 years old and QHS and Sterling are close to 80 years old. The kind of repairs needed on these buildings aren't the type you do with students in the building. With old schools you encounter asbestos, lead paint and other toxic substances. Also, no one wants to endure the double sessions that occurred with North Quincy High when they renovated that school in the 1970s.

Some politicians are willing to jeopardize the 90 percent reimbursement and the fate of Quincy High and Sterling Middle in order to get a new Central.

Is that fair to the children who attend the other two schools.

Joanne Dennehy
Adams Shore

One Important Question For The Candidates

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Whether you are a parent of a future Quincy High School student or a taxpayer of our city, now is the time to ask our political candidates their position regarding the building of a new Quincy High and the renovation of QHS for Central Middle.

Some candidates are questioning whether we really need to build a new high school and therefore support renovating both schools at a combined estimated cost of $97,231,434, subject to 66 percent state reimbursement, costing the Quincy taxpayers $33,058,687.

One candidate is even adding to this cost by suggesting the removal of Quincy College from its current location, a school which educates thousands of students, and the renovation of this building to accommodate approximately 100 students enrolled in the Advanced Placement Curriculum program currently housed at Central. This was proposed because her plan to renovate a 107-year old Central building would still leave it unable to accommodate 640 students.

I am not aware of anyone who has calculated these additional renovation costs, but you and I both know, it will be an unnecessary cost to the taxpayer and a waste of our hard earned dollars.

Under the current plan, building a new high school, and renovating the existing QHS for Central Middle, is presently at a combined cost of $77,171,400. However, this plan qualifies for a one-time 90 percent state reimbursement and would cost the taxpayers only $7,717,140. It doesn't take too much effort to figure out which is the better deal, just do the math. We could have a new state-of-the-art high school and a beautiful, centrally-located middle school and save $25,341,547.

Whether to build or renovate is the key question here before you and affects all of us young and old. So, before you cast your vote in the September primary, I urge all Quincy taxpayers to ask all the candidates running for office this fall, one important question: Do you support the building of a new Quincy High School and the renovation of its existing building for Central Middle School? You may be surprised at the answer.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Navy Set To Buy Squantum Gardens

By PAUL HAROLD

Navy officials took the first step toward the purchase of the 150-unit Squantum Gardens (Wherry Housing) with the hiring of a New York real estate consulting company. The New York firm would value the property and draw up a plan on financing the operation of the project.

The housing was privately owned, but recent raises in rents caused by increased city taxes prompted the Navy to acquire the property.

If owned by the Navy, the city could not levy taxes, resulting in savings to Naval personnel. It was also planned that under Navy ownership, rents would not be levied, but rather a standard rental allowance would be deducted from Navy personnel's pay.

NEW HOSPITAL WING BLOCKS PLANE SPOTTING

The cupola atop Quincy City Hospital, the highest vantage point in the city, would have to be abandoned by the Ground Observation Corps, following the construction of the new wing.

Hospital Director Dr. Joseph Leone said the observation corps would have to find a new location next week since their view of the ocean was blocked by the new building.

A clear view of the ocean was needed by the observation corps to spot low-flying planes that ducked under radar surveillance.

GOP COMMITTEE DISTRIBUTES GIBBONS STICKERS

The city's Republican City Committee, under the direction of chairman Kendall Mills, began the distribution of more than 5,000 Charles Gibbons stickers for the upcoming primary election.

Gibbons was a last minute nominee of the GOP's State Committee for the Republican nomination for governor following the death of Attorney General George Fingold. It was too late to remove Fingold's name from the ballot so Gibbons had to run on stickers state-wide.

Meanwhile, adding further confusion to the situation was the sticker campaign by the supporters of former DPW Commissioner John Volpe. Democrats were urged to use Volpe stickers on the Democratic ballot to show their disfavor with the Furcolo administration, while Republicans were urged to support Volpe as the best candidate to replace Fingold.

QUINCY-ISMS

NQHS football coach Jack Donahue predicted that the new school boundaries would favor the school's sports programs in the future. The new boundaries captured only two players who otherwise would have played for Quincy High: Bill Tedrow and Roy Johnson, both who played at Central Junior High School last year. . . The school enrollment stood at 13,593, an increase of 78 over last year. . . After a week of pumping, the water level at Lower Fallon Quarry was reduced by 35 feet in an attempt to find the body of a recent drowning victim. . . Tom Burke was a candidate for state representative in Wards 3, 4, 5 and 6. . . Frank Bellotti of Montclair was a candidate for Norfolk County District Attorney. . . A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Page of Lowe St. . . Dingwell Real Estate advertised a 4-5 room bedroom house in Wollaston for $21,500. . . Mr. and Mrs. Reay Sterling, Jr. were on a wedding trip to Bermuda. . . John Sharkey was installed as the 65th Grand Knight at the Quincy Knights of Columbus. . . Pirates Cove, a boat nightclub tied up at Neponset River in Quincy, was under new management. . . Baton twirling classes as the Quincy Conservatory cost 75 cents. . . QHS teacher Ellis Swartz was named evening school principal. As evening school principal, Swartz received 75 cents more than an evening school teacher. . . The school committee made a salary adjustment of $50 for Broad Meadows JHS Assistant Principal William Phinney. . . The city council's finance committee authorized the mayor to borrow $800,000 for the construction of the west of the tracks project in Quincy Center and for the construction of parking in Norfolk Downs. . . City Council President James McIntyre called for a public hearing on the west of the tracks projects because of the fear of small businessmen that the new development would not benefit the general business district. . . Peter Macdonald announced that the Young Democrats would meet at the North Quincy bungalow.

One highlight of the graduation ceremony was the presentation of the Mother St. John Fontbonne Award to alumna Sr. Katherine Shea, M.M.M., Class of 1969, a native of Quincy, who has been involved in missionary work for more than three decades.

In introducing Sr. Katherine, Sr. Marilyn McGoldrick, CSJ, president of Fontbonne Academy, praised Sr. Katherine's lifelong commitment to serving and said that a favorite phrase of Sr. Katherine's was reflective of her life path: "Risk more than others think is safe. Care more than others think is wise. Dream more than others think is practical. Expect more than others think is possible."

Originally from Squantum, Sr. Katherine entered the Medical Missionaries of Mary the year following her graduation from Fontbonne Academy.

The Medical Missionaries of Mary are a community of women religious established in 1937 by Mother Mary Martin (Marie Helena Martin), an Irish woman in Nigeria who saw the need for medical care in Africa, particularly for women and children.

Tobin Towers Luncheon Celebrates Housing Program

The first anniversary of the city's participation in the state's Supportive Housing Program was celebrated recently with a luncheon at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., for 200 residents, guests, and local officials.

The meal was served by the North Quincy High School Pride Program and the youth of the Quincy Park and Recreation Department. Entertainment was provided by the chorus of Central Middle School.

Marc Slotnick, director of Public Housing, Department of Housing and Community Development, made remarks at the luncheon, speaking of the growing need to respond to the difficulties elders were experiencing as they continue to live longer. The quality of life of seniors, Slotnick warned, was not keeping pace with the quantity of years.

Last year Quincy Housing Authority was selected as the fourth local housing authority in Massachusetts to establish a supportive housing assisted-living type program in state subsidized housing. The Executive Office of Elder Affairs and the Department of Housing and Community Development created the program to provide elders with a more supportive housing environment.

The program is designed to provide an environment similar to an assisted living setting. The program enables residents to access scheduled and unscheduled services 24 hours a day, establishes an on-site care plan, and provides a nutrition program and a supportive housing coordinator.

South Shore Elder Services manages the program at Quincy Housing Authority's Tobin Towers in conjunction with the Quincy Housing Authority.

Massachusetts is now providing 22 Supportive Housing Programs across the Commonwealth in its attempt to address the growing demand for affordable assisted living type programs for elders in public housing.

Watercolor Workshop At Beechwood Center Sept. 10

Michael Domina, artist and prize winning exhibitor, will instruct a six-hour Water Color Workshop at Beechwood on the Bay Sept. 10.

"We have long awaited offering this special workshop with Michael Domina," said Sharron Beals, executive director at Beechwood.

"The class will be limited in size in order for the instructor to provide individual instruction. Some watercolor background will be helpful."

Cost for the workshop, to be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., is $40. Pre-registration is required. Telephone contact cannot secure reservation.

TOOTH WHITENING COMES TO LIGHT

Many factors combine to compromise tooth whiteness. Tobacco and certain foods and drinks are the primary culprits in causing stained teeth. Fortunately, there is a quick and effective deep tooth-whitening process available — laser tooth whitening. The procedure begins with an application of gel to the teeth. When energized by a special laser, the gel acts as a catalyst to whiten enamel. Two different lasers are usually used in this process. The argon laser, which emits a visible blue light, is first used to activate the whitening gel. It is absorbed by the dark stains. The CO<sub>2</sub> laser, which emits invisible infrared energy, is used to achieve deeper penetration and further whitening. Only one treatment is usually required.

Your smile is the first thing others notice about you. Tooth whitening has been performed successfully on millions of patients like yourself. We provide quality dental care in a warm and caring environment to all family members. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We'll be happy to discuss all of your dental needs with your or any member of your family. Your oral health requirements, from restorative to cosmetic considerations, will be met with the latest available technology by our caring staff. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesia and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. On average, patients can expect laser tooth whitening to whiten their teeth by two to three shades.

City's CDBG Efforts Earn National Award

The city of Quincy was one of only six winners nationwide of the first John A. Sasso National Community Development Awards competition in recognition of the city's commitment to community development.

The award was given by the National Community Development Association (NCDA), a national non-profit organization based in Washington, D.C., which is comprised of more than 500 cities, 45 counties, and four states that administer federally supported community development, affordable housing, economic empowerment, and human service programs that benefit primarily those of low and moderate incomes.

In presenting the award in Corpus Christi, TX, at its recent 2001 annual conference, NCDA officials said Quincy was being recognized because of "its commitment, not only to administering an outstanding CDBG program, but its efforts to showcase that program during National Community Development Week by involving its citizens, its non-profit community, the local media, the participation of the mayor and city council, HUD, and, most importantly, its congressional delegation."

Chandra Western, executive director of the NCDA, said, "This award is being presented to those communities that demonstrated their commitment, passion, and dedication to the CDBG (Community Development Block Grant) program especially through their Community Development Week activities."

Principal Planner Angelito Santos accepted the award on behalf of the city.

"The level of CDBG funding is dependent on the president and Congress who make budgetary decisions based in large measure on the public's understanding of the value of this program to communities across the nation," said Santos. "It is therefore incumbent upon those who administer CDBG programs to make people better informed about the positive effects such federal funds have on the lives of low and moderate-income persons and in eliminating slums and blighted conditions."

Planning Director Richard Meade agreed. "Most people who directly or indirectly benefit from CDBG funded programs or projects are not even aware of this HUD program," Meade said.

To address the situation, the city has published newsletters, produced videos, shown displays, sponsored panel discussions, given awards, conducted tours to project sites and ribbon cuttings, and funded events to present the public the many programs, projects, and activities that are funded with CDBG.

The National Community Development Week campaign began in 1986 under the leadership of John A. Sasso, NCDA's founder and then executive secretary. Recognizing the unfavorable environment for domestic programs and the serious threat to the CDBG program at the time, Sasso became convinced that Congress and the general public needed to be better informed of the importance of the CDBG program to communities across the country.

NCDA therefore sponsored a National Community Development Week to encourage those who benefit from the CDBG program to communicate with their congressional representatives and their locally elected officials what impacts CDBG funds make on people's lives.

To recognize John Sasso for his lifelong achievements in community development and the role he played in the genesis of National Community Development Week, NCDA created the award in his name.

The city of Quincy receives about $2.5 million in CDBG funds each year. The grant supports housing rehabilitation, public works and facilities improvements, public services, affordable housing, economic development, and other community development programs.

For more information about CDBG or other rehabilitation programs, contact the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock St., 3rd Floor, Quincy 02169 or call (617) 376-1362.

ANGELITO SANTOS, principal planner for the city, accepts the John A. Sasso National Community Development Award at the National Community Development Association's (NCDA) annual conference in Corpus Christi, TX. The city was one of only six communities so recognized for its "commitment, passion, and dedication" to the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program. With Santos are, from left: Chandra Western, NCDA executive director; David Thompson, NCDA president; John Sasso, NCDA founder; and Romulus Johnson, an NCDA staff member.

Lions Club Installs New Officers, Honors Two

The Quincy Lions Club recently installed its new officers for 2001-2002 at a dinner at the Neighborhood Club.

The new officers are: John Pickering, president; Christine Cedrone, first vice president; David Sawyer, second vice president; Youssef Abdouh, treasurer; Jennifer McCauley Logue, secretary; Elaine duJardin, tail twister; and Ailina McNamara, lion tamer.

The installations were conducted by Lions Club District Governor Bette Purvis, Cabinet Secretary Treasurer Dick Stein and Regional Chair John Burke.

dedication and service during their 2000-2001 terms of office.

Past President John Reed also presented a check for $25,619 to Thomas Crane Library Director Ann

McLaughlin. The donation—the largest in club's history—will fund the Lions Club's Vision With A Purpose Room in the library's new addition. As a result of the Lions Club donation, McLaughlin noted, the library now offers special assistive technology that enables blind and visually-impaired persons to read books, use reference materials and find their way around the new library.

A highlight of the installation dinner was the presentation of two Melvin Jones Fellow awards to longtime club members Thomas Williams and Don Uvanitte. Presented by previous recipients Francis X. McCauley and Dr. James Will, the Melvin Jones Fellow Award is the highest honor a Lion Club member can earn. In order to be considered for the award, a Lion Club member must have 15 years of club membership, have served as club president, brought at least two new members into the club and be active in both club activities and in community affairs.

McCauley noted that Uvanitte, who was unable to attend the dinner, was presented with his Melvin Jones Award at the Quincy Lions Club's recent awards luncheon, at which both Uvanitte and Roger Ham were presented with Memberships to the club.

With more than 1.2 million members around the world, Lions Clubs International is the largest service organization in the world.

The Quincy Lions Club, established in 1941, is currently considering its 60th anniversary. Through such fundraising events as the club's annual pancake breakfast and Run/Walk for Sight, the Quincy Lions Club raises thousands of dollars each year for eye research, scholarships to local high school students, donations to help blind or visually-impaired residents and other worthwhile community projects.

It's Time to Choose a Fighter For the People of Ward 3.

Jack Garland learned early in life that you have to be willing to fight hard for the things you value. Raised with his three brothers in a single-parent home in Dorchester, Jack worked his way through Catholic Memorial High School and Boston College. Later on -- with a decade of private sector experience -- Jack continued his education, successfully pursuing a law degree at night while working full time and helping to raise his family.

Jack Garland will use those same qualities that enabled him to confront life's challenges head on -- tenacity, discipline and hard work -- to help make Ward 3 a better place to live.

Durkin Endorsed By Quincy Firefighters Union

The Quincy Firefighters Association, Local 792 announces its unanimous endorsement of the candidacy of Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin in his campaign for re-election.

In a statement making the endorsement, OFFA President William Arienti cited Durkin's "open door policy and willingness to listen to all sides of an issue" and Durkin's efforts to insure Ward 5 residents "a continued level of protection from fire as well as rapid response of emergency medical services from the Quincy Fire Department."

"Over the past many years," continued Arienti, "you have consistently proven yourself not only as an advocate for the fire service and their many concerns, but as someone who has shown a genuine dedication to the efforts of public safety of the citizens of the City of Quincy as well."

McNamee Lists More Union Endorsements

Brian McNamee, candidate for city councillor at-large, announces he has received additional union endorsements.

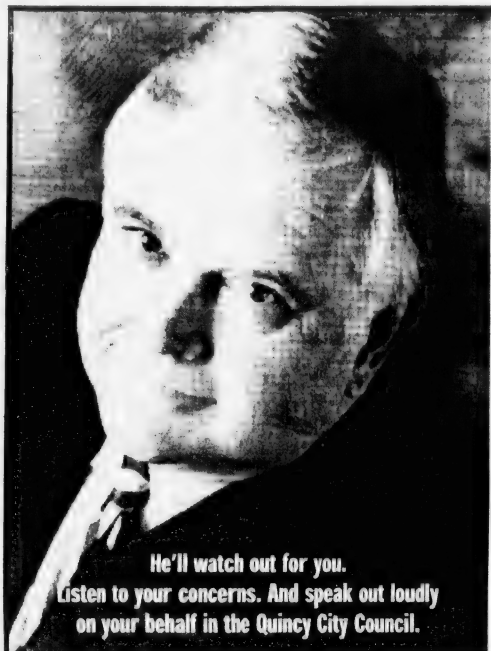

The latest endorsements are:

Plumbers & Gasfitters Local 12, Boston; Roofers & Waterproofers Local Union 33, Graphic Communications International Union (GCIU) Local 600-48M, Allied Printing Trades Council-Boston, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, Boston Lodge 264 and Tunnel Workers Local 88.

"We have actively reached out to labor throughout the campaign and we're particularly pleased to get the support of so many unions in the final days of the campaign," McNamee said. "I'm honored by the words of support contained in each endorsement."

"Some endorsements made specific reference to the dedication and work ethic my organization has shown throughout the campaign. To get this type of recognition, for me, is something special. I receive these comments with pride because I want the voter to know this is how I intend to serve them if I'm fortunate enough to be elected."

He'll watch out for you.
Listen to your concerns. And speak out loudly on your behalf in the Quincy City Council.

Everett Pope 1937 Graduate

Medal Of Honor Recipient To Visit NQHS Alma Mater

Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Everett P. Pope, a 1937 graduate of North Quincy High School will return to the school Thursday, Sept. 13 to visit with current students.

The World War II Marine Veteran, now a resident of Florida, will be in the area for the Congressional Medal of Honor Society's annual convention in Boston Sept. 12-16. He will be at North Quincy High School Sept. 13 from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

North Quincy is on of 10 selected schools in the Greater Boston area that Medal of Honor recipients will visit while in Boston for the convention.

Purpose of the visits is to give students an opportunity to meet true heroes and to inspire them to develop strong character and leadership skills.

Pope received the Medal of honor for heroism in the invasion of Peleliu in the Pacific where he also saw action at Guadalcanal, and Cape Gloucester.

In addition, the Medal of Honor, he also received the Bronze Star with Combat V for meritorious action.

Born in Milton in 1919 and after attending Quincy public schools, he graduated with honors from Bowdoin College in 1941.

EVERETT POPE

He then entered the U.S. Marine Corps and was commissioned as a second lieutenant with the 1st Marine Division.

After World War II, Pope entered the banking industry and became president of Workmen's Cooperative Bank. He was briefly recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict in 1950. He retired in 1980. He has been married to NQHS classmate, Eleanor Hawkins, for over 59 years. They have two sons and two grandchildren.

In honor of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society's convention, Boston's community, business and political leaders will host special events. The convention's activities include a memorial service on the USS Constitution, a public reception for Medal of honor recipients at the State House, a Patriotic Concert at the Fleet Boston Pavilion and the Society's Patriot Award Dinner.

The Patriot Award Dinner Friday, Sept. 14, will feature a speaking program and presentation of the Patriot Award to Richard J. Egan, chairman emeritus of EMC Corporation. The "Tex McCrary" Award to Tim Russert, NBC News, and the Bob Hope Award to John McDermott, Celtic tenor.

The Medal of Honor is the highest award for valor an American can earn in combat. Of the millions of men and women who have served the country since the Civil War, only 3,436 have been awarded the Medal of Honor. The medal required "conspicuous gallantry above and beyond the call of duty." Individuals who have earned the Medal of Honor have served in the Civil War, in the Boxer Rebellion, in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and more recently in Somalia. Officers, enlisted pilots, medics, corpsmen and chaplains are recipients of this prestigious medal. In many cases, the recipients gave their lives, in all cases they made personal sacrifices and displayed selfless courage to save the lives of others.

The Congressional Medal of Honor Society is still open to sponsorships to participate in the Scholarship Foundation. Those interested area asked to contact Deborah Heffan at Conventures, Inc., 617-439-7700.

If you think change happens by accident . . . YOU'RE WRONG!

Our city streets and sidewalks are in need of repair. It could happen . . . all that is missing is the political initiative to change. Many running in the race for Councillor-at-Large have already proven themselves incapable of effecting such change.

You, the voter, have the ultimate power to change. You can vote for the leadership, the initiative for change, or . . . you can let things stay the way they are. The choice is yours.

Classic India Restaurant To Open In Quincy Center

A new restaurant called Classic India, featuring Indian food will open soon at the site of the Quincy Cinema, 1591 Hancock St.

The common victualer and beer and wine license was granted Tuesday by the License Board to Bhav Jyoti Inc pending the successful completion of work on the chimney, and a food management course to be taken by the owner which is held at the Thomas Crane Library. The six hour course has to be taken before Oct. 1. An exam will be given at the end of the course.

Atty. William Goldberg of Cambridge, representing

Joyti, told the board that the 2500 square foot eatery will have various entrees. He presented a menu to the board which featured foods ranging from lamb and beef curry, to vegetarian dishes such as vegetable karma, tandori chicken, marinated in yogurt and spices, seafood grill with lobster and scallops, chicken tikka masala, Indian cafe duck and many desserts with home made cheese pastries, mango ice cream and pista Kulfi, an exotic ice cream from India made with saffron, almonds and pistachios.

They will also specialize in many kinds of breads from unleavened bread to whole wheat and a unleavened bread stuffed with dried fruits, shredded coconut and potatoes baked in a clay oven.

They also will be catering to any function large or small. Smaller groups can hold their gatherings at the restaurant. They will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

In the past several years, according to Chairman Joseph Shea, the restaurant has had many owners ranging from Stage Door, Hollywood Hollywood and more recent L'Imatore.

Dear Neighbors:

Please consider my application for the position of your City Councillor. I believe I am well qualified to assume the many and varied responsibilities of the position, and well prepared to perform the required duties in an excellent manner. I have enclosed my resume for you to review at your convenience

Individual issues come and go, but the fundamental challenge to any City Councillor is oversight of the efficient and effective application of public funds (your money) for legitimate public purposes. He or she must balance your needs for public services with your willingness to pay property taxes.

Over the past several years, our property taxes have increased substantially (far above the inflation rate) while the condition of the public roads has declined markedly. At the same time, tens of millions of your money and property have been transferred to private entities (Quarry Hills, the shipyard, Squantum Gardens). It all adds up to poor oversight of your municipal government.

I will be mailing each of you a detailed explanation of my observations and plans. I believe I can do better. I promise to do my best!

Sincerely,
Patrick

It Will Now Be The Joseph LaRaia Summerfest Concert Series

The season finale of this year's Summerfest Concert Series at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater last Wednesday marked the end of Joseph LaRaia's 19 years as its coordinator.

"It was an amazing experience," said LaRaia, who has run the program since its inception in 1983 when concerts were held outside of City Hall. "It was difficult getting the program off the ground and I really didn't know if it would take off, but things eventually fell into place."

LaRaia, who authorized the construction of the amphitheater in 1976 during his tenure as mayor, credited the many people who made the free concert series a success over the years. He singled out John Bonomi, a West Quincy mason who donated his time and talents with others to complete the amphitheater in 1983 after the project had seen much delay.

The amphitheater was officially dedicated Nov. 10, 1984, with the participation of Ruth Gordon, marking her last visit to her home city prior to her death in 1985.

JOSEPH LARAIA (left), former mayor and the coordinator of the Summerfest Concert Series since its inception in 1983, receives a citation recognizing his efforts from Mayor James Sheets at last Wednesday's final concert of the season. LaRaia recently announced his retirement as coordinator for the event, which has been renamed the Joseph J. LaRaia Summerfest Concert Series. (Presidential Camera photos/John Black)

LaRaia recalled the many successes of the concert series, including the booking of noted jazz singer Rebecca Paris during the beginning stages of her career, but said he was most proud of the example the concert series set for the local, family-oriented events that were to follow such as Quincy First Night.

"When we started, there was a big vacuum (for such activities) but it's amazing how its changed," said LaRaia, noting the creation of the city's office of Tourism and Special Events headed by Rhonda Merrill and the growth of such events as Arts in the Park.

One highlight of Wednesday's concert, which was performed by the Continentals, was the donation of $1,000 to the Stephen Owen Kenney Scholarship Fund to honor Kenny, a young boy who died last year at the age of eight. On hand for the donation were the boy's mother Carol Trainor and grandfather Owen Trainor, the architect who designed the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater.

Another highlight of the event came when Mayor James Sheets, who attended the concert and presented LaRaia with a citation recognizing his 19 years of service to the concert series, announced that the event would be renamed The Joseph J. LaRaia Summerfest Concert Series.

"It really took me by surprise," said LaRaia of the mayor's attendance at the concert and the subsequent honor.

Cain Assures Equal Representation For Ward 3 Residents, Businesses

Ward 3 city council candidate John Cain is assuring residents and businesses of all five precincts that they will receive equal representation if he is elected.

Cain said he will establish precinct relationships by setting up separate meetings in each precinct at nearby schools or churches.

"Each precinct group will establish issues, concerns and goals on a consensus basis," Cain said.

Cain said he plans to report all precinct issues, plans and goals through a monthly newsletter, his web site, and local radio, newspapers and cable television.

Cain said he also has committed and offered local businesses in Ward 3 the opportunity to identify, plan and implement goals that can assist them and residents.

Cain said he has been meeting with Ward 3 businesses to assure them of his goal to assist them to identify other resources available on the local, state and federal level associated with funding, to improve or enhance their businesses.

"I am sure that there are other vehicles similar to the Quincy 2000 model that may assist some of the small businesses in Ward 3, not limited by current boundaries," Cain said.

He said he would like to see West Squantum Street, Newport Avenue, Beale Street, Adams Street, Hancock Street, Whitwell Street, School Street and Quarry Street benefit from government programs as well.

"Some of the Ward 3 business owners that I met with described their frustration with the lack of support from currently available resources," he said.

Cain said he also plans to work with the Mayor's office to expand the funding sources for Ward 3 businesses.

Report Shows Norfolk County Top Retirement System In State

In the recently released PERAC Annual Report 2000, the Norfolk County Retirement System came in as the top ranked county or regional retirement system in the state.

In a year that was described in the PERAC report as "one of the most difficult periods in memory for the capital markets," Norfolk County earned a 5.53 percent return that ranked 20th overall among 106 retirement systems in Massachusetts.

Board chairman and Norfolk County Treasurer Tim Cahill said strong returns in such a difficult market was due to the decision to diversify its asset allocation three years ago.

"Rather than being lulled into chasing the over-heated large cap domestic equity market, we instead chose to diversify our portfolio with a mix of investment grade bonds, real estate, and small and mid-cap equities, both domestic and international," Cahill said.

That strategy paid dividends in 2000 as the "technology bubble" burst, sending the NASDAQ Composite Index plunging into a worst ever return of -39.3 percent and the S&P 500 down -9.1 percent, its worst performance since 1997.

According to the PERAC report, "the systems that were hurt the most last year were those that were over-exposed to large caps, growth stocks, or 'new economy stocks.' Systems that maintained a healthy allocation to fixed income despite that asset class's lackluster performance in recent years were handsomely rewarded in their patience in 2000."

In an attempt to further diversify away risk and growth assets, the Norfolk County Retirement Board recently voted on a new asset allocation that increases its commitment to international equity markets as well as private equity. In addition, the board is currently seeking approval from PERAC to become the first Massachusetts public pension fund to invest in hedge funds.

"In order to protect the retirement assets from continued market volatility, we are looking into strategies where we can benefit when the market goes down as well as when it goes up," Cahill said.

The board is currently awaiting approval from PERAC to invest in two hedge fund strategies: market neutral and convertible arbitrage.

Streets, Large Borrowings, Major Concerns, Says McCauley

City Councillor at-large Francis McCauley says the condition of city streets and sidewalks and large city borrowings in recent months are major concerns of residents.

McCauley said he encountered those concerns while campaigning for reelection door-to-door throughout the city.

McCauley said he has visited 2,200 residences in the past several weeks alone and plans to continue these visits throughout the fall.

Many of the concerns voiced, he said, centered around the fears of Quincy citizens that they would be forced to move out of the city because of their inability to keep up with higher taxes and escalating housing costs.

McCauley, who has served as the chairman of the Council Finance Committee for the past two years, said he was pleased to discover that in many cases, the residents were aware of his efforts to control runaway spending and urged him to "keep up the good work."

Many citizens, he said, were upset at the condition of streets and sidewalks at a time when the economy should have allowed for repairs and resurfacing.

During 1998 and 1999 McCauley served as chairman of the Council Hospital Committee and worked with the city administration and hospital officials to keep Quincy Hospital open as Quincy Medical Center.

McCauley served as the city's mayor from 1982 to 1989. It was his administration that filed the lawsuit against the MDC which led to the clean-up of Quincy Bay.

McCauley stresses his experience in government over the years as a major reason to be re-elected to another two-year term.

Womansplace Crisis Center To Start Quincy Support Group

Womansplace Crisis Center, a program of Health Care of Southeastern Mass., Inc., is starting a support group in Quincy for survivors of sexual assault beginning today (Thursday).

The program meets from 4 to 5:30 p.m. for eight consecutive weeks. The group will deal with past and present issues around sexual assault in a safe, supportive environment.

Services are free and confidential.

Cain Will Propose More Efficient Reporting And Compliance Of High Point Project

Ward 3 City Councillor Candidate John Cain has assured all residents, if elected City Councillor, he will closely monitor the High Point Developers Compliance to all stipulations agreed to and required.

Cain also plans to report the status through Quincy Access TV, a monthly newsletter, his website, local radio and newspapers.

Cain said, "The fact remains, this is a contaminated dump-site, that requires the careful conversion and clean-up, to assure resident health and safety."

CAIN RECEIVES LOCAL 103 UNION ENDORSEMENT

Ward 3 City Councillor Candidate John Cain has received his third union endorsement.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which are made up of Electricians and Telecommunications Workers, have unanimously voted to endorse the candidacy of John Cain for Ward 3 City Councillor in the coming election.

Cain said, "I was comfortable meeting with the executive leadership. The questions were fair and reasonable. I appreciate the confidence that the union has regarding my commitment to represent and support working people trying to make a living."

The Boston Carmen's Union Local 589 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, and the International Association of Machinist and Aerospace Workers Lodge 264 also endorsed Cain recently.

Council Races In Spotlight Sept. 11

is his second bid for councillor at-large.

• Dennis F. Tardo, 51, of Rock Island Rd., a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars and a real estate broker. He has run in the past for state representative and the city council.

• John F. Keenan, 37, of Hobomack Rd., Financial Coordinator for the Norfolk County Advisory Board and former executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets. This is his first run since 1987 when he won the second nomination by one vote in Ward 5 and lost to Charles Phelan in the final election.

• Brian F. McNamee, 44, of Commander Shea Blvd., chief financial officer for the South Essex Sewerage District and a former candidate for the Ward 6 council seat.

• Robert J. Boussy, 46, of Farrington St., who ran for mayor two years ago and has also been a candidate for the Ward 3 council seat.

• Julie A. Berberan, 41, of Riverview St., homemaker and environmental advocate, making her first run for office. She is the only woman in the council at-large race. The last and only the third woman to serve on the city council was the late Patricia Toland who left in 1993 to become assistant city clerk.

• Jimmy Liang, 24, of Quarry St., Quincy restaurant owner, a candidate for the first time for elective office.

Four contenders seek the Ward 3 council seat incumbent Patrick McDermott decided to leave after being named executive assistant to Norfolk County Register of Deeds Paul Harold.

The four:

• Kevin F. Coughlin, 46, of Small St., assistant chief probation officer at Middlesex Probate and Family Court and president of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association. He has run previously for the school committee.

• John C. Cain, Jr., 55, of South Central Ave., president of a computer products and network solutions firm that bears his name. He ran two years ago against McDermott.

• David McGillicuddy, 60, of Elmwood Ave., retired manager external affairs/community relations for NYNEX/N.E. telephone. He is chairman of the Ward 3 Democratic Committee.

• John Garland, 41, of Harvard St., an attorney with office in Quincy and an instructor at Quincy College, making his first bid for elective office.

The setting in Ward 5 has the incumbent being pursued by two challengers, both political newcomers.

• Stephen J. Durkin, 45, of Colonial Drive, an attorney, is seeking his fourth term. He previously served on the school committee.

• Douglas S. Gutro, 36, of Marlboro St., a program manager with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and vice chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, is making his first political run.

• James E. Mullaney, III, 40, of Sims Rd., a certified public accountant and a member of the Quincy Medical Center Foundation board of directors. This is his first bid for elective office.

In Ward 6, the incumbent has three challengers.

• Joseph J. Newton, 34, of Atlantic St., is seeking his second term. He is in accounting operations at State Street Bank.

• Patrick Conroy, 44, of Billings St., president of a prostate services company and a per diem emergency nurse at Quincy and Boston Medical Centers. He has previously run for the Ward 6 seat, school committee and state representative.

• Maryann P. Mahony, 62, of Hummock Rd., a customer representative at Boston Gear and president of the Quincy Foundation For Excellence In Education. She was a candidate for the Ward 6 seat two years ago and is one of only two women on the ballot in the Sept. 11 preliminary elections.

• William P. Kiley, III, 43, of Dundee Rd., financial analyst for the Boston Water and Sewer Commission, real estate broker and property management representative.

Quincy's 30 polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Their locations are listed on Page 23.

Dr. Christiann Barnard Remembered As Heart Surgery Pace-Setter

By JOHN NOONAN
Chairman
Quincy Council On Aging

Dr. Christiann Barnard, South African surgeon, who performed the world's first human heart transplant in 1967, was a pace-setter in delicate heart surgery, a procedure that has become standard practice in hospitals the world over.

Dr. Barnard died Sept. 2 at the age of 78. He was internationally renowned for his heart transplant operations which paved the way for other types of heart surgery that today is being carried on in 160 United States hospitals.

As Director of Government Affairs for the Massachusetts Medical Society I had the honor of working with the Massachusetts Heart Association and the Middlesex South District Medical Society in arranging a seminar in Boston in 1968 when Dr. Barnard was the guest speaker.

The occasion brought together a veritable group of Who's Who in cardiology and heart surgery in Massachusetts and America. Attending were President Dwight Eisenhower's personal heart physician Dr. Paul Dudley White, the renowned heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey of Texas, the eminent teaching heart-surgeon Dr. Norman Shumway of Stanford University, and Boston's own heart specialist, Dr. Dwight Harden.

I interviewed Dr. Barnard at the seminar and he told me of the difficulty of winning acceptance in the medical community because his first heart transplant patient lived only 18 days.

Today about 2,100 heart transplants are performed annually in the United States. Because there is a shortage of heart donors surgeons now are testing self-contained artificial hearts and other mechanical devices to keep patients alive until a donor heart becomes available.

During World War II, a US military team of surgeons including Dr. Harken, operated on hundreds of soldiers who were injured in battle by shrapnel embedded in the vicinity of the heart. Surgical techniques were developed resulting in the saving of many lives.

Following years of research a tiny device, the size of a silver dollar, came into being. It's called a pacemaker.

The purpose of the pacemaker is to supply electrical impulses to the heart to maintain a regular heart beat. It consists of a small electronic device and power source connected to the heart by an electrical wire.

Pacemakers are surgically implanted in the shoulder near the heart. Most people have a heart rate of between 60 and 100 beats per minute at rest. The average normal rate is 80 beats per minute.

Once year the pacemaker must be checked by the cardiologists in person to ensure the device is functioning properly. Checks by electronic connections by telephone between one's residence and the doctor's office are done every three months.

As one who has had an implanted pacemaker for almost three years, I find it most unobtrusive and valuable in my every day living.

JOHN NOONAN (left) now chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, met and interviewed in 1968 Dr. Christiann Barnard, the South African surgeon who performed the world's first human heart transplant. Noonan was then director of Government Affairs for the Massachusetts Medical Society.

Proper diet, good nutrition, and exercise are the keys to growing old. The fall is ideal for walking. I look forward to participating, at my own place, in the three 3-k walks this month for worthy causes such as the Degan, Marie Curry and Meals on Wheels walkathons.

On Sunday, Nov. 25, the day of the 49th annual Quincy Christmas Parade, I will walk the three mile Hancock St. line of march beside the Quincy Council on Aging bus.

Seniors have many opportunities in Quincy to participate in exercise and fitness programs. There are also many health education seminars sponsored by the Quincy COA to provide basic tips on health and keeping fit. One of the most popular senior conferences is the 6th annual Quincy Senior Conference to be held Sept. 15 at the Broad Meadows Middle School beginning at 8 a.m.

Dr. Christiann Barnard has done much to increase the longevity of living. We must take advantage of the many services and opportunities available in our everyday life.

Thank you, Dr. Barnard, you have made by life and thousands of other lives more satisfying and productive.

My commitment to the residents of Ward 6.

To be accessible and accountable.

Accessible Returning phone calls and messages in a prompt manner

Accountable Representing the concerns of the Ward 6 residents

Drawing on both my professional and personal experience I will work to ensure our tax money is used in both an efficient and productive manner. There is an ongoing need to improve and maintain our roads, our sidewalks and of course our schools.

The need to leverage private investment, create a more stable economic environment for our residents and bringing an end to a series of bad business decisions is now at hand. When a business struggles they change the management. It is my opinion as we move forward we need to run the City of Quincy more like the Municipal entity that it should be.

I am seeking to replace one member of the Management team.

Issue Permits Or Ban Political Signs, Says Tardo

Denis F. Tardo, candidate for city councilor-at-large said political signs are a visual nuisance and deterrent to the environment and wants an ordinance to control or outright ban on political signage in the city.

"Political signs have outlived their usefulness and should be evaluated as a liability to the city," Tardo said. "The existing temporary sign ordinance is not clearly defined and ultimately not enforceable."

Many questions arise from the wording of the existing ordinance, Tardo said.

"For example, confusion arises when someone wants to put three signs per candidate instead of the maximum three signs per parcel of property. And questions arise as to whether a double-sided sign counts as one or two signs. Although most candidates understand and try to obey the law, many supporters are not aware of the city ordinances and therefore cannot comply with them."

"Temporary signage should include signs, over the size of a bumper sticker, placed on a vehicle. This would eliminate mobile billboard activity. Deliberate disregard and skirting of an ordinance is a violation of decency and an insult to the visual serenity of the environment."

"Many city and towns ban temporary signs outright and we should look at that option. I would also support a strict permitting and compensation ordinance. "Political signs have become an overbearing and ugly blemish, a visible black eye to the neighborhoods throughout the city."

"A simple application and permit fee would financially contribute to the enforcement of such an ordinance. Just look around and multiply those signs by a couple of dollars. We have far more political signs than we have parking meters, police officers, firefighters and teachers."

Tardo also cited what he called the waste involving the use of lumber and materials needed to construct the signs. He said he would be supportive of a "put up a sign, plant a tree" program. This would require candidates to purchase a tree seedling to be planted in the city, for every sign posted, similar to the city's Christmas tree recycling program.

"As I knock on doors, I have been presented with substantial evidence concerning the need for political sign restrictions. The people want aggressive and binding control of this infringement on the environment." "Any action on this initiative would be subject to a public hearing."

Quincy Home Buyer, Local Lending Program Wins HUD Award

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Andrew Cuomo announces that Quincy First Time Home Buyer/Local Lender MOU in Quincy has received HUD's Best Practices Award because it serves as a model for other communities around the country to follow.

Quincy First Time Home Buyer/Local Lender MOU competed with over 2,900 other best practice nominees across the country for regional and program awards and is among over 1,400 finalists for competition at the national level for one of the 100 "Best of the Best" awards to be honored during HUD's 2000 Best Practices and Technical Assistance Symposium.

More than 2,900 nominations were received nationwide in the following categories: Fighting for Fair Housing, Increasing Affordable Housing and Home Ownership, Reducing Homelessness, Promoting Jobs and Economic Opportunity, Empowering People and Communities, and Restoring Public Trust.

Local winners will move forward to compete for both geographical and program category awards. Each of HUD's ten Secretary's Representatives and regional office staff will select 12 of these local winners (total of 120) as geographic or "Simply the Best" winners to be forwarded for competition at the national level.

Nicholas Puleo Wins BC High's O'Neil Award

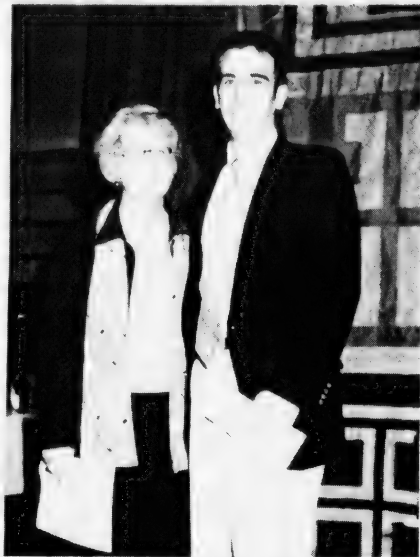

Nicholas Puleo of Quincy, a 2001 graduate of Boston College High School, recently won the Kevin W. O'Neil, '90 Memorial Award at Senior Class Night, an evening set aside to celebrate and reward B.C. High seniors.

The award is given annually to a graduating senior who has overcome adversity to achieve success while at BC High.

Puleo also won the Excellence Award in his Psychology course, naming him the best student in his class. In addition, John McHugh, BC High's choir director, presented Puleo with the Choir Award.

The O'Neil Award honors the memory of Kevin O'Neil, the second of three O'Neil sons to attend BC High, who was stricken by cancer during his junior year. Despite the debilitating effects of the disease and his treatment, O'Neil maintained consistent academic excellence, eventually winning acceptance to Harvard University.

His persistence and cheerful courage despite lengthy hospital stays and painful treatments inspired the love and admiration of the entire BC High community. O'Neil was recognized by his classmates in his senior yearbook "for his valor in facing adversity and triumphing." In that same yearbook, O'Neil offered his own motto: "To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

O'Neil died in 1992 while a student at Harvard. In order to keep the memory of his fighting spirit alive, the O'Neil family established a scholarship in his name for good and deserving students like Puleo who have overcome adversity in their lives.

Puleo also received a matching amount from the BC High Teachers' Association.

$11,792.53 in receipts and $2,361.30 in expenditures for an ending balance of $9,431.23.

The four candidates for Ward 6 city councillor submitted the following reports: Joseph Newton, receipts of $11,556 and expenditures of $6,423.68 for an ending balance of $5,132.48; Patrick Conroy, $7,131.04 in receipts and expenditures for an ending balance of $0; William Kiley III, $3,200 in receipts and $2,837.36 in expenditures for a $362.64 balance; and Maryann Mahony, $3,924.18 in receipts and $1,849.72 in expenditures for an ending balance of $2,074.46.

Reporting in Ward 5 were: Stephen Durkin, $6,566 in receipts and $2,850.42 in expenditures for an ending balance of $3,716.28; Douglas Gutro, $14,394.54 in receipts and $9,787.49 in expenditures for an ending balance of $4,607.05; and James Mullaney III, $17,620 in receipts and $10,216.59 in expenditures for an ending balance of $7,403.41.

were: John Garland, $12,615 in receipts and $6,312.16 in expenditures for an ending balance of $6,302.84; and David McGillicuddy, $11,503.37 in receipts and $8,567.40 in expenditures for an ending balance of $2,935.91.

Also reporting on time were: Bryan Connolly, $26,102.10 in receipts and $10,273.48 in expenditures for an ending balance of $15,828.62; Michael D'Amico, $39,774.21 in receipts and $22,479 in expenditures for an ending balance of $17,294.84; Daniel Raymondi, $75,289.51 in receipts and $1,715.41 in expenditures for an ending balance of $73,574.10; Gregory Hanley, $15,686.34 in receipts and $5,409.59 in expenditures for an ending balance of $10,276.75; JoAnn Bragg, $3,366 in receipts and $997.54 in expenditures for an ending balance of $2,368.46; and Michael McFarland, $12,397.29 in receipts and $1,555.56 in expenditures for an ending balance of $10,841.73.

Candidates also listed in-kind contributions and outstanding liabilities which were not factored into the above figures.

Also, receipts reflect the total amount in a candidate's campaign fund and not the total amount raised in the reporting period. The best example of this is incumbent Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who has raised only $2,773.32 during the reporting period but already had an existing war chest of $72,516.19. Raymondi is running unopposed in the coming elections.

Failing to report by the 5 p.m. deadline were Timothy Cahill, Paul Harold, Robert Boussy, Gretchen Grant, John Cain, Kevin Coughlin, and Ronald Mariano.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said that Harold and Cahill had called to request if they could file their reports prior to the Tuesday night meeting of the City Council. Shea said he allowed the request and would extend the same courtesy to all other candidates who brought their papers in Tuesday night.

If candidates do not submit finance reports by Friday, Shea said, letters would be sent reminding them of their responsibility.

Connolly Receives Six Union Endorsements

Bryan Connolly, candidate for Ward 4 city councillor, announces he has received the endorsements of six local labor unions.

Connolly has been endorsed by the Boston Carmen's Union Local 589, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 2222, Ironworkers Local 7, Machinists Local 264, Plumbers & Gasfitters Local 12, and Utility Workers Local 369.

"The Carmen's Union feels very fortunate to have a friend of Bryan's stature and integrity running for Ward 4 city councillor," said James Wyllie, recording secretary of Local 589.

"He will be a great asset to the working men and women of Quincy."

Myles Calvey, business manager of IBEW Local 2222, said, "Our members and families realize how important it is to elect leaders whose values and ideas shadow our own."

Arthur O'Connell, recording secretary of Machinist Local Lodge 264, said, "The officers and members of Local 264 feel that Bryan is the best-qualified candidate in the race to represent the views and issues concerning the working families of our union and the city of Quincy."

Connolly said he is grateful for the endorsements and remains committed to working hard on behalf of Quincy's working families.

"Having grown up in a union household, I understand the important role unions play in the lives of working families as well as the positive impact labor has on the quality of life in Quincy," he said. "I will always remain an advocate for working families as a member of the Quincy city council."

For more information on Connolly or to get involved with his campaign, call (617) 471-7244.

Gripe Night Tonight At QCA & Wollaston Park Meeting

It will be Gripe Night for the Quincy Citizens & Wollaston Park Associations at a 7:30 p.m. meeting tonight (Thursday) at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hancock Street., across from the North Quincy Post Office.

Those attending will have the opportunity to express their dissatisfaction — if they have any — with the way the city is being run and what changes need to be made by the mayor, city councillors and school committee elected this year.

Those attending are reminded to bring and sign their Gripe Cards. A summary of the gripes will be sent to candidates before the Nov. 6 final election.

Toastmasters Club To Meet Sept. 10

The Quannapowitt Toastmasters Club will meet Monday, Sept. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Shuster Building, 11 Hayward St., N. Quincy.

The mission of Toastmasters International is to provide a mutually supportive and positive learning environment in which every member has the opportunity to develop communications and leadership skills.

Guests are always welcome. For further information, contact Ruth Levitsky at 617-472-9576.

John Buhl Receives MBA From MIT

John Buhl of Quincy recently graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), receiving an M.B.A. from MIT's Sloan School of Management.

Buhl is the son of Frank and Irene Buhl of Manchester, NH.

NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin, who helped to revitalize the space program during the post Cold-War era, was the commencement speaker for the 135th commencement exercises.

Goldin received hearty applause for his prediction that American astronauts would walk on Mars within 10 to 20 years.

JULIE BERBERAN
Councillor-at-Large

A VOTE FOR COMMON SENSE

Please let Julie Berberan serve you in her ongoing endeavor to save our schools, educational programs, environment, taxpayer dollars and the historic beauty of Quincy and help her win these issues:

"Taxpayers deserve to keep the present, large, well-built, comprehensive, State of the Art Quincy High School on its 24 acre clean campus."

The recent accreditation report states Quincy High School students lack books and supplies. "Using reimbursement funds to renovate QHS instead of using the funds to build a smaller school will save Quincy taxpayers over $20 million, which could be used to improve education."

Open space is irreplaceable. "The centrally located Faxon Field ball fields should be maintained and improved with soccer and lacrosse fields and a horticulture program."

"To save tax dollars Central's Advanced Placement Program should be housed in Coddington Hall and the sturdy well built Central Middle School should be kept as a middle school." Quincy College rents Coddington Hall from Quincy for $217,000.00 per year, yet Quincy's $100 million school building plan is designed to solve overcrowding at Central.

"To increase open space Quincy could buy property-surrounding Central from Pasquallucci Contractors by eminent domain."

The city rents expensive space above and below Quincy Cinemas for the Health, Building, and Inspectional Departments. "To save tax dollars those offices should be relocated to the recently remodeled areas of Quincy High School that are scheduled to be demolished to create open space."

"Veterans Memorial Stadium is neglected and has needed repair for over 15 years. It should be repaired before tax dollars are spent to build an expensive fountain and rose garden nearby."

Quincy and Milton allowed Quarry Hills Associates to receive dump tipping fees for 13 million tons of Central Artery fill on city land. Rain causes rivers of sediment to flow down the exposed hills, contaminating Cunningham Brook, Furnace Brook and Blacks Creek. Quarry Hills Associates want to cover the mountainous hills of clay in Quincy with MWRA Sewerage Pellets. "Quincy should insist they immediately cover the future Recreational Complex with clean topsoil and seed and stop further damage to the wetlands below."

"For the health and safety of our children and all citizens, housing, schools and ball fields should not be built on contaminated sites."

Julie has worked for many causes. She successfully worked with citizens to allow a home for unwed mothers on Edgemere Road. She organized Quincy citizens to stop a $75 million high school from being built on the Quincy Avenue Hazardous Waste Dump and worked to keep the school from being built on the small, contaminated and expensive DPW site.

Finn Creates Web Site For Council At-Large Campaign

The Joe Finn Committee announces the creation of a web site to promote the positions and ideas of Joe Finn, a candidate for councillor at-large.

"I am very excited by this use of technology as a means of reaching people regarding the issues that concern them," Finn said. He emphasized that opening the site has far more potential than a mere promotional device.

"I don't see this merely as a campaign tool, but a means for addressing issues that people are concerned with as well as better communicating with them," Finn said.

Finn said he plans to build up the site over the campaign. In it he will include his responses to various questions raised by the press, community organizations and civic groups. He also plans to further define his stance on various issues.

"It is not uncommon in political campaigns to have opponents twist your positions to fit their purposes. The web site will allow me to lay out my positions clearly and provide voter access to my real opinions," Finn said.

One of the first papers Finn plans to include will be a position paper outlining his view of the intricacies of the Central School/Quincy High School debate.

Finn said he believes the web site would serve him well if elected. "I would use all technologies available to me to communicate with the citizens of Quincy. I view it as another tool for staying in touch with ordinary families and people who don't always have access to their councillors."

People may access the site at www.vote4finn.org.

Finn has previously put various techniques to use to solve various social problems. In the mid-1990s, Finn had partnered with Bentley College to create the first community-voice mail system on the East Coast for persons seeking jobs or housing. More than 90 percent of persons using the system achieved their goals of obtaining a job or housing. Bentley College later awarded Finn an honorary degree for his efforts.

D'Amico Reception Hosted By Ayers

An estimated 400 attended a recent reception for Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico at the Marina Bay Waterclub hosted by state Rep. Bruce Ayers, former Ward 6 councillor.

Ayers described D'Amico as a "forceful voice for the people of Ward 4" and noted that he has influence with Quincy's State House delegation.

D'Amico cited several constituent services he has started including an E-mail Bank and his weekly neighborhood meetings.

He said his accomplishments also included community policing in Ward 4 and his leadership as chairman of the City Council's Education Committee in obtaining $10 million for renovations at Sterling Middle School.

He said a new Brewer's Corner Community Policing Station and Business Association will be established as the result of an alliance he formed with Quincy 2000.

"This is the time to advance the progress we have made," he said. "It's not time to start from ground zero."

He said he will continue helping the elderly by expanding city services.

Barbara's Blueberry Buckle

It's always a food experience when we visit our friends Barb and Chap. And so it was recently when we were there to see them after Chap's successful surgery.

Barbara served the most delicious blueberry coffee cake and naturally I asked her for the recipe to share with all of you. With blueberries so prevalent in all of the supermarkets, it's a great time to try this treat.

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE

3/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening
1 egg
2 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
2 cups blueberries
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 cup butter or margarine
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Mix the 3/4 cup sugar and shortening until light and fluffy. Add the egg and beat well. Add 2 cups of the flour, the baking powder, salt and milk alternately to egg mixture. Beat until smooth after each addition.

Spread in a greased 8x8x2 inch or 9x9x2 inch baking pan/ Top with blueberries.

Then for the topping, combine the remaining 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 cup sugar and the cinnamon. Cut in the butter or margarine until crumbly. Sprinkle over the blueberries. Bake for 45 to 50 minutes. Cut into squares. Serve warm. Great with whipped cream.

PS A little confusing with two sugars shown in the recipe, one for the cake and one for the topping. Also only part of the flour is used in the mixture and the other part for the topping.

Womensplace Crisis Center To Hold Survivor Speakers Training

Womensplace Crisis Center will hold a Survivor Speakers Training on Saturday, October 13 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for survivors of sexual assault and dating or domestic violence who want to use public speaking as a tool for social change.

Non-offending family and friends are also invited to participate.

The training is offered free of charge. Registration and pre-interview are required.

Alan Cousin First President

New Taxpayers Assn. Formed As Voice For Homeowners, Renters

A new Quincy Taxpayers Association has been formed with Alan Cousin of 44 Farrington St., North Quincy, as its first president. An organizational meeting was held Aug. 28 at the Thomas Crane Public Library with residential taxpayers from various sections of the city attending.

A charter was adopted for an unincorporated, non-profit political association for the protection and advancement of the interests of Quincy residential property owners and renters.

Membership dues were set at $30 per person per year.

Cousin, a former city council candidate who convened the meeting, was unanimously elected president.

John Spada of 88 Forbes Hill Road, Wollaston, an accountant and former school committee candidate, was elected treasurer.

ALAN COUSIN

JOHN SPADA

It was decided to defer electing other officers until the association's first annual meeting expected to be held in January or February.

Cousin said the association hopes to hold a forum for mayoral and city council candidates after the Sept. 11 preliminary election. On an ongoing basis, the association will study, comment, and lobby officeholders on municipal financial and management issues, he said.

Cousin is already working on proposals to improve the city's budgetary and financial management process.

"The main point of this association is accountability on the part of Quincy city government to those who pay the bills," Cousin said. "Our city fathers are taking too much money from us in taxes and wasting it, rather than spending it on the city's real needs, like infrastructure maintenance. This has to stop now."

Women's Wellness Community Care Days At Stop & Shop

Harvard Pilgrim Health Care and Stop & Shop Pharmacies will host Women's Wellness Community Care Days, a series of events promoting women's health issues, Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 3 to 7 p.m. and Wednesday, Sept. 12 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Stop & Shop, 65 Newport Ave.

Women's Wellness Community Care Days are open to women of all ages. Each session will provide women with individual counseling and information on how they should manage the risks and symptoms associated with menopause including osteoporosis, heart disease, hot flashes and other common symptoms. There will be free services and information available on a variety of other women's health issues, including:

- nutrition, exercise, weight management
- cholesterol screening
- blood pressure screening
- personalized counseling with registered pharmacists and registered dietitians, and
- osteoporosis screening (heel ultrasound, which is recommended for women over 40, will be available for a nominal fee.)

"It's never too early or too late for women of all ages to take charge of their health," said Dr. Roberta Herman, vice president of Medical Management and Quality for Harvard Pilgrim Health Care. "I encourage women to join us at local Stop & Shop pharmacies to learn more about managing the risks and most common symptoms related to menopause."

"We are proud to once again collaborate with Harvard Pilgrim Health Care to make quality health information programs and screenings available to women at their local Stop & Shop Pharmacy," said Martha Johnson, R. Ph., manager of Clinical Programs for The Stop & Shop Supermarket Company. "Women's Wellness Community Care Days arose out of Stop & Shop's commitment to help our customers live a healthy lifestyle. This is just one of the ways we provide our customers with all the ingredients for great pharmacy service."

For more information on the Quincy Women's Wellness Community Care Days, call the Quincy Stop & Shop Pharmacy at 617-328-6622.

Passkey Opens New Corporate Headquarters

Passkey, the leading processor of group housing reservations, recently opened its new corporate headquarters at 180 Old Colony Avenue.

Formerly located at 1400 Hancock St., Passkey made use of the dedication ceremonies to celebrate a recent $14.4 million round of funding, a company milestone of over one million reservations processed, and a new customer, Key3Media, which produces COMDEX, the largest trade show in the world with 200,000 attendees annually.

As a "metamediary" in the $120 billion meetings and convention industry, Passkey provides Web-based applications for use by all key channels within the meetings and conventions industry, including: convention and visitors bureaus, global distribution systems (GDS), hotels, travel agencies, associations, corporations, meetings, RFP engines, and registration vendors.

Founded in 1996 and privately held, Passkey has 58 employees.

Sandra O'Connor Mortgage Originator At South Shore Co-Operative

Sandra J. O'Connor has joined South Shore Co-operative Bank (SSCB) as a mortgage originator.

A mortgage loan officer with Consolidated Mortgage Services, and previously at Eastern Bank, Quincy, she brings her customer service, marketing and accounting expertise to the SSCB's mortgage lending office.

SSCB has expanded its mortgage lending team, and offers a one-on-one style of banking for its customers.

"Mrs. O'Connor's friendly and efficient work with customers throughout the entire financing process is representative of what we like to offer here at SSCB," said Robert Orlando, assistant vice president of Residential Lending.

South Shore Co-operative Bank, with offices in Quincy, Weymouth and East Bridgewater and with assets in excess of $100 million, was established in 1890.

Elizabeth Mirasolo Attends 'Media And Democracy' Program

Elizabeth Mirasolo of St. Joseph's School in Quincy was one of 115 school educators selected to participate in a program held recently at Harvard's Institute on the Media and American Democracy.

The seven-day, intensive program -- attended by educators representing 30 states plus American schools in Japan, Poland, and Turkey -- was taught by senior faculty and joined by a number of America's best known news reporters, editors, and media executives.

Harvard's faculty members and other scholars from around the country presented their research and engaged the educators in a dialogue about the media and its impact on the nation's political and policy processes.

Now in its fifth year, The Media and American Democracy Institute focuses on preparing secondary school humanities teachers to educate their high school students about the fascinating yet complex ideas associated with the role of media in the nation's democracy.

The institute emphasizes that in order to become well-informed citizens, more thoughtful "consumers" of media messages related to politics, and active participants in American democracy, young people must understand both the governing processes and the role of media in those processes.

In completing the Harvard Institute on the Media and American Democracy, Mirasolo joined fellow participants who created curriculum units related to these issues for use in their classrooms and school districts.

The Institute was co-chaired by Marvin Kalb and Janice Barrett. Kalb is former chief diplomatic correspondent for CBS News and NBC News and moderator of Meet the Press and currently serves as the director of the Joan Shorenstein Center on the Press, Politics, and Public Policy at Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government in Washington, D.C. Barrett is associate professor at Boston University's College of Communication.

The list of Institute faculty and panelists included: former Governor Michael Dukakis; Nina Totenberg, Supreme Court correspondent for National Public Radio; Neil Postman, professor and chair, Department of Culture and Communication, New York University.

Natalie Jacobson, principal co-anchor and reporter, WCVB-TV News (ABC affiliate), Boston; Lance Morrow of Time Magazine; Frank Farenkopf, co-chairman of the Presidential Debate Commission; Mark Jurkowitz, media writer and former ombudsman, The Boston Globe; and Jill Abramson, Washington bureau chief of The New York Times.

The Institute is co-sponsored by Programs in Professional Education at the Harvard Graduate School of Education and The Joan Shorenstein Center on the Press, Politics, and Public Policy at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Each participant in the Institute was awarded a full tuition scholarship offered by the John S. & James L. Knight Foundation of Miami, FL, or The Deer Creek Foundation of St. Louis, MO.

An Open Letter to Ward 3 Voters From Quincy Educators Who Support Coughlin for Ward 3

This fall's election presents an opportunity to elect to the Quincy City Council from Ward 3 a person who over the last decade has displayed remarkable involvement with and advocacy on behalf of improving our public school system and on behalf of our children who are the future of our city.

A dedicated parent of three children, Kevin Coughlin has, while serving on two PTOs and two School Councils, worked with us hand in hand as educators to address school building, technology and curriculum needs so that all of our children benefit. Two scholarship programs he created allowed children to play musical instruments and attend camps, who may have never had the opportunity.

As Co-Chair of the Family Council of The Quincy Commission on the Family he has worked to support initiatives to address the needs of children, youth and families including a Transitional Housing Program that has stabilized Quincy families and maintained Quincy children in the Quincy School system. Kevin has worked for nearly a quarter of a century toward improving the quality of life for people throughout the Commonwealth and here in Quincy.

Our endorsement of his candidacy is a rare step taken based on our strong conviction with respect to the commitment that Kevin has shown and continues to demonstrate on behalf of children, youth and families. He has earned our utmost respect, that of every educator who knows him, as well as that of countless parents. We believe that with your support in the September 11th Primary election and November 6th Final election, Kevin will have the opportunity to further his service to all of us. We respectfully recommend Kevin Coughlin for Ward 3 City Councilor.

The Egg Drop A Favorite Feature

QHS Students Take Part In Science Olympics

When are Quincy High School students allowed to drop eggs from a four-story building?

Although the answer "absolutely never" seems the most logical, the correct answer is when it's part of the Quincy High School Science Olympics, which took place recently at the school.

In the Egg Drop, students were challenged to design and construct vehicles no larger than a shoebox which would safely deliver a fresh egg to a target from a drop of four stories.

Believe it or not, more than 180 students were able to do so.

And the Egg Drop was just one in a series of nine events of the Quincy High School Science Olympics, all designed to allow students to demonstrate their knowledge of science, problem solving skills, and engineering ingenuity.

Sara Adukonis finished first in the Egg Drop, with Pandi Lera taking second place and Audra Hill coming in third.

More than 345 students participated in at least two of the events. In addition to the Egg Drop, other events included:

• Chemistry Jeopardy: Pairs of students competed in a game similar to the popular television program, with the exception that all categories were related to chemistry. First place went to the team of Jeremiah Kunje and Katrina Kacmar.

• Name That Constellation: Students identified photographs of more or less well-known star constellations. Karen Mui, first place; Janai Mungalsingh, second place; Alison Hunt, third place.

• Name That Disaster: Students were given the names of famous natural disasters of past and challenged to identify them of a map of the world. Disasters included earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, floods, and severe weather events. Lucy Ross, first place; Sara Neumann, second place.

• Build a Tower: Students were given one sheet of paper and thirty centimeters of tape. They were challenged to construct the tallest freestanding paper tower possible. The winning tower was 156.6 centimeters tall. Yen Truong, first place; Michael Murphy, second place; Bao Truong, third place.

• Write It! Do it!: The event tested powers of observation and communication skills. Students participated in pairs. One partner observed a puzzle and wrote a description of the solution.

The other partner then entered the room and reconstructed the puzzle from that description.

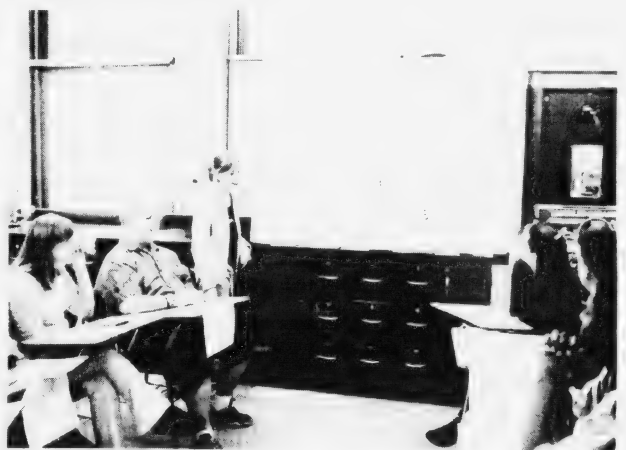

The pair who accomplished the task in the shortest time was the winner. Tom Shruhan and David Germain, first place; Nicole Swimm and Alaina Conso, second place; Dennis Hill and Jason Chase, third place.

• Float Your Boat: Students were given a square of aluminum foil and asked to design and construct a boat that would stay afloat while supporting the greatest possible mass. Jason Bedore, first place; Matt Conso, second place; Lisa Ng, third place.

• Marble Shoot Calculation Contest: Physics students had to calculate the exact landing spot of a marble shot down a special track. David Germain won the calculation contest and Deja Bergstrom won the estimation contest.

ABCC Hearing On Anna's License Continued To Sept. 26

A hearing by the state's Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC) on the city's rejection of a beer and wine license for Anna's Hungarian Kitchen of West Quincy has been continued to Wednesday, Sept. 26.

City Clerk and License Board Chairman Joseph Shea said the city requested the continuance because the original hearing date -- scheduled for Wednesday -- was inconveniently close to city preliminary elections set for Sept. 11.

By a 5-0 margin, the License Board voted June 12 to reject owner Charles Debreczeni's application of a beer and wine license for Anna's Hungarian Kitchen, Willard St.

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer's Workshop At Tufts Library Sept. 8, 15

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) will hold a First Time Homebuyer's Workshop on Saturdays, Sept. 8 and 15, at Tufts Public Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to qualify for the many different mortgage options available through QCAP, Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, and other financing options.

Agenda includes comprehensive presentations from realtors, attorneys, home inspectors, lenders, and other homeownership professionals. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within a budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage program for one's needs.

The fee for the workshop is $10 per household for the month of September. Advanced registration is required and space is limited. To register or for more information, contact Sandra Brennan at (617) 479-8181, ext. 119.

QCAP is an MHFA, CHAPA, and HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency.

First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop At South Shore Savings Bank

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First-Time Homebuying Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA-certified First-Time Homebuyer's Workshop in partnership with South Shore Savings Bank Saturday, Sept. 8 and Sept. 15.

The workshop will be held at South Shore Savings Bank, 1530 Main St., Weymouth, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive your homebuying certificate, which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, downpayment and closing costs grants and other special first-time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is a non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in its approach to obtaining downpayment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area. The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program for your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Ederly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

New Information May Lead To Treatments For ALS

By Dr. ROBERT BROWN

Think for a moment what you did yesterday. Where did you go? How did you get there? Now imagine that in a few hours you will be told you have a disease called ALS and that in matter of months will leave you unable to speak or move. For ALS patients, this turn of events is all too common.

Ameyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease) is a degenerative disorder of motor nerves in the brain and spinal cord. It causes the slow degeneration of motor nerves, leading to paralysis and death, typically within five years. Unfortunately, the disease has no effective treatment. The only drug approved for ALS (Rilutek) offers at most a minimal benefit. Except in rare familial cases, the cause of ALS is not known. For these reasons research in ALS is critically important.

Fortunately, several lines of investigation are beginning to yield new information not only about possible causes of the disease but also about possible treatments.

About 10 percent of cases are inherited. Much effort has therefore been devoted to finding the genes whose defects can cause ALS. The rationale is that knowledge of these genes will ultimately illuminate pathways that are activated in the nerve death process in ALS. One defect involves a gene that makes a free radical sponge, known as superoxide dismutase, or SOD1. Mutations in the SOD1 gene can trigger ALS, although the exact mechanism for this is not known. A second ALS gene has just been described. It encodes a novel protein whose function is not known.

One of the strengths of knowing ALS disease genes is that one can use the ALS genes to generate animal models of ALS. Thus, there are now large colonies of ALS mice raised by activating the abnormal SOD1 gene in the animals. These have proven to be extremely valuable both for dissecting the biochemistry of the disease and for drug tests. It is also possible to put the same disease genes into cells and thereby trigger forms of cell death.

Many exciting new initiatives give hope that ALS may ultimately yield to therapy. For one thing, there are many investigations of causes of the disease. Intensive studies are underway to look for new ALS genes. A multi-center study is in progress to follow up on early reports that some cases of ALS may be caused by infection by an enterovirus. It has been postulated that some cases may be triggered by Lyme disease. Several groups are considering the possibility that environmental toxins like heavy metals may trigger the disease. Others are pursuing the possibility that ALS may arise from a variety of internal metabolic problems, such as elevated levels of the synaptic transmitter glutamate, diminished energy production by mitochondria or abnormal calcium metabolism.

Probably the most exciting new developments in the field of ALS have been in therapeutic investigations. Progress in molecular neurobiology and in studies of other brain degeneration diseases has generated a growing list of proteins that are potent motor nerve growth factors. These are all candidates for a trial in ALS, and many are now being tried in either ALS patients or the ALS mice.

Equally exciting has been the attempt to develop new drugs for ALS. With the availability of cell lines that have the ALS defect, it has been possible to screen for new ALS drugs. Some centers have already begun to do this and to set up specialized, high-technology, high-throughput drug screening laboratories. Although still very preliminary, new studies of the use in stem cells in ALS have also raised cautious hopes for not only slowing the disease process but perhaps even reversing it.

Whether one drug or a cocktail of different treatments with different mechanisms will be required to treat ALS is not known. What is clear is that the molecular and biological tools needed to solve the problem of ALS have improved vastly in the last decade, significantly increasing the likelihood that a cure will be identified. With the continuing support of agencies like the Muscular Dystrophy Association and the ALS Association, as well as the federal government and private sector funding, the goal of finding a treatment for ALS will undoubtedly be realized.

This Sept. 2 and 3 will

The New School Year And Childhood Asthma

September marks the beginning of fall and the return to the classroom by tens of thousands of Massachusetts children. For many of these students the start of school after a summer of outdoor activity may be more than just an emotional letdown. It may serve as a trigger for the onset of what the American Lung Association refers to as the most common chronic illness of childhood: asthma.

Nearly 4.5 million children suffer from the disease and the number is growing each year. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recently released a survey showing that the number of asthma sufferers nationwide doubled over the past 20 years with nearly 14.5 million Americans saying they suffer from asthma.

What Is Asthma?

Asthma is generally defined as an inflammation of the airways that results in periods of breathing problems. The most common symptoms of the disease are coughing, wheezing, tightness of the chest, and shortness of breath. The sympmarked the broadcast of the annual Jerry Lewis MDA Labor Day Telethon. Funds raised during the telethon at WCVB-Channel 5 will fund local research and service clients in the Greater Boston area who have been diagnosed with any of 43 neuromuscular diseases—including ALS.

For more information about MDA, the telethon or ALS, visit www.mdausa.org. MDA will continue its fight against neuromuscular diseases until a cure is found.

Dr. Robert H. Brown Jr. is the Director of Day Neuromuscular Research Laboratory at Massachusetts General Hospital. He is also a professor of neurology at Harvard Medical School.

toms can be triggered by any number of stimuli, including:

- Reaction to allergens such as pollen, pet fur or feathers, molds, and dust or dust mites.
- Exercise, particularly during cold weather.
- Colds or flu.
- Laughing or crying hard.
- Irritants such as cigarette smoke, strong smells or chemical sprays.

Bill Patterson, M.D., chairman of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Special Committee on Environmental and Occupational Health, said several theories on the spread of the disease have been presented.

"Some researchers have suggested that the increase has been brought on by the growing numbers of chemicals in our environment; others believe that by shielding infants from exposure to germs we prevent the normal development of their immune system," he said.

Recent research seems to suggest that exposure to multiple foreign stimulants may be the cause for the increase.

However, more research needs to be done, according to Dr. Patterson.

Be Aware Of Environment

While Dr. Patterson cautions against singling out the school environment for triggering the asthma symptoms, he does point to a report released by the U.S. General Accounting Office showing that many school buildings are in need of maintenance to remove the mold and dust that frequently trigger symptoms. This may be why childhood asthma accounts for more than 10 million missed school days each year.

Make A Plan

In order to help your child make it through the school year with a minimum of suffering and disruption, the National Institutes of Health suggests that parents, teachers and school administrators develop an "Asthma Management Plan" for kids who have the disease. The plan should include the following:

- A brief history of the child's asthma.
- The symptoms that the child usually displays.
- Emergency contact information listing the parent/guardian or student's physician.
- A list of the triggers that cause the onset of the symptoms.
- The child's asthma medications.
- A description of the child's treatment plan, including recommended actions for school personnel to take.

Dr. Patterson recommends that parents make sure their children know how to use their inhalers properly. He also recommends that parents make sure school nurses understand the child's medications and the most effective ways for them to be administered without limiting school activities. A written asthma management plan can be an effective means of facilitating communication between school, physician, and home.

High Expectations For North Quincy Girls' Soccer

SPORTS

By CHRIS POISSON

Once again, the North Quincy girls' soccer team holds high expectations for the 2002 season — that's what happens when you make the state tournament four years in a row.

Not only do the Red Raiders want to reach the postseason, but they want to play well into November. They don't want another sensational season to end in the second round by a 16th seed, like last year.

"We were really disappointed about being knocked out of the tournament last year," said head coach Paul Bregoli, who returns for his seventh season. "We thought we could have gone deeper. We just played a poor game against Needham."

North Quincy opened the season yesterday (Wednesday) at home against Randolph (4 p.m., Teal Field) and tomorrow night at 7 it battles rival Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Red Raiders will miss the class of 2002, which revived the program by making the playoffs all four years and finishing with a 45-22-15 record. This year's group, however, has another strong senior class looking to leave its own legacy and enough depth to start two quality teams.

"This year's team is different in terms of depth, which is one of our strongest points," Bregoli said. "There's going to be competition for playing time and starting positions. The kids right behind the starters can step in and play. The competition is going to create better players."

Offensively, North Quincy lost its leading goal scorer, Kellee Conley (12 goals), to graduation. Senior quad-captain Allie Lacey, juniors Katy Mercurio and Christina Conley, and sophomores Jenn Ryan and Katy Faherty are being counted upon to pick up some of the slack at forward.

"It's difficult to replace Kellee Conley," Bregoli said. "She's a great scorer. But we have some kids that can put the ball in the net. We're going to spread it around a lot. We have kids coming off the bench that can score."

North Quincy is also hoping its improved team speed and quickness will generate more scoring opportunities than a year ago.

"This team is more quicker up and down the field than last year," Bregoli said. "Now we can play a pass-oriented game, or go long and get the ball behind the defense. We couldn't do that last year."

Junior midfielder Laura Kalil should also help create offense. She led the team with six assists, despite missing half of the season with a severe shoulder injury.

Senior quad-captain Lauren Sleeth had her right knee scoped in the offseason and will be out of action the first couple of games. Fellow senior quad-captain Kelly Rice, a sweeper, will fill her inside midfield position.

Seniors Kelly Coleman and Kate Markhard, junior Rachel Enos and sophomore Branne Therrien will also see playing time at midfield.

Although North Quincy lost three-time league all-star Jen Conley, Bregoli expects the defense to be better. Junior Jessica Jacques and sophomore Sarah Gregory are the sweepers, while seniors Caitlin Herlihy, Diana Berberan, Laura Matos and junior Lauren McGee are on the back line.

"Jen Conley was a fixture back there for four years," Bregoli said. "She'll be tough to replace, but overall we'll be stronger defensively. Our quickness and speed should help, sometimes that can make up for mistakes."

DEIRDRE ENOS, who finished her first season as a member of the Philadelphia Charge of the WUSA, talks to the North Quincy girls' soccer team before the start of the season last week. Enos, whose cousin Rachel plays for the Red Raiders, starred at Milton High School and Boston University, where she was an All-American.

Senior goalie Kathryn MacRitchie is the last line of defense — and a pretty good one with 16 career shutouts on her resume. MacRitchie worked on her game in the offseason, attending two goalie camps where she earned MVP honors at a camp at UMass-Amherst.

"She's really made herself into a good goalie," Bregoli said. "She just works her tail off. She's not the biggest kid, but she's the hardest working kid. Hopefully, we can tighten up the defense in front of her."

Young Players Key For North Quincy Boys' Soccer

After coming up two games short of the tournament last season, you'd think the North Quincy boys' soccer team is prepared to make a run this season.

Only graduation left the Red Raiders with an extremely young squad, with only three returning full-season starters. If they want to snap their three-year playoff drought, the Red Raiders need the younger players to contribute right away.

North Quincy opened its season yesterday (Wednesday) at Randolph and tomorrow it squares off against Quincy at 5 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"This season will be a challenge for us, but I think if we work hard and concentrate on teamwork, we should make a good showing," said head coach Robert Dano. "Because of so many new players, it may take some time to gel."

Last season, North Quincy ended the year with three straight wins to finish with a 7-11 overall record. In that stretch striker David Rochon netted eight goals, including both goals in a 2-1 win over Plymouth South, a four-goal outburst in a 5-2 win over Quincy and a pair of goals in a 3-2 win over Milton.

The good news for North Quincy: Rochon is back for his senior year and will serve as co-captain along with senior Stephen Pizzi. Rochon, who tallied 21 goals last year, is one of the premiere offensive forces in the Old Colony League.

Defensively, junior Erik Ranstrom will be asked to direct the unit. Senior Eric Stanton, who started the final two games last year, is the No. 1 goalkeeper.

Although North Quincy definitely needs Rochon,

Pizzi Ranstrom and Stanton to have outstanding seasons, the team's success may come down to how much — and how soon — four sophomores can chip in. Rich Stone, Brian Weeks, Daryl Costa and Prasert Wiwatukhan will be called upon to play important roles and take some of the burden off the upperclassmen.

Youth Softball Registration

Registration for Quincy Youth Softball's 2002 spring season will be held Saturday, Sept. 8 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Wollaston Elementary School, 205 Beale St. (enter through gym doors on Taylor Street).

All girls ages 6-18 are invited to play. Those interested must register to guarantee a place on a team.

For more information, see ad in sports section or call 617-472-9023.

Energy, Excitement For Quincy Girls' Soccer

After several disappointing years, there is new energy and excitement buzzing around the Quincy girls' soccer team this season.

Changes have been made to the coaching staff in an effort to turn things around on Coddington Street. Don Martin is the new varsity head coach and Molly Metcalf takes over the junior varsity squad.

Martin brings a load of soccer knowledge to the job, having been involved with Quincy Youth Soccer for 16 years and been a club coach in the Maple League for the last four years. Metcalf, on the other hand, will be experiencing her first season as a coach. She recently graduated from Bates College, where she played soccer all four years.

In addition to the coaches, Quincy has also changed leagues, having left the Old Colony League to join the Atlantic Coast League. Quincy opened its season yesterday (Wednesday) at home (3:30 p.m.) against non-league Scituate. Tomorrow night at 7 it faces powerhouse North Quincy at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With only one win in the last two seasons, there is no hiding the fact that the Presidents are in a rebuilding phase. And Martin realizes that this is no Band-Aid job. "This is a rebuilding year for us," Martin said. "We are a young team."

Indeed, Quincy graduated seven seniors last year and only has five this season: quad-captains Audra Hill, Michelle Pilalas, Pamela Jacobs and Makena Cahill, and Alex Powers.

The other members are junior Liz Campbell, Kristen

Clarke, Caroline Fields, Nicole Folino, Megan Griffin and Courtney Peterson, sophomores Jessica Carella, Jen Gordon, Katie Kisielius, Colleen Martin, Kaila Saxe and Sarah Shea, and freshmen Marissa Powers and Katie Walsh.

Many of the players will be jumping around from position to position, although the goalkeepers, Hill and Shea, are solidified.

Quincy obviously would like to win a few more games this year. But, first thing first, the Presidents need to take care of the basics on the field, like communication and awareness.

"We need to strengthen our communication on the field and improve the first touch of the ball," Martin said. "During double sessions we have been working on improving our level of play by plyometrics [low impact speed training] and increasing each player's understanding of her position. We have to build awareness on the field and play as a team."

In order for the Presidents to field a competitive team this season, they need to play strong defensively and avoid the shootouts. "We need to keep the scores down," Martin said.

FLUSH WITH POSSIBILITIES

Most vehicle owners know the value of maintaining proper brake fluid levels to avoid brake fade (slow braking response). The significance of flushing the braking system is not so well recognized, however. The fact is that conventional glycol-based brake fluid is hygroscopic, meaning it absorbs water. This is important for keeping condensation in the brake system from causing corrosion. Eventually, though, the fluid will reach its point of saturation. As unabsorbed moisture collects in the system, it leads to corrosion in critical areas, and the fluid's boiling point drops beyond recommended levels. As a result, under hard braking conditions or repeated brake application, the fluid starts boiling sooner, reducing braking performance. Flushing the brake fluid prevents these problems from arising. Your braking system is key to your safety, and it makes good sense to keep it properly maintained, including flushing. To help you do this, the ASE Certified professional service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We're also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: Most maintenance schedules that recommend flushing brake fluid recommend doing so every two years or 30,000 miles.

Fenno St./Forbes Hill, LaBreque Win Recreation Whiffle Ball Crowns

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual whiffle ball tournament at Russell Park.

The double-elimination tourney had three age groups with eight teams competing in each age group.

In the midget division, Fenno Street/Forbes Hill exploded for six runs in the first inning en route to a 9-0 shut-out over Squantum for the championship.

The junior contest proved to be the most exciting game of the day, with Atlantic squaring off against LaBreque. A seesaw affair, LaBreque went ahead 4-3 on a home run in the top half of the last inning.

Needing just two outs for the title, LaBreque got the first Atlantic hitter to pop up and the next batter hit a lazy fly ball to left, but a fielding miscue gave Atlantic a second chance — and they capitalized. Mike Ferrara launched the first pitch he saw over the fence for the title-clinching homer.

In the senior division, LaBreque faced tourney-favorite Montclair and held a 6-3 lead heading into the last inning. Montclair rallied for two runs to pull within a run, 6-5, and almost tied the game on a homer, but the umpire ruled the long ball a foul ball. The batter eventually was retired and LaBreque took the crown.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) As tensions ease on the home front, you can once more focus on changes in the workplace. Early difficulties are soon worked out. Stability returns as adjustments are made.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new romance tests the unattached Bovine's patience to the limit. But Venus still rules the Tauran heart, so expect to find yourself trying hard to make this relationship work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's a good time to consider home-related purchases. But shop around carefully for the best price — whether it's a new house for the family or a new hose for the garden.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A contentious family member seems intent on creating problems. Best advice: Avoid stepping in until you know more about the origins of this domestic disagreement.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A recent job-related move proves far more successful than you could have imagined. Look for continued beneficial fallout. Even your critics have something nice to say.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Ease up and stop driving yourself to finish that project on a deadline that is no longer realistic. Your superiors will be open to requests for an extension. Ask for it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You should soon be hearing some positive feedback on that recent business move. An old family problem recurs, but this time you'll know how to handle it better.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some surprising statements shed light on the problem that caused that once-warm relationship to cool off. Use this newly won knowledge to help turn things around.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your spiritual side is especially strong at this time. Let it guide you into deeper contemplation of aspects about yourself that you'd like to understand better.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your merrier aspect continues to dominate and to attract folks who rarely see this side of you. Some serious new romancing could develop out of all this cheeriness.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're always concerned about the well-being of others. It's time you put some of that concern into your own health situation, especially where it involves nutrition.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Just when you thought your life had finally stabilized, along comes another change that needs to be addressed. Someone you trust can help you deal with it successfully.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a sixth sense when it comes to finding people who need help long before they think of asking for it. And you're right there to provide it.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We are often disappointed when we expect other persons to follow our ideas of how they should live their lives. We are disappointed because we are forgetting that each person lives life according to his or her own inner light. Couldn't it be said that if we want to be happy and at peace in our human relationships, we must try to give other persons the same freedom of expression that we desire for ourselves? Then we find that most persons are interesting and enjoyable as they are. We come to appreciate the distinctive traits of character that different persons possess. And, most importantly, we are free from the tensions that would come if we tried to make others conform to our ideals. . . .

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center on October 15, 16 and 17, 2001 and Allerton House at Hancock Park on October 18 and 19, 2001.

The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organizations's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which accreditation should be awarded the organization.

Joint Commission standards deal with organizational quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representative at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to

Division of Accreditation Operations
Account Representative
Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewer of the date, time, and place of the meeting. 9/6/01

Devine & Pearson's Sweepstakes Strategy Is A Winner

Hugh Devine, president and CEO of Devine & Pearson, a Quincy-based marketing and communications agency, announces their Boston Development Program for Rite Foods has resulted in a market share increase of five points and a record number of web site hits for the Tribe of Two Sheiks Hummus producer.

"The success of the Tribe of Two Sheiks project is quite a testament to D&P's ever-expanding promotional capabilities. Rite Foods can now be added to our growing list of clients, including Polar Beverages, Ocean Spray Food Service and Ken's Steakhouse Dressing, who have seen compelling results from their work with Devine & Pearson's promotion team," Devine said.

D&P's objective during the initiative was to drive volume sales of Rite Foods Tribe of Two Sheiks hummus products during the key consumer "snacking cycle" -- the holidays and pre-Super Bowl. The promotion included a purchase incentive, a sweepstakes overlay and a consumer involvement component.

Phelan Claims Sheets Is Avoiding Debate

dates. Chuck Phelan will serve as moderator.

"Why won't the mayor go to a Candidates Night?" asked Phelan, who said the mayor also refused a similar appearance with him recently among residents of Marina Bay.

"Not to be there on the sixth shows a lack of respect for the citizens of Ward 5," said Phelan. "The mayor ought to answer questions and debate, particularly after 12 years without a serious challenger."

"When residents of Marina Bay informed me the mayor would not agree to be present, it surprised me," continued Phelan. "When Ward 5 President Timothy McAloon let me know the mayor could not attend, I wasn't as surprised."

Reached for comment Tuesday, Sheets said that not being able to attend events does occur occasionally with his schedule but that Phelan should not construe the incident as a desire not to debate.

"First of all, there will be plenty of time for debate and plenty of time to discuss the issues," said Sheets, offering an upcoming Candidates Night in Houghs Neck as one example. "I look forward to it."

Sheets said he informed Ward 5's McAloon that he could not attend the Candidates Night as soon as he heard of the event and said it was his understanding that a second Ward 5 Candidates Night was being planned following the preliminary elections Sept. 11.

McAloon said that letters were sent on or around Aug. 12 to the candidates concerned but confirmed that the mayor had told him last week that he had received no letter and could not attend because of prior commitments, explaining to McAloon that he could not reschedule the events because he had rescheduled them several times previously.

Fallon Ambulance Donates Ambulances To Poland

Fallon Ambulance Service, the region's largest independently owned ambulance service, recently donated two ambulances for use in the country of Poland, through the help of Friends of Poland, a small volunteer organization that has sent over $22 million in aid for the educational and medical needs of the country.

Friends of Poland operates out of New Bedford with only about 150 volunteers, most of whom are retired and simply love the idea of doing something worthwhile to help the people of Poland. They gather medical equipment and books and then work with the Catholic Charity, Caritas, to distribute the equipment to needy charitable organizations.

Carol Fallon, wife of Ray Fallon, who served as the company's president and CEO until his retirement earlier this year, has a connection to the country of Poland that makes this donation special. Her grandparents emigrated from that land to the United States many years ago. It was her grandparents' stories of their native land that inspired the company's program to donate ambulances to Poland.

Since Fallon Ambulance organized the program several years ago, the company has donated a total of 10 ambulances to be placed in strategic areas in Poland with the greatest need for them.

Eventually, Fallon Ambulance hopes to donate a total of 50 ambulances to the organization.

The vehicles carry a value of $67,000 fully equipped; a bare bones or "stripped" vehicle is worth approximately $32,000.

"Poland operates on a regional basis for ambulances," said Walter Jarrot of Friends of Poland. "One ambulance might cover an area of 60 to 70 miles. In the rural areas of the country the need is especially high."

Jarrot noted that the ambulances are needed for medical emergencies as well as transporting organs.

"The people of Fallon are tremendous," he said. "Not only do they give us the ambulances but they are great at giving us additional equipment for the ambulances that are scarce in Poland."

All ambulances are completely refurbished by volunteers with a new paint job and any mechanical repairs needed. The ambulances are then shipped to Poland by boat, at a cost of approximately $2,000.

The organization looks for sponsors at $3,000 to cover the cost of transportation and refurbishing the ambulances, which are then sent in memory of loved ones.

"We are glad to help the people of Poland," said Peter Racicot, vice-president of Business Development for Fallon. "It is wonderful to see these retired ambulances put to such good use, where they are needed. Poland is an area of the world that needs and deserves medical contributions, and the efforts of Friends of Poland are admirable."

Contributions to the ambulance fund may be sent to: Friends of Poland, Inc., P.O. Box 50277, New Bedford, MA 02745.

Former Wollaston Woman On Plane

The pain of Tuesday's terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington D.C. was felt locally as former Quincy resident Susan (McAleney) McKay was reported to be a passenger aboard one of the commercial jet airliners that crashed into the World Trade Center.

McKay was believed to be on American Airlines Flight 11 which was hijacked shortly after departing from Logan Airport in Boston

A dash of political history and the possibility of two recounts in close ward battles highlighted Quincy's preliminary election Tuesday.

Only 29 percent of Quincy's 52,253 registered voters went to the polls, many apparently staying home to watch television coverage of the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. City Clerk Joseph Shea had predicted a 35 to 40 percent turnout.

Jimmy Liang, 24, Quincy restaurant owner, became the first Asian-American nominated in the city's history when he landed the sixth spot in the city council at-large field.

Ward 5 in absent Stephen Durkin, 45, may also have made some history when he missed the nomination in his bid for a fourth term.

But he lost by only 28 votes and may ask for a recount.

The other possible recount is in Ward 3 where John C. Cain, Jr., 55, making his second run for that seat lost a nomination by 43 votes.

Neither Durkin nor Cain were available Tuesday night to say whether they would seek the recounts.

Atty. John Garland, 41, nailed down the first nomination for the Ward 3 seat with an impressive vote of 1,106. Kevin Coughlin took the second nomination with 871.

Cain was third with 828 and David McGillicuddy, 60, was fourth.

Douglas S. Gutro, 36, a program manager with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and James E. Mullaney, III, a certified public accountant, won the Ward 5 nominations. Gutro's vote was 1,224 and Mullaney's 823. Durkin trailed Mullaney with 795, just 28 behind.

Incumbents Timothy P. Cahill, 42, seeking his eighth term, and Francis X. McCauley, 71, running for his third consecutive term, were the pace-setters in the council at-large race.

Joseph G. Finn, 45, former executive director of Father Bill's Place, and John F. Keenan, 37, financial coordinator for the Norfolk County Advisory Board and former Atty. John Garland, 41, nailed down the first nomination for the Ward 3 seat with an impressive vote of 1,106. Kevin Coughlin took the second nomination with 871.

Cain was third with 828 and David McGillicuddy, 60, was fourth.

Douglas S. Gutro, 36, a program manager with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and James E. Mullaney, III, a certified public accountant, won the Ward 5 nominations. Gutro's vote was 1,224 and Mullaney's 823. Durkin trailed Mullaney with 795, just 28 behind.

Incumbents Timothy P. Cahill, 42, seeking his eighth term, and Francis X. McCauley, 71, running for his third consecutive term, were the pace-setters in the council at-large race.

Joseph G. Finn, 45, former executive director of Father Bill's Place, and John F. Keenan, 37, financial coordinator for the Norfolk County Advisory Board and former

ATTENTION PARENTS!

Here are hard facts about teens' substance abuse:

1. Teens under 21 most frequently obtain alcohol from older friends
2. Speaking to teens frequently about dangers of alcohol abuse saves lives
3. Always know if alcohol is served at parties that your teen attends
4. Driving while under the influence of alcohol/marijuana is equally dangerous

Amidst Terror Attacks, Family Grateful For Daughter's Safety

By CRAIG SALTERS

As the horror of coordinated terrorist attacks unfolded before the nation's eyes Tuesday, Quincy's Alicia Coletti took solace in the safety of her daughter even as her heart went out to the victims of the attacks and their families.

"She called at five past nine to tell me she was all right," Coletti said of her daughter Gina Coletti, who works in a Manhattan office building near the World Trade Center for the investment firm Goldman Sachs. "Obviously there's relief but you feel for the people who were in the World Trade Center and for their loved ones who are waiting for news."

Coletti, who lives on Samoset Ave. with husband David, said her daughter Gina called to let her know that she was all right but had been evacuated from her office building and was trying to make her way home, some 200 blocks north, amidst the confusion and chaos of the day's first terrorist attack which saw two jets crash into both towers of the World Trade Center, causing their collapse.

Ironically, she said, Goldman Sachs had decided last week not to move Gina's department into office space in the World Trade Center. In addition, one of Gina's friends, who had served as an usher in her wedding just one year ago, had recently turned down a job with the press office of the New York Port Authority, which would have placed him in the building as well.

Throughout the day the Coletti home served as ground central for family and friends wanting information on Gina. Among them was Gina's husband George Lanides, a school teacher in the Bronx who was unable to reach his wife because of damaged phone lines in New York City.

"Gina's three brothers called within five minutes of each other to make sure she wasn't in the World Trade Center, to make sure she was safe," Coletti said.

In addition to the destruction of the World Trade Center, which alone would have been the worst act of terrorism in the United States, there were other coordinated attacks throughout the country, including a plane crashing into the Pentagon.

As of press time, at least 260 had been killed in the downing of four jetliners alone with no report on the death toll in New York City, although New York City Mayor Rudy Giuliani reported some police and firefighters among the casualties.

Coletti gave thanks for her daughter's safety and said her thoughts were with those seeking information on their loved ones, especially the families of those aboard the two planes which departed from Boston and are believed to be the ones which crashed into the World Trade Center.

"It's just all so sad," Coletti said.

Large Turnout At Ward 5 Candidates Night Sheets, Phelan See Things Differently

An estimated 200 residents crowded into the library of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School last Thursday to attend a Candidates Night sponsored by the Ward 5 Community Association.

The event began with prepared comments by Mayor James Sheets and challenger William Phelan as a courtesy to Sheets, who was unable to participate in the regularly scheduled program because of a schedule conflict.

Sheets used his remarks to tout some of the city's accomplishments during his tenure as mayor, including a reduction in crime, the saving of what is now Quincy Medical Center, and improvements along Wollaston Beach. The mayor also announced his eagerness to participate in upcoming debates, which he said were in the process of being sponsored by local media.

Phelan allowed that the city had accomplished much "over the past 12 years" but emphasized that taxpayers, and not politicians, were responsible for the successful bailout of the hospital. Phelan also cited the purchase of land off Quincy Ave., a former Bethlehem Steel landfill which was originally scheduled to be remediated for the new Quincy High School, and the city's financial decisions involving the Quarry Hills Golf Course Project as examples of poor judgment on the part of the current administration.

ALL THREE CANDIDATES for Ward 5 city councillor attended last week's Candidates Night at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, answering written questions from the audience concerning topics such as street and sidewalk repair, open space, and affordable housing. From left are Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin and challengers Doug Gutro and James Mullaney.

"It's time to give City Hall back to the people," Phelan said.

The remaining program of the Candidates Night followed the regular schedule as moderator Chuck Phelan, former city councillor and current director of Data Processing, asked questions provided by the audience first to councillor at-large candidates and then the three candidates for the Ward 5 seat: incumbent Stephen Durkin and challengers Doug Gutro and James Mullaney.

All nine candidates were in attendance for the event

WILLIAM PHELAN, the mayoral challenger, told those attending last week's Candidates Night that it was time for a change and that he was running "to give City Hall back to the people."

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 11, 1851, in Christiana, Pa., a group of African-Americans and white abolitionists skirmish with a Maryland posse intent on capturing four fugitive slaves hidden in the town. The violence came one year after the second fugitive slave law was passed by Congress.

• On Sept. 16, 1908, William C. Durant founds the General Motors Corporation, consolidating several motorcar companies, including Buick, Oldsmobile and Cadillac, to form this Goliath of the automotive industry.

• On Sept. 15, 1957, the first air-to-ground public telephone service begins. The service allowed callers in the Chicago-Detroit area to call passengers on any of about 20 planes equipped with two-way telephones.

• On Sept. 12, 1974, in Boston, opposition to court-ordered school "busing" turns violent on the opening day of classes. School buses carrying African-American children were pelted with eggs, bricks and bottles, and police in combat gear fought to control angry white protesters besieging the schools.

• On Sept. 14, 1975, Elizabeth Ann Seton is canonized by Pope John XXIII at the Vatican, becoming the first American-born Catholic saint. She devoted much of her time to charity work with the poor and in 1977 founded the Society for the Relief of Poor Widows with Small Children in New York.

• On Sept. 10, 1977, at Baumettes Prison in Marseille, France, Hamida Djandoubi, a Tunisian immigrant convicted of murder, becomes the last person executed by guillotine.

• On Sept. 13, 1990, Andrei Chikatilo, the Soviet Union's most prolific serial killer, is charged with the murder of 53 people. The Soviet government, refusing to admit that the communist system could produce serial killers, had earlier denied the crimes in an attempt to portray serial killing as a uniquely Western cultural phenomenon.

$21,000 Tour Of Adams Mansion

You can tour the Adams Mansion for just $2 which will also get you through the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams.

That's seeing a lot of history for $2.

But imagine being willing to pay $21,000 to visit the mansion.

Well worth it, someone thought -- to make the tour with noted author-historian David McCullough as your guide.

McCullough's latest book, John Adams, which he thoroughly researched here has been high on the best seller's list.

And it is credited by Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Park for the record invasion of tourists this season.

The popularity of the McCullough-Adams connection is also quite evident down on Martha's Vineyard. City Council President Paul Harold, who has a place on the Vineyard where McCullough lives, attended a recent charity auction there.

He reports a tour of the Adams Mansion with McCullough was one of the auction items. It brought in a bid of $21,000 -- the second highest of the entire auction.

Top item bid was $55,000 to sit and write a song with Vineyard resident, singer, song writer Carly Simon.

Frankly, I think I would have bid on McCullough because touring the Adams Mansion with him as a guide would be a fascinating walk through history.

I may be a little prejudiced.

McCullough and I have a rare bond of sorts. We both still bang out stuff on a Royal typewriter.

"The greatest of all typewriters," he told me at a fundraiser at the Thomas Crane Library in June of last year.

The only difference is that he gets Pulitzer prizes out of his.

JANET COUGHLIN, Senator Mike Morrissey's right arm at the State House, will be doing her part in the fight against cancer. For an extra special reason.

Janet and her daughter, Lesley, both of Squantum, will be among an expected 9,000 or so walkers in the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk Sunday, Sept. 30. The walk is along the famed Boston Marathon 26.2-mile route.

Janet and Lesley are walking with a team in honor of fellow Squantum resident Christine Welch-Gillis. Christine was diagnosed with colon cancer about two years ago and has undergone chemotherapy and pain relief treatments ever since.

Money raised goes to patient care and research at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. In the event's 12-year history, participants have raised more than $18.2 million.

To participate, adult walkers must raise a minimum of $100 and children aged 12 and under, a minimum of

Stroke Club Meeting Sept. 24

A special meeting for stroke survivors has been planned by Beechwood on the Bay Stroke Club, announces Kathy Prince, Beechwood's director of elder services.

The meeting, Monday, Sept. 24, at noon, is free and open to all interested.

Guest speaker will be Tommye K. Mayor, a young stroke survivor, author and marathoner.

Attendees are invited to bring lunch and/or enjoy late refreshments. For more information on the support group, call Kathy at 617-471-5712.

MCCULLOUGH

$50 in contributions.

If you'd like to help Janet and Lesley honor Christine, you may send your contribution by check, payable to BMJFW (Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk) care of Janet Coughlin, 128 Lansdowne St., North Quincy, MA 02171. For more information, she and Lesley can be contacted at 617-328-5124.

Janet, incidentally, also participates in the William Degan Memorial Road Race and the Marie Curry Walk, two other most worthy causes.

SPEAKING OF WORTHY causes, a special tradition started by the late George Parker a quarter century ago goes on.

George, who owned the Yellow Cab Co. of Quincy opened his heart and checkbook to youngsters afflicted with muscular dystrophy in 1976.

That was the year The Quincy Sun became the Quincy-South Shore pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

George came by with two $400 checks that first year, one a company, one a personal. And for the next 10 years it was an annual ritual: George with two $400 checks.

During those 10 years, the pledge center and committee raised over $1 million for Jerry's Kids thanks to a lot of nice people like George in Quincy and the South Shore.

Because of increasing physical limitations at The Sun office, as the paper and production expanded, the pledge center had to end after a 10-year run.

But for the next 12 years, George kept coming with his two checks. In 1999, although he wasn't feeling well himself, he donated two $500 checks, maybe feeling time was running out on him.

And it did, May 8, 2000 when he died at age 65. His total donations, according to our arithmetic, adding up to $19,400.

But the tradition is now going on in his memory. Last year two more Labor Day checks arrived at The Sun office four months after George's death.

A personal check from George's brother, Joseph, and the latter's wife, Joan, for $500 and a $300 Yellow Cab Company check from George's long-time associate and close friend, Wayne McCully.

"We wanted to keep it going," said Joe Parker. "George would like that."

And this Labor Day, there were two more checks: a $500 one from Joe and Joan Parker and a $300 one from the Yellow Cab Co. signed by Wayne.

That puts it at $21,000.

And George would really like that.

MILESTONE: Good friend Charlie Sweeny, former school committee member, now a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, turns a young 85 Friday.

Charlie stays in physical shape walking a couple miles or so mornings at the South Shore Plaza. He still gets in some golf but has given up climbing the White Mountains.

He stays mentally alert watching his favorite TV program "Jeopardy" (usually answering the question before the contestants do) and beating the dealer (most of the time) at blackjack down at Foxwood's.

Charlie and his better half, Betty, have been married 60 years. She'd like to do the wedding vows over to something like "to love and honor and give up cigarettes. . ." She's been trying for 60 years to get him to kick the nicotine habit but he's a stubborn Virgo.

Happy birthday, kid. And many more.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1930 POSTCARD is a view of the Wollaston business block where the original Howard Johnson's store opened in 1925. The store is one the corner in the center of the building with the long black sign and striped awnings. The view is from the old Beale Street Bridge looking east. Adjacent to the old Wollaston railroad depot this area was known as Depot Square. It was all demolished in the 1960's and it is now the Red Line's Wollaston Station parking lot. The postcard was published and sold by the Howard D. Johnson Co.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Bergfors Promotes City's Port

By PAUL HAROLD

Fred Bergfors, Jr., chairman of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce's Harbor Development Committee, said the city's best assets are its deep channels.

He said Quincy was well-positioned to benefit from the lack of capacity in Boston and by dredging and widening its channels it could attract large oil and cargo ships to its ports.

Currently there were 150 ocean-going ships entering Quincy's harbor each year adding economic benefits to the entire South Shore region.

CITY'S OFF-STREET PARKING PRAISED

City Manager William Deegan said the city's off-street parking was the envy of other cities in the nation.

Deegan recently returned from the International City Managers' conference in Poland Springs, Maine, where municipal officials praised Quincy's progress in developing off-street parking in the downtown area.

The major issues facing cities across the nation, he said, was the rehabilitation of streets that were allowed to run down during the war.

WELFARE COSTS RISE

Anthony Venna, the city's public welfare commissioner, said welfare costs would increase $7,000 a month based upon 5.4 percent cost of living raise imposed by the state.

The city had discretion in the amounts granted under general welfare, he said, but had to follow state guidelines in the programs for general relief and old age assistance.

QUINCY-ISMS

READERS FORUM

Concerned Over Atlantic Neighborhood Center

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I clip and save news stories that I find interesting. I have one such clipping dated April 27, 1999 with the headline, "Neighborhood Center may find new home at Quincy DAV post."

According to the Patriot Ledger story, the city of Quincy was preparing to convert the DAV facility into the permanent home for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center. Said Mayor Sheets, "We still have a few steps to take, but I don't see any impediments. It'll be great for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center to have a permanent home."

As a member of the board of directors of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, I laughed as I read that yellowing newspaper story. Here we are in September 2001 and I guess we still must have a few steps to take over two years later.

The last time I passed by the Newbury Avenue site, the DAV had been replaced by the Caddy Detachment US Marines. They're doing upkeep. The Marine Corps League has a nice sign and the Marine Flag is blowing in the wind right next to Old Glory. Meanwhile, the Atlantic Center still occupies a site on Hayward Street where the city continues to spend big bucks for rent. Which means every dollar in rent is $1 less for center services, doesn't it?

Isn't it time the citizens of the Atlantic neighborhood had a permanent home for its community center? Is the veterans post now out of the question, which it surely seems to be? How long is the center safe on Hayward Street before the moving vans are required? Does City Hall even care what is happening down here in North Quincy?

It is depressing to see the Atlantic Neighborhood Center in this hurry up and wait mode. We're all frustrated and wonder what really is the commitment from City Hall toward our center. If the officers and directors are frustrated, what about neighborhood folks who depend on the center?

I think it is time the city of Quincy said out loud just what is happening to the center and its future, don't you?

Interact Club Teaches Leadership At NQHS

The Interact Club, which is best described as a Rotary Club for high schoolers, is entering its fourth year of service to the community at North Quincy High School.

The club, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Quincy, is designed to provide community and international service opportunities to selected youth between the ages of 14 and 18.

It raises money and provides humanitarian services for children, senior citizens, the homeless, the disabled and anyone else in need of services.

There are more than 50,000 other Interact members participating in more than 2,400 clubs in 69 countries and geographical areas.

With the guidance of the Rotary Club, Interact members are given the chance to develop leadership skills while learning the importance of teamwork in providing goodwill and peace.

Interactors learn to solve problems and improve the quality of life for members of their own community and throughout the world.

Already the North Quincy Interact Club has raised some $3,500 to replace and electrified sign in front of the high school that was destroyed by a car.

Members also cleaned up the coaches' plaques in the school gym and added two more as well as adopted and maintained an island in the street near the school.

On the international level, the Interact Club has collected hundreds of books for the school children of Zambia.

The 50 members of the club meet every Friday.

Anyone interested in joining the Interact Club should contact Mrs. Virginia Hidalgo, Business Department, North Quincy High School, 316 Hancock St., Quincy 02171 or at 617-984-8647.

4th Annual Quincy ArtsFest To Take Place This Weekend

More than 350 works of art have been entered into this year's fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest Saturday and Sunday at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, 1 Merry-mount Parkway.

Admission is free.

Four separate shows will make up the ArtsFest show: a juried art show, a juried photography show, a young artists' show, and a Quincy Arts Association members' show.

Judges for the art show will be Robert Burgess and Robert Duffy, both of the New England Water Color Society and art instructors at North Quincy High School, and Robert Aiello, graphic artist and member of the Rockport Art Association.

Prize winners will be announced at the Gala Show

Premiere, to be held on Friday evening before the show opens to the public. The "Best in Show" award winner will receive a $500 prize.

The Quincy ArtsFest is sponsored by the Best Western-Adams Inn, the Quincy Art Association, and the Quincy Park and Recreation Department.

For more information, call (617) 376-1254.

'The Way Up' Activities Listed At Baptist Church In Wollaston

"The Way Up," a church-sponsored youth program for boys aged 8 to 17, has announced its schedule of activities for the fall at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 81 Prospect Ave.

The program, now in its 38th year, is led by the Revs. Gene and Patti Langevin, both of whom are American Baptist ministers who also serve as youth ministers of the Wollaston church.

The activities include:

Wrestling Clubs for ages 8-10 and 11-13 from 2:15 to 4 p.m. Sunday afternoon and for ages 14-16 from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday evening.

Activity Clubs for ages 9-11 from 3:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Thursday and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday; for ages 14-17 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Activity clubs include football, basketball and short hikes as well as collegiate wrestling.

A special art and music program is held Tuesday afternoon from 3:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. for ages 10-13 offering art instruction, including puppetmaking, and/or free guitar lessons.

For kids who are interested in attending Sunday School and church, transportation is also provided on Sunday morning. Breakfast and lunch are included for a nominal fee.

On three Fridays, Oct. 12, Nov. 2 and Dec. 7, "The Way Up" will conduct a program from 6-9 p.m. for boys ages 9-12. Some of the kids attending that program can participate in a Christmas pageant Sunday evening, Dec. 9.

Two parties are scheduled for the fall:

A Halloween party will be held on Friday, Oct. 19, from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and a Christmas party will be held Sunday, Dec. 16 from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

A trip to see a rodeo is planned for Saturday, Oct. 6, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The trip will include lunch at a western barbecue. There will be a charge for that trip.

In most cases, the only charge is a small fee to help with the cost of refreshments. Transportation from home to church is provide Parents who are interested in enrolling their sons can call either of the Langevins at 617-268-6669.

Adams NHP To Re-Enact Constitutional Convention

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park invites visitors to play a part in one of the nation's greatest dramas: the passage on Sept. 17, 1787 of the United States Constitution by the Constitutional Convention.

The re-enactment takes place Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Adams National Historical Park, 1873 Carriage House, 135 Adams St.

Members of the audience will assume the roles of various delegates to the Convention and will represent their state in a debate that will determine the fate of a nation. Led by George Washington (portrayed by a Park Ranger), the debate becomes heated as the time draws short before the final vote is called.

After the debate each delegate signs his or her name to the document, rings the Liberty Bell, receives a copy of the United States Constitution and the Massachusetts Constitution to keep as a memento, and savors the victory by eating a slice of Constitution Cake.

The program is free of charge but there is limited capacity and reservations will be made of a first-come, first serve basis. Limited street parking is available on Adams St.

For more information or to make a reservation, call the Adams National Historical Park Visitor Center at (617) 770-1175.

Quincy Access TV Offering Workshops

Quincy Access Television (QATV) is starting a workshop series.

Participants must live, work or go to school in Quincy to become members.

Membership fee is $15 per year and includes the workshop series. Orientation was held Sept. 10 and will be held again Oct. 15 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The workshops will teach basic and advanced editing, basic graphics, camcorder, audio and crew positions for both QATV's large and small studios.

Specialized "How To" classes such as How To Videotape an Athlete for a College Recruiter and How To Videotape Family Events will also be available at a nominal fee.

For more information or to register, call 617-378-1441.

Germantown Center To Hold Registration For Fall Activities

Germantown Neighborhood Center/YMCA is holding an open house tonight (Thursday) from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. to accept registrations for fall activities and programs.

There will also be refreshments and raffles.

Some of the fall activities and programs include Children's Arts and Crafts classes, the Learn to Swim Program, the Homework Center, Mom & Tot Program for Family Literacy, the Human Relations Roundtable, the People of Color Focus Group, Women's Workshops, Girl Power and the Family Violence Drop-In Center.

Active Parenting Classes Offered In Chinese

Active Parenting Classes offered in Chinese are scheduled to begin in October at North Quincy High School.

The classes, sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools, the Mayor's Commission on the Family, Impact Quincy, and the Committee for Immigrants and Refugees, will enable parents to actively explore styles of parenting as they work towards raising responsible, caring, cooperative children.

A successful pilot program was held in the spring at Quincy Medical Center.

"Parents in Quincy are concerned about their kids no matter what language they speak," said Linda Billikas, a Grade 5 teacher and assistant principal at the Wollaston Elementary School.

Billikas joins Nellie Chan and Lana Liu as facilitators of the unique Active Parenting Classes, which are discussed in Cantonese, Mandarin, and English. The three are all trained leaders in Active Parenting, which are video-based courses that have been taught in Quincy for the last nine years.

The parenting needs of Chinese-speaking parents, said Billikas, are the same as those of English-speaking parents but there are the added burdens of trying to learn a new language and finding the right blend of old and new cultures.

"It's no easy task," she said.

For more information on Active Parenting Classes offered in Chinese or other courses, contact Billikas at (617) 328-5821.

QHS Class Of 1956 Reunion Nov. 10

The Quincy High School Class of 1956 will hold its 45th anniversary reunion Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

Tickets are $40 per person and include dinner, music and dancing from 7 p.m.

to 12 midnight.

Reservation deadline is Nov. 1 and may be made by calling Jim Tantillo at 781-585-4315, ext. 14.

Quincy Family Network Offering Free Playgroups

The Quincy Family Network is offering weekday and Saturday playgroups for parents with children 4 and under. All of the groups are free and most are open on a drop-in basis.

For more information call Michelle Campbell at 617-471-0796, ext. 111.

The programs are funded by the Massachusetts Department of Education Family Network grant through Quincy Community Agency Program, Inc. as lead agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tombari Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Tombari of Quincy, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary beginning with a Mass at St. Mary's Church.

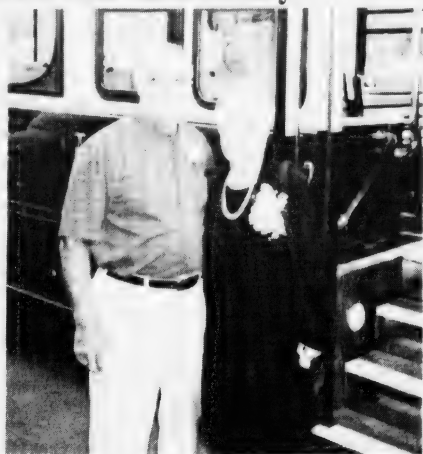

The surprise celebration was hosted by their two children, Robert J. Tombari Jr., and his wife, Karon and Lisa Turner and her husband Richard, both of Hanover.

The couple renewed their vows and then attended a dinner in their honor at the Atlantica Restaurant in Cohasset.

The guests were transported in a trolley.

The couple were married Aug. 5, 1951 at St. Mary's Church, both are life long residents of Quincy. Mrs. Tombari is the former Inez Calcagno.

In attendance were members of the their wedding party: Ernie and John Calcagno, Lillian Barbour, Barbara Standish and Albert Calcagno.

MR. and MRS. ROBERT TOMBARI

Mr. Tombari is retired from Quincy Public School maintenance department after 24 years.

Mrs. Tombari is retired from the National Check

Protection Service, Rockland.

They also have three grandchildren, Madison, Robert John Tombari, III and Bryan Turner.

NQ Catholic Women Open Season Tonight

The Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy will hold its opening meeting for the new season tonight (Thursday) in the Sacred Heart School.

A hot buffet supper will be held. Mrs. Natalie Sullivan is the chairwoman for the evening.

Miss Jane Timilty, president, will conduct a business meeting at which time plans for the coming year will be discussed. A trip to Radio City Music Hall is planned in December.

SANCTUARY OF Quincy Point Congregational Church rolls down Washington Street in 1949 from the corner of South Street to its new home at No. 444.

TIME CAPSULE is placed behind the cornerstone of the Quincy Point Congregational Church Oct. 1, 1949, by Mrs. Earl Lovejoy, chairwoman of the Cornerstone Committee, while Mrs. Jenny Speirs of the Women's Union and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor, look on.

Placed When Church Was Moved In 1949 Quincy Point Congregational Opens Time Capsule Sunday

Sunday will be Rally Day at Quincy Point Congregational Church, the day the church school resumes after the summer vacation, the choir returns to the chancel and an all-church barbecue will follow the service.

And, as an added feature, a time capsule, which was placed behind the cornerstone of the church building on Oct. 1, 1949, when it was moved up Washington Street to its present location, will be opened.

The box was filled with now-historic information by the Rev. Bedros Baharian, who served as pastor from 1944 to 1976.

The current pastor, the Rev. Ann Suzedell, won't disclose the contents of the capsule except to say one of the items is the Thomas Jefferson Award for the Advancement of Democracy that was presented to Baharian.

The opening of the capsule, said the Rev. Suzedell, was suggested by the Sunday School youngsters of the church who wanted to see it opened for the millennium.

It will be replaced by another capsule loaded with items that will be regarded as historical 50 years hence. Members of the church will decide the contest in October, said the Rev. Suzedell.

Elderly residents of Quincy Point will remember the day in 1949 when the sanctuary of the church was moved from the corner of South Street to its present site at 444 Washington St. 50 years ago.

The Rev. Suzedell's Rally Day sermon will taken from Mark 4:35-41 and entitled "Smooth Sailing."

'What Poverty Is Really Like' St. Boniface Foundation Takes Haiti Poor To Heart

By CRAIG SALTERS

When parishioners of St. Boniface Church began a walk for hunger in Quincy in 1982, they had no idea it would take them all the way to Haiti.

But it did -- indirectly, at least -- explained Nannette Canniff, executive director of the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation and co-founder of the non-profit with the Rev. Gerald Osterman, who in 1982 served as pastor of the Germantown neighborhood church.

Proceeds from the parish's first walk for hunger, Canniff said, were to be split down the middle, with half going to the poor of Quincy and half going to fight poverty and hunger in general.

"We were looking for somewhere (to donate the funds) and Mother Theresa had just opened a mission in Haiti," said Canniff, then a resident of Germantown.

Unable to send funds via normal routes due to Haiti's corrupt government, the parish decided to deliver the modest sum raised by the hunger walk in-person.

"We fell in love with the Haitian people but we also saw their desperate poverty and decided to go back," said Canniff, who has returned to the island nation more than 50 times since.

From its humble beginnings in 1982, the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation has built a 20-bed hospital in the Haitian region of Fond des Blancs, providing a 24-hour ER and the only source of health care for a community of 40,000 people. It has initiated nutrition, immunization, and dental programs; created programs to address tuberculosis and catastrophic illness; and provided indirect assistance to literacy programs and the upgrading of wells, a serious problem in a nation with limited water supply.

Since its inception, Canniff said, the foundation has also organized work/retreats in groups of 10 to 14 people for individuals from all walks of life, allowing them to see first-hand what life is like in the poorest nation in the Western Hemisphere.

"Most people feel it's a remarkable experience that opens their eyes to what real poverty is like," said Canniff. "You realize that more people live in poverty than live in affluence in this world."

But Canniff, who said some volunteers return to work longer periods on the island and even more become faithful contributors to the foundation, emphasized that the Haitian people, devoid of most basic necessities, are rich in spirit.

"The people who come with me always say they've received much more than they gave," she said.

One such volunteer who became passionately involved with the foundation was Judge Leo J. Lydon, former Juvenile Justice of Norfolk County who visited Haiti with a group from St. William's Church in Dorchester.

Sadly, Judge Lydon died November of 2000 at the age of 44 in a tragic automobile accident.

"I came to know him and he was quite a wonderful young man," said Canniff of Judge Lydon. "It was a great loss to our world, I would say."

Judge Lydon will be honored posthumously Sept. 20 at the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation's annual dinner, which will take place at the new Quincy Marriott. Proceeds from the dinner will be used to rebuild a chapel in the mountain village of Doriol where Judge Lydon had visited.

Haiti, which together with the Dominican Republic comprises the island of Hispaniola, is less than 90 minutes from Miami.

For more information on the annual dinner Sept. 20, contact Chairwoman Sheila McIntyre at (617) 773-5449.

For more information on work/retreats to Haiti or the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation, contact Canniff at (781) 961-6927.

THIS MEDICAL MISSION to Haiti, which provided immunizations for more than 5,000 people, is one of many organized by the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation, which was founded in Quincy almost two decades ago. In addition to medical missions, the group organizes around 10 to 15 work/retreats annually to the impoverished island nation. Among those serving as volunteers for this particular trip were: Sheila McIntyre, board member and wife of late Mayor James McIntyre; Nannette Canniff, co-founder and executive director of the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation; the Rev. Gerald Osterman, co-founder of the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation and former pastor of St. Boniface Church in Germantown; Phyllis Doran; Lois Sweet; Jean Rowell, wife of the late David Rowell, former Chief of Detectives for the Quincy Police Department; Marion Higgins; Jane Zendanski; and Esther Madden.

CIGARS AND PIPE DREAMS

There has already been much research that shows a link between cigarette smoking and gum disease. Now, a recent study indicates that cigar and pipe smoking also adversely affect the health of the gums. Researchers found that one-quarter of the people who currently smoked cigarettes had periodontal (gum) disease, as did 17% of cigar and pipe smokers. Tooth loss was also prevalent, with cigar and pipe smokers averaging four missing teeth compared with a little more than five missing teeth among current cigarette smokers. Periodontal disease is caused by bacteria, and smoking of any sort causes restriction of blood vessels. Because of the reduced blood flow in the mouth, the body is less able to fight off the bacteria.

We urge all of our readers not to smoke. This column has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. Most adults with gum disease are unaware that they have it. Periodontal disease is usually a slow, painless, progressive disease. You need not lose your teeth to gum disease. If diagnosed early, the teeth can be saved. We stress preventive dental health care for the whole family. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Smokers also have less immune defense because some of their white blood cells (called neutrophils), which play an important role in the first line of defense against bacteria, become deformed and defective due to smoking.

George Burke Selected QJWV 'Citizen Of Year'

Atty. George Burke has been selected by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post as its "Citizen Of The Year."

Burke will be presented the 51st annual award at a 9:30 a.m. breakfast Sunday, Nov. 4 at Beth Israel Synagogue.

Program Chairman Irving Isaacson said Burke will be recognized "for helping youth, his fellow man and for his community service."

Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney, state representative, and city councillor, won wide acclaim when he rescued the historic Colonel John Quincy tankard from a New York City auction block last January.

Burke bid $160,000 to bring the 234-year old tankard back to Quincy. It was one of 11 pieces of colonial silver United First Parish Church sent to New York to be auctioned off to finance needed repairs to the church.

Colonel Quincy, after whom the city of Quincy is named, bequeathed the tankard to the church. He was the grandfather of Abigail Adams and the great-grandfather of sixth President John Quincy Adams.

Burke has made generous donations to many worthy causes in the city including thousands of dollars in scholarships to graduating seniors going on to attend the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, his alma mater.

Burke was class president and a basketball star at U-Mass and was a Boston Celtics rookie.

He has received a number of awards for his achievements including those from the Quincy community, the Massachusetts Historical Commission, and the University of Massachusetts.

D'Amico Suggests Sponsors For Debate With Connolly

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico reiterated an earlier acceptance of challenger Bryan Connolly's call for debates prior to the Nov. 6 elections and suggested possible sponsors for the debates.

D'Amico offered the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, the Quincy Citizens Association, and Quincy Access Television as three groups best suited to host the debates, explaining that none of these organizations had issued commentary on the positions of any candidate in the city. "I would be grateful to each of these groups for, once again, sponsoring such debates and I have already urged my opponent to join me in asking them to do so," said D'Amico, who added that he has never turned down an invitation to debate or attend a candidates' night since first running for office.

In a letter to Connolly accepting the challenge to debate, which Connolly made in a May 25 letter, D'Amico said that he eagerly anticipated the opportunity to debate and present his "record and vision" for South and West Quincy by having "a full and fair exchange on the issues."

Reached for comment Monday, Connolly said he had been looking forward since August to scheduling such debates and that he welcomed the chance to debate before all three groups.

Connolly added that he was also in favor of debating D'Amico before forums sponsored by local media and local business groups.

Christmas Parade Float Workshop Sept. 19

The annual "How To Build a Float" seminar for the Quincy Christmas Parade will be held Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. the Quincy Access Television Studios, 88 Washington St.

The seminar is open to amateur builders and organizations entering floats to compete in the 49th annual Quincy Festival Committee Christmas Parade to be held the last Sunday in November.

The parade is the biggest Christmas Parade of its kind along the East Coast.

Videos of floats entered in past parades will be shown. Professional builders and float judges will speak on techniques used. Float parade guidelines will also be discussed.

All organization planning to enter floats in this year's parade are invited to send representatives.

There is no charge and refreshments will be served.

Paul Kennedy, float activity coordinator of the Festival Committee, will preside. For further details, contact Kennedy at (617) 328-1059.

Terrorism Attacks Postpone Medal Of Honor Recipient Everett Pope's Visit To NQHS

The visit of Medal of Honor recipient Everett Pope to North Quincy High scheduled for today (Thursday) has been postponed because of the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. Tuesday.

The Congressional Medal of Honor Convention which was to have been held this week and related activities such as Pope's visit, were postponed until a later date because on the uncertainty in Boston and their "deep sympathy for the victims of the attacks and their loved ones."

Pope, a member of the 1937 class at North Quincy High School was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for action and heroism in the invasion of Peleliu in the Pacific during World War II.

He and his wife, the former Eleanor Hawkins and his classmate at NQHS, now live in Florida.

Morrissey Office Hours Today At City Hall

State Sen. Michael Morrissey will hold office hours today (Thursday) from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Morrissey invites Quincy residents to come voice their opinions on legislative issues and community interests.

"I value the information I receive from constituents during my office hours and I greatly appreciate their input and willingness to meet with me," Morrissey said.

Those unable to attend Morrissey's office hours today can contact him at the State House by phone at (617) 722-1494 or by fax at (617) 722-1055.

State Aid Is Offered To Quincy Business Firms

Professionals from the state Office of Business Development (MOBD) will be visiting companies in Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree Thursday, Sept. 20, to discuss business needs and how the state can help them.

The information sessions will cover the Economic Development Incentive Program, accessibility to federal, state, local and private financial resources, site selection for relocation or expansion, regulatory and licensing assistance, and the Workforce Training Fund.

Any company desiring to receive a visit from a MOBD representative should call Richard Sweeney or Diana LeMuraglia at 617-973-8603.

although Jimmy Liang, owner of the Fuji Restaurant of Wollaston, had to leave early to return to his business.

Questions for the at-large candidates focused on topics such as the various proposals for the new Quincy High School, the Fore River Shipyard, street and sidewalk repair, open space, and affordable housing.

During the at-large forum, candidate Brian McNamee said that the city's financial picture was not as good as it should be, urging fiscal restraint and less involvement in projects such as the shipyard; fellow candidate Julie Berberan reiterated her support for a renovated Quincy High School and Central Middle School; and current Councilor at-large Frank McCauley explained the office's role in supporting ward councilors and acting as check to the mayor's office.

Similar questions were asked of the candidates for the Ward 5 seat, although there was also discussion concerning possible solutions to dangerous intersections within the ward.

The incumbent Durkin cited his accomplishments as both a city councilor and a former member of the School Committee, including road repairs and work reducing class sizes in public schools.

Both challengers emphasized experience with local issues and the need for a ward councilor to be accessible to residents.

Gutro, a past president of the Ward 5 Community Association, cited his educational background in public management and his expertise as an employee of the Environmental Protection Association.

Mullaney, a CPA, emphasized his financial background and his involvement with many boards and organizations throughout the city.

New Start, Finish At Pageant Field

Marie Curry Walk To Fight Breast Cancer Steps Off Sunday Morning

The fourth annual Marie Curry Walk to fight breast cancer will be held Sunday with a new starting and finishing point.

The five-mile walk will begin and end at Pageant Field off Southern Artery near Adams Field.

Starting time is 9:30 a.m. Registration begins at 8 a.m. at Pageant Field.

Several South Shore businesses are teaming up to support the walk, coordinated by the Mayor's Commission on Women and Quincy Medical Center.

Proceeds from the walk will benefit the Marie Curry Fund, established by Bob Curry in 1995 in memory of his wife, Marie, who died from breast cancer.

Some of the lead sponsors include: Aslanis Seafoods, Inc., Commonwealth Building, Inc., State Street Corporation and Citizens Bank. Other sponsors are Manet Community Health Center, Shields Health Care Group, Fallon Ambulance Service, Eastern Bank, Hancock Park, Maloney Seafood Corporation, Quarry Hills, Hart Supply Company, Inc., South Shore Buick, Granite City Electric Supply Company, Curry Hardware, and Eating Up The Coast, parent company of several South Shore restaurants owned by Edward Kane.

Breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in women between the ages of 15-54. When detected early, breast cancer can often be treated successfully. According to the American Cancer Society, mammograms can detect most cancers before they can be felt on physical examination. But many women in our area cannot afford this life-saving test.

The Marie Curry Walk is dedicated to the community and the people who live in it. The goal of the walk is to raise awareness of the importance of mammography and to help make a difference in the lives of those who need financial support for mammograms. To date, more than 250 women have benefited from the fund.

This year there is a new walk route. The five-mile walk begins and ends at Pageant Field. Most of the walk will be along Quincy Shore Drive. The walk is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 16 at 9:30 a.m. Registration is at 8 a.m.

Those who become a sponsor of the walk are supporting the vision and commitment of the Curry family. Sponsorships are still available from the Rose Level ($10,000) to the Strider Level ($300). Participating as a sponsor will allow you to promote your business, get a high level of exposure for your company and network with others who support the Mayor's Commission on Women and Quincy Medical Center.

While business sponsorship is critically needed, individual walkers are also urged to participate. Walk sponsor forms are available at Citizens Bank, Quincy City Hall, Curry Hardware Stores, Quincy Medical Center, Dependable Cleaners and the Thomas Crane Library, or by calling 617-376-3728. For more sponsorship information call 617-376-5492.

Neighborhood Housing Services Free Informational Workshops

Neighborhood Housing Services announces several informational workshops designed to assist first-time homebuyers.

NHS, an MHFA and HUD-approved First-Time

Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer Informational Workshop in partnership with the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank.

The workshop will be held Wednesday, Sept. 26 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate property within budget, how to make an offer and determining the best mortgage program.

Each participant will have a chance to meet with Red Hilton from Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

For more information, contact Debbie Edgerly at Neighborhood Housing Services at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

NHS will also hold a free informational workshop in partnership with Consolidated Mortgage Services on Saturday, Sept. 22 from 1 to 4 p.m. at Coddington's Restaurant, 1250 Hancock St.

A light buffet will be served.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying and refinancing process. Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with mortgage professionals from Consolidated Mortgage Services.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how best to utilize local down payment and closing costs grants.

Advanced registration is available. Contact Carol Nemet at Consolidated Mortgage Services at 617-479-1871 ext. 225 for more information or to register for the workshop.

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Moscardelli
Owner/Broker

FIRST TIME?

While there is a first time for everything, homebuyers want experience on their side the first time they purchase a home. First-time buyers will want to enlist the help of their agents to avoid potential pitfalls. For instance, an experienced agent will point out the importance of paying the market value for the house, the not the neighborhood. Agents will also help their clients avoid buying the most expensive home on the block, only to see the rest of the neighborhood lower the property values. It is important to realize, too, that a buyer is not going to purchase a new home with all the extras exhibited in the model without negotiating for them. Experience counts for a lot.

Purchasing a home is likely to be the most significant financial investment you will make. At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we are sensitive to the particular needs of first-time homebuyers. Our goals are to help you locate the home of your dreams and make a sound financial decision. We can help you determine what you can afford, review your wish list of features, and show you homes listed in Multiple. From negotiating your offer to overseeing the house inspection and closing, you can rely on us for complete and reliable guidance. Call us at 617-328-1312 to arrange a consultation, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: Buying a nice house in a bad neighborhood puts buyers at the disadvantage of not being able to fix up the neighborhood.

Sell with the real estate firm with the power to show you the way!

Peggy Lahar Post Anesthesia Care Unit Manager At QMC

Quincy Medical Center announces Peggy Lahar of Quincy, a longtime nurse at the hospital, has recently been appointed clinical manager of the Post Anesthesia Care Unit (PACU).

"I will be providing day-to-day leadership, guidance and education within the PACU and will serve as an advocate for the nurses there," Lahar said. "This is a brand new position in the hospital and one that I'm very excited about."

Lahar has worked at QMC since 1976 and has held a number of staff and management positions. She has worked in both the Progresssive Care Unit and PACU, where she was responsible for the care and treatment of critically ill patients and those recovering from anesthesia.

She has been actively involved in cardiac teaching and rehabilitation and served a number of years as a nurse in the Critical Care Cluster and the Emergency Room. She was also a clinical lab instructor at Quincy College from 1995 to 1998.

Lahar received her BSN from the University of Massachusetts and her MSN from Regis College.

Alzheimer's Disease: Early Signs And Search For A Cure

For much of the 95 years since Dr. Alois Alzheimer first observed the progressive degenerative disease of the brain that bears his name, the medical establishment gained little insight into the cause, treatment or prevention of this most common form of dementia.

Over the past two decades, however, that has changed. Scientists can now identify most of the key symptoms that lead to Alzheimer's disease and they are studying a wide range of treatments that slow the onset of those symptoms.

Research into the cause, prevention and treatment of Alzheimer's cannot come too soon. Today, Alzheimer's disease affects approximately 4 million Americans. Experts predict that by the year 2050 more than 14 million of us will suffer from the disease.

Identifying The Symptoms

While not all forms of dementia are Alzheimer's disease, there are generic, early warning signs that may indicate the onset of Alzheimer's. These include:

- Increased and persistent forgetfulness.
  - Anxiety.
  - Frequently losing or misplacing familiar items.
  - Mild personality changes.
  - Sleeplessness.
  - Minor disorientation.
- Depression may also be a symptom of Alzheimer's, but is usually diagnosed as a separate condition. These symptoms begin to develop an average of eight years before the disease is apparent.

Janet Jankowiak, M.D., a geriatric neurologist at the Jewish Memorial Hospital in Boston and vice chair of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Geriatric Medicine, recommends that if you reach a point where you have difficulty performing everyday tasks that most people take for granted "because your mind is slipping," then it's time to see a neurologist.

Early and accurate diagnosis will likely make treatment more effective, according to Dr. Jankowiak. "Early diagnosis and the administering of medications is extremely important in delaying the onset of the symptoms of Alzheimer's," she said.

Prevention

Recent advances have been made in staving off the onset of Alzheimer's symptoms. Dr. Jankowiak is a stronger supporter of these preventive therapies. "There are any number of common sense strategies that can be undertaken," she said. "Remaining active both physically and mentally is certainly important. Active people are statistically less likely to contract the disease than those who don't exercise or practice proper nutritional habits."

Among the activities Dr. Jankowiak recommends are:

- Walking.
- Participating in community organizations.
- Reading.
- Taking up a hobby.
- Maintaining a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet.
- Getting enough nutrients, including Vitamins E and C.

Dr. Jankowiak also believes that interaction with children is one of the best preventive therapies available. "Children will challenge you mentally and physically," she said. "They'll keep your mind and your body agile. It's agility that is very important in holding off the onset of Alzheimer's symptoms."

The Search For A Cure

In July of 2000 researchers announced promising, although preliminary, results on animal testing of a vaccine for Alzheimer's. Clinical trials on humans are currently underway, but any possible application to the general population still years away.

Despite the time it will take to develop a cure, Dr. Jankowiak is cautiously optimistic. "I feel that we are at a critical point for new breakthroughs," she said. "We are heading toward a cure, but it's down the road."

However, she agrees that prevention and early diagnosis remain the two strongest weapons against the disease that is already making a profound impact on our country's aging population.

Symptoms And Treatment

What Exactly Is Depression?

By PAMELA BLADES, LMHC

Arbour Counseling Services, Quincy

It is common to hear the word depression used frequently. People are described as depressed. Many people say that they are depressed. Oftentimes, behavior is said to have happened because someone was depressed.

What exactly is depression? Depression definitely affects thoughts, moods and feelings. It is often felt that depression can be overcome if people would really try and put their mind to it. However, depression is a medical disorder with a biological basis. It originates in the brain and has a chemical component.

Symptoms of depression include feeling sad, helpless and crying spells at times. There is also a loss of interest in normal daily activities. Life seems flat with nothing much interesting happening to the person. Even activities that once gave a person pleasure are no longer interesting.

Other symptoms include sleep disturbances, fatigue, significant weight loss or gain, agitation, slowed body movements and low self-esteem. A depressed person may have thoughts of death and dying. Thoughts of suicide may be present. People experiencing these symptoms should see a doctor or therapist immediately. Thinking is impaired and often people are not able to make the appropriate decisions for themselves.

Most people who suffer from depression who seek proper treatment improve significantly. Medications are available and widely used to treat this mood disorder. If you feel you might suffer from depression, you should seek medical help. Therapy is also helpful in dealing with negative feelings.

Don't Lose Sleep Over Hair Loss

(NU) — Hereditary hair loss, the most common form of hair loss, affects nearly 50 million men and 30 million women in the United States alone.

Hair loss and thinning occur when a person loses more hairs than normal. Typically, people shed between 40 and 100 hairs a day. When hair is thinning, the amount shed begins to slowly increase.

Although it has been traditionally considered part of the male aging process, hair loss affects women too, although somewhat differently. Men typically develop "bald spots" often accompanied by a receding hairline. Women generally experience diffuse thinning over the entire top of the head which can be difficult to detect.

Hair loss, especially in women, can have devastating effects on one's self-esteem and self-image. Studies show that women aged 50 and under experiencing hair loss report feeling unattractive, embarrassed and helpless.

"Many women have a difficult time confronting hair loss, some even try to hide it," said Dr. Lorna Thomas, a dermatologist at Sinai-Grace Hospital in Detroit. "What women really need to do is be proactive, take control of their situation and get help. When women confront hair loss and treat it early on, great things happen."

Hair loss is caused by age, hormones and genes passed on from either the maternal or paternal side. Hereditary hair loss is marked by miniaturized hair follicles and a shortened hair growth cycle. When hair follicles become smaller, they produce thinner, shorter, lighter and more brittle hair which cannot adequately replace hairs that are shed naturally. As miniaturization progresses, it can lead to no further hair growth at all resulting in baldness.

Fortunately, treatments do exist. Topical minoxidil is the only hair regrowth therapy approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to treat hair loss and thinning in women. Topical minoxidil and finasteride tablets are the only therapies approved by the FDA for men.

Topical minoxidil is a treatment solution that works on hair follicles to reverse their shrinking process to stimulate new growth. Finasteride is an oral treatment that stimulates hair regrowth by blocking the formation of the active male hormone dihydrotestosterone. Another treatment includes hair transplants, a procedure that involves removing healthy hair follicles and transplanting them to bald areas of the scalp.

Raiders At Marshfield Friday Green Has North Focusing On Fundamentals

By CHRIS POISSON

After Tony Green was announced as the interim head coach of the North Quincy football team, he said that he has "always bled red and black" and that he has been "waiting to come home for 13 years."

Whether on purpose or just a coincidence, those feelings were reiterated by a piece of clothing he wore at practice last week at Cavanaugh Field.

Written on his T-shirt was the statement "Finally The Rock Has Come Back To...Boston," a catch phrase made popular by WWF superstar The Rock.

A red and black shirt (Red Raiders' colors), the slogan could have also read "Finally Tony Green Has Come Back To...North Quincy."

Green, who lives in Squantum, was named interim coach when Peter Chrisom, Jr., decided to step down to spend more time with his family. Chrisom will remain with the team as an assistant.

Green returns to the North Quincy with much fanfare, having coached at Holbrook High School the past six years, where he brought the program back from the dead in just his first season with an undefeated 6-0 record.

Green inherits a team that has just three wins in the past two seasons, including last year's dreadful 1-9 campaign that saw the Red Raiders yield a Division 1-worst 335 points.

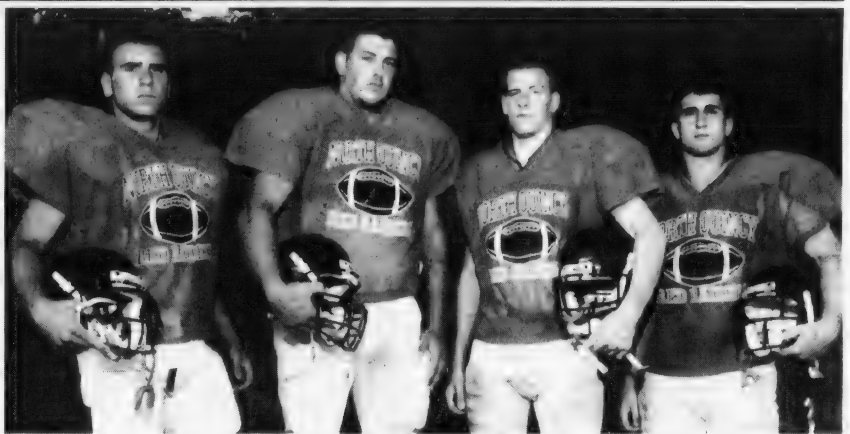

Although North Quincy fans are hoping the new coach can bring some of that magic to Hancock Street, Green is not guaranteeing he will fix everything in his first year at the helm, but he will give it his all to turn things around.

"I've done it in the past," Green said. "I took over Holbrook. They hadn't won a game in years and they were so bad that the team folded. So when I went there to take over I just did all the same things I'm doing here. No thrills, no extras. Just bare to the bones fundamentals. Throw them all in the blender and whip them up and see if we can turn things around."

"I don't know if that is going to happen here, but the kids are definitely willing."

North Quincy kicks off the season tomorrow (Friday) night at 7 on the road against a tough Marshfield team. Marshfield, which finished 10-1 last year, has left the Atlantic Coast League this season join the Old Colony League in Division 1.

"Marshfield is going to be tough," Green said. "Our ace in the hole is that they're not going to know what we do."

But by the same token, they're one of the best teams in the state."

"I'm not real too concerned about the opponents," he added. "It's the Red Raiders and how well we gel and how quickly everybody acclimates to what we're trying to do. If they acclimate quickly, we get competitive quickly."

The Red Raiders graduated their starting quarterback, top two receivers, starting tight end and 80 percent of their offensive line; yet, Green feels the team should do just fine offensively.

Why? Because he likes the running back corp and the offensive line that they'll be working behind. Quad-captain Pat Bregoli, who received most of the carries last season and finished with seven touchdowns, is back for his senior year. He will be accompanied by junior starting fullback Chris Dolbear and junior tailbacks Ryan Farnham and Jimmy Coughlin.

"We have some excellent backs," Green said. "Bregoli, Farnham, Jimmy Coughlin — they're all excellent backs."

"IF THEY ACCLIMATE quickly, we get competitive quickly," says first-year coach Tony Green of his Red Raiders.

Chris Dolbear will be the starting fullback. We'll give them all plenty of playing time."

With the graduation of Max Repoff, senior Dennis Thomson takes over the starting job. A backup last year, Thomson has only one start under his belt and it came during his sophomore year against Hingham before the Thanksgiving Day game.

Like Thomson, the receivers are inexperienced. Seniors Joe Fitzpatrick, Gabe Parsons, Dan Duggan and juniors Tim Coughlin, Gary Dalton, Matt Francis and Dan Mahoney will all be in the mix. "Dennis has to learn the offense, just like everybody else," Green said. "These other teams, they practice all summer."

"I don't know if they practiced," he added about his team, "but they didn't practice what I'm doing. It will take them a while to acclimate with the way I want things done and what I want done."

Last year's defense had more holes than this writer's backyard and was burned worse than a five-alarm fire. The 335 points allowed is worth repeating, as it was the main reason there weren't more Ws in the left column.

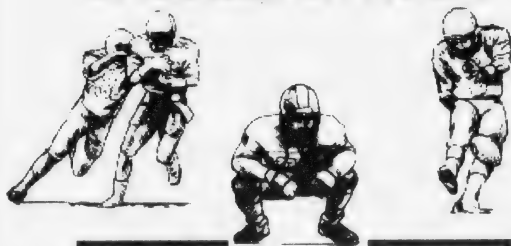

Green said that while he makes changes to the offense, assistant Ryan Craig will be in charge of the defense. Craig, a former North Quincy standout, knows a thing or two about defense. He currently plays for the Quincy Granite, where he is an EFL star middle linebacker.

The defense will look something like this when the season opens tomorrow. Thomson will start at free safety with Bregoli and Jimmy Coughlin at the corners. Senior quad-captain Dan DiNardo, senior Mike Ryan, Francis and Dolbear will see most of the action at linebacker.

In the secondary, Green has Dennis Thomson as a free safety with Bregoli and Jimmy Coughlin at the corners.

Presidents Ready To Go For 2001 Football Campaign

Quincy Home Opener Friday Vs. Middleboro

By CHRIS POISSON

Division 1 or Division 3, the OCL or the ACL, it really doesn't change things for the Quincy football team.

The program has been on the uphill climb for the past two seasons and doesn't plan on stopping now. Sure the move down to the Division 3 Atlantic Coast League has some benefits, but Quincy still has to go play each week. The "drop" to Division 3 is not all of a sudden going to turn the former Division 1 school into a powerhouse.

With that as the backdrop, head coach Bob Noble and his coaching staff will try to make another step forward and improve on last year's 3-7 campaign, which saw the Presidents record all of their wins in the final four games of the season.

"We expect to go into every game to win it and we have the ability to do so," Noble said during a recent practice.

"We're not scrapping to get kids out for the program or hoping that we have enough kids to compete. We're long past that now."

One player to figure prominently in the Presidents' football fortunes is quarterback Mike Lorenzano.

"We're expecting a lot of good things from him," Noble said. "I expect Mike to be one of the better quarterbacks certainly in the South Shore and really in Eastern Massachusetts. He's a fine player."

"He's worked extraordinarily hard in the offseason. Mike suffered a knee injury during basketball season that set him back, but he worked hard with the help of our trainer during the offseason to where he's back to 100 percent. He wears a brace now, but it is more a precautionary thing."

Noble said Lorenzano's experience is a significant plus.

"He's a veteran quarterback at this point in running what we do. As a quarterback, when you have that previous experience, particularly at the varsity level, you're just accustomed to everything and feel so much more comfortable. He's going to be one of our main focal points. As he goes, we go. There's no question."

Quincy will utilize primarily a one-back set featuring Kris Kamborian.

"If the season were to end today, Kris has by far and away been our best player. Period," Noble said. "He's run the ball extremely well. He's not the biggest guy, but he uses that to an advantage. He gets lost in there and people have a hard time picking him up. He worked extremely hard in the offseason to physically prepare himself to play. He wanted that tailback job and he's earned it. Kamborian will be backed up by Chris Sullivan, whom Noble described as a virtual carbon copy.

"What they lack in height they make up in effort," he said, adding the Presidents feature good skilled position players.

"That will be a real emphasis on what we're doing. We're going to throw the ball more than our fair share of times because that's what we do the best."

Quincy will employ a 3 or 4 wide receiver set featuring primarily Shawn Munchbach, Dan Galligan and Matt Ramponi. Back-ups include Brian Keefe and Bill Reid.

"Those five guys will be our primary pass receivers. We do a lot of other things with them in terms of counters and reverses as far as them running the football is concerned," Noble said.

Scott Kelley, a starting linebacker last year, will be the tight end.

"He's looked very good in practice and in the scrimmages. He's a good pass catching tight end. He has the linebacker's mentality, which he has brought to the offense to give us a degree of toughness," Noble said.

The Presidents' offensive line is mostly inexperienced. "(Center) Tom Shruhan is the only experienced lineman coming back. We're starting four new people," Noble noted.

"With the exception of Kevin, it's the 'Jenny Craig' line because we're not going to out-muscle you. We're not particularly big. Tommy can hold it own and with exception of Kevin Livingston, our starting offensive line has no one that weighs more than 190 pounds.

"But that has not been a problem to this point. We're pretty quick off the ball. If there is one word to describe us this year it is scrappy. We get after you. We play hard. What we lack in size, we more than make up with heart and determination.

"We have high expectations. Even though they're inexperienced, that's not a crux. That's something we have to deal with.

"We're a young team," Noble acknowledges. "We have 12 seniors and 26 juniors, a majority of whom were JV players a year ago. We a project in development, but we're a lot more developed than you would think at this point."

The coach said the "heart and soul" of the Presidents is its linebackers.

"Kelley and Kamborian on the outside with Tommy Shruhan in the middle. Tommy was an all-star, a unanimous choice for middle linebacker in the Old Colony League last year, which is a pretty fair league. To accomplish that as a junior speaks volumes about his ability.

Noble said he's been pleasantly surprised by his defensive backfield.

"With the exception of one play, we haven't given up a big play this year. In the past, we had a habit of giving up real big plays.

"This is a strong tackling secondary. If someone does break the line of scrimmage and get into the secondary, they've made the tackles."

The secondary will feature Bill Reid, Dan Galligan and Shawn Munchbach with Brian Keefe and Mike Sullivan rotating in.

"Our defensive line is a reflection of our offensive line in terms of experience and size. Chris Sullivan played extremely well for us last year at nose guard. He gets in the backfield and disrupts plays. He's a big aspect of our defense."

Those duties will be filled by Ekunseitan, end; Boyle, end; Livingston, tackle along with Andronico and Tommy Belton.

"Anthony played as a freshman. He did not play last year. He has come out as a junior and played very well for us. He's earned himself a starting varsity job. He brings some athleticism," Noble said.

Last season, the Presidents were plagued by special teams miscues. Randolph returned two kick-offs for touchdowns, and Barnstable blocked a punt for a TD, to forget a few.

Noble hopes those demons have been exorcised.

"We hope so. Last year I think the special teams was a bugaboo for us. We gave up somewhere in the neighborhood of six return touchdowns that contributed to us being 3-7. . . If they did not occur, there's a good chance we would have won two or three more games.

"We have to eliminate that issue as far as special teams. Again, I have no reason to believe that won't occur."

As the curtain rises on the 2001 gridiron campaign, Quincy is eager for its debut.

"We're excited. We're ready to go. A lot of kids have been waiting a long time, a whole year to get back out there. The direction of the program has just been continuing to go upward," Noble said.

NOTHING TO SPARE?

In these days of run-flat tires, auto clubs, and cell phones, not so many people change flat tires; however, it can't hurt to prepare for a possible emergency. All too many vehicle owners first become familiar with using their car jack when they review the tire-changing procedure in their owner's manual by the side of the road. Most importantly, vehicle owners should be sure their spare tires are properly inflated. If the tire pressure has not been checked in some time, it may be too deflated to perform adequately. With this in mind, it is a good idea to check the tire pressure in the spare each time the air pressure in the other four tires is checked.

Your safety is our concern. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO our ASE Certified professional technicians will service your car with the same level of attention that they would give their own. ## Ryan-McDonald Leads Panthers to 22-8 Victory

The Point Panthers marched 68 yards for a touchdown on the opening drive and went on to register a 22-8 victory over the Houghs Neck Manets in their opener Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Dan Jacques and Joe Pilon contributed key runs to the drive and Chris Ryan-McDonald hooked up with Keith Banks for a 20-yard touchdown pass, with Ryan-McDonald adding the extra point.

The Panther struck again late in the second quarter, with Ryan-McDonald sweeping the right side for a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Mantes cut the lead to 14-8 early in the fourth quarter before Ryan-McDonald broke a 50-yard run and Banks added the two-point conversion for the final score.

The Panthers' stingy defense was led by Ryan Hunt, Scott Andrews, Matt Mora and Dan Malone.

The offensive line consisting of Eric Smith, Mark O'Neil, Mike and Dan Neenan, Bobby Perkins and Chaz Mungalsingh did a fine job opening holes all afternoon.

Jason Thomas had an outstanding game, playing six different positions for the Panthers, who are now 1-0 in Quincy Youth Football.

Quincy Football Makes ACL Debut; North Quincy Remains In Old Colony

Quincy High School and North Quincy High School will play 10 regular season football games, with Quincy hosting the 69th annual Thanksgiving Day game.

Quincy begins a new era, having left the Old Colony League to join the Atlantic Coast League in Division 3. It kicks off its season Friday, Sept. 14 at home against Middleboro, a non-league opponent.

The next two weeks will also be non-league games: Sept. 22 at home against South Shore League power Hanover and Sept. 28 at Catholic Memorial. Last season, Quincy played CM tough, coming out on the short-end of a 14-7 score.

In October, Quincy begins league play with home games against Whitman-Hanson and Randolph followed by road games against Nauset and Sandwich.

The Presidents are familiar with Randolph, having played the Blue Devils the past two seasons. Quincy outplayed Randolph in both contests, but somehow found a way to lose late in the games.

In November, Quincy travels to Dennis-Yarmouth and returns home the following week to take on Plymouth North before it prepares for the Thanksgiving Day showdown.

Quincy finished with a 3-7 record last year, ending the season on a promising note by winning three of its last four games, including its second straight win over North Quincy in the holiday match.

North Quincy opens its season Friday, Sept. 14 at Marshfield, which left the ACL to move up to the OCL.

The following week, Friday, Sept. 21, it plays its home opener against non-league Randolph.

The Red Raiders close out September with a home game against Falmouth, which they beat last year for their only win of the season.

In October, North Quincy travels to Barnstable, returns home to face Taunton and then heads back onto the road to battle Plymouth South and Silver Lake. Last season, the Red Raiders faced those same teams in the same month, losing all four games in which they were outscored, 164-79.

In November, North Quincy hosts a pair of home games against Bridgewater-Raynham and Canton, a non-league opponent, before it looks to end its Thanksgiving Day drought against Quincy.

Oct. 5 At Presidents Golf Course Cronin Family Golf Tourney To Assist Sharon Paolucci Swatek Fund

The Dennis Cronin family of Cronin's Pub & Grill is sponsoring a golf tournament for the Sharon Paolucci Swatek Fund, to aid the Quincy woman who lost both arms and legs to a deadly strep infection.

The tournament will be held Friday, Oct. 5, starting at 7:30 a.m. at the Presidents Golf Course in North Quincy with a reception to follow at Cronin's Pub & Grill, 23 Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point.

Registration forms are available at the pub and should be returned on or before Friday, Sept. 21. There is a $100 entry fee. Checks should be made out to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund.

Sharon, 42, grew up in Quincy Point and now lives in Wauwatosa, Wis., with her husband, Lon, a firefighter on the Wauwatosa Fire Department, and their children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9.

Both of her arms and legs were amputated in February to prevent the spread of a deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria and save her life.

Sharon's mother, Mrs. Rosalie (Kylar) Paolucci of Sumner Street and her brothers and sisters, including Mark, a Quincy firefighter, still live in the Point. Her father, the late Albert Paolucci, also was a Quincy firefighter.

A craft fair for the benefit of the Sharon Swatek Fund also is planned for Saturday, Sept. 22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Torre Del Passeri Social Club, Washington Street, Quincy Point.

Red Raider Soccer Club Drops Opener

The newly formed Red Raider Soccer Club Under-14 girls' team lost a hard-fought match to Southeastern 3-2 in Fairhaven.

The Red Raiders trailed 2-0 after five minutes but fought back and held Southeastern scoreless for the rest of the half. Annmarie Campanella and Lauren Stille had the best chances to score.

Midway through the second half, Megan Therrien took a pass from Allison Russell and scored from 10 yards out to cut the lead to 2-1. Southeastern then took a 3-1 lead five minutes later before Therrien scored her second of the day with the assist again going to Russell.

Stille nearly tied the score with 10 seconds left as her hard shot was smothered on the goal line.

Red Raider goalie Alicia Hemenway was spectacular in net, making 15 saves. Also playing outstanding games were Bridget Coleman, Jillian Benn, Tara Whooley and Laura Norton.

The Red Raiders' next game is Sunday at Ft. Devens.

Marie Curry Walk For Breast Cancer Research Sunday

The fourth annual Marie Curry Walk will be held Sunday, Sept. 16 in Quincy.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. and the walk starts at 9 a.m.

The walk begins and ends at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Merrymount Parkway. Participants will walk down Merrymount Parkway onto Hancock Street and take a right onto Fenno St. to Quincy Shore Dr. Walkers will continue to Wollaston Yacht Club, turn and continue back along Quincy Shore Drive past Merrymount Park and onto Furnace Brook Parkway. The walk concludes at Pageant Field.

Over the years proceeds from the popular community event have funded free mammograms for hundreds of uninsured women in South Shore communities.

This year's walk is sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on Women and Quincy Medical Center, with additional support from Shields Health Care Group and State Street Corporation.

The Marie Curry Walk was established in memory of Marie Curry, who died of breast cancer in 1995. Her husband, Robert "Bob" Curry, owner of Curry Ace Hardware Stores and chairman of the Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees, launched the walk and the Marie Curry Fund.

"First, this walk is designed to raise awareness about breast cancer," Curry said. "I hope that everyone who walks -- including their families and their friends -- understands the importance of mammography in detecting breast cancer early."

Funds raised by the walk have provided critical mammography services for women who do not have insurance, Curry said.

Nearly 200,000 women in the US will be diagnosed with invasive breast cancer this year, according to the American Cancer Society

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Mars, your ruling planet, helps you deal with career challenges in a way that reflects some of your own hidden strengths. This impresses some important decision-makers.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your strong Bovine will, combined with your romantic nature (you are ruled by Venus), helps turn a romance with a potential for problems into one with more-positive possibilities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Mercury's influence creates some unsettling moments, but nothing that you can't live with. You'll soon learn more about that major change that is about to be revealed.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Opportunities for you are like the phases of the Moon: constantly appearing and reappearing. So, cheer up. The opportunity you think you let slip by will be replaced by another.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An opportunity that you hoped would open up for you remains closed. Stop wasting time scratching at it. Something else you'll like will soon make itself apparent and accessible.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. You'll soon hear some positive feedback for all the hard work you recently put into a project. A Pisces could soon swim into your personal life.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone whose friendship you felt you had to write off will try to revive it. What you do is up to you. But don't do it without giving it considerable thought.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A job-related plan might need to be reworked to allow for changes. Lucky for you that Saturn remains a strong influence that can help you focus on getting it done right.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good time to move into areas of self-discovery. You might be surprised about who you really are and how you really relate to those around you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Expect to confront someone who will make an unwelcome request. Stand by your resolve to do the right thing no matter what "persuasion" might be offered.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A friendly competition could become more contentious than you expected. Take time out to discuss the reasons behind this unexpected change, and act accordingly.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You have a wonderful mind for solving mysteries, so you should feel confident about solving the one developing very close to you. An unlikely source offers help.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're a great host or hostess. You love being with people, and you're very good about planning all sorts of social events that bring folks together.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

Mark Twain once confessed that he could live for three weeks on a compliment, and Twain was not an exceptionally vain man. He was just admitting openly what most of us feel privately.

One might say there is good flattery and bad flattery. Bad flattery is the kind which the flatterer engages in because it will "pay" him. He might get something out of it. No person of sense or sensibility can help but see through it and despise it.

The other sort of flattery -- the good flattery -- is not extended because it gives profit to the donor but because it gives pleasure to the recipient. And most of us need this sort of life from time to time.

When most of us pay a compliment, we generally pay it to the person's strongest, and most obvious, point. But to do the greatest good a compliment should be directed to the person's weakest point -- or what he thinks is his weakest point.

Twain could not be elated because somebody came up and told him what a fine writer he was; the whole world accepted that fact. But he was radiant if someone complimented him on an invention he had helped develop...

Oscar Wilde once said -- "An acquaintance that begins with a compliment is sure to develop into a real friendship."

Coping With Alzheimer's Disease:

The Need for Support

By SANDI WRIGHT, RN,
Director of Nursing,
Duxbury House

Alzheimer's Care Center. Approximately four million Americans are afflicted with Alzheimer's Disease or related disorders, most of them living with family members as primary caregivers.

A patient's inability to understand how the disease manifests itself may lead to an angry, frustrating, even isolating existence for all involved. During the early stages of Alzheimer's Disease, victims need help comprehending the changes happening to them, and, most importantly, assurances that they are not going "crazy."

Husbands, wives, and children struggle with behaviors uncharacteristic of their loved ones. Often ashamed of verbal outbursts, incontinence, or wandering, caregivers frequently burn out.

Support groups provide a valuable tool to connect with others who share these unfamiliar experiences. Groups are often underutilized because caregivers feel overwhelmed with conflicting demands, or they may not be aware that this type of support is available. They may also fear confronting the disease or revealing their loved one's behaviors to a group.

Support groups are confidential. Participants contribute proven caregiving techniques, expose themselves to new ideas, discuss their future. They also experience support from others who understand the situation, and form a cohesive bond for the future.

As a support group facilitator and participant, I have heard numerous comments from people who attend the group regularly, to those who may only visit the group occasionally. "I now understand my mother's frustrations." "I feel better now that I've helped someone else." "I appreciate not feeling alone." "I now have a sense of hope."

The road traveled with Alzheimer's Disease can be a little less daunting with the help of a support group. To locate a group near you, contact the Alzheimer's Association, Massachusetts Chapter, at 617-868-6718, or visit their website at www.alzmass.org.

You can also check your local newspaper for support group listings.

Caregiver Support Group Starts Oct. 4 At Allerton House

Adult Children of Aging Parents (ACAP) will meet on the first Thursday of every month, beginning Thursday, Oct. 4 from 7:15 to 8:00 p.m. at Allerton House at Hancock Park Assisted Living Community, located at 164 Parkway in Quincy. ACAP is a newly formed self-help support group that brings together family caregivers, relatives, and supportive others who have concerns for the well-being of an aging person.

The mission of the group is to relieve the social isolation of the family caregiver and to enlarge one's support base. For further information, call the Welch Education office at 781-337-4542.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 42-unit assisted living community owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group.

NOTICE OF FINDING*NOTICE OF FINDINGNotice of Finding of No Significant Impact and Notice of Intent to Request Release of FundsNOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT AND NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDSSeptember 10, 2001
Name of Responsible Entity: City of Quincy 1305 Hancock Street,
Quincy, MA 02169
Tel. # (617) 376-1365

These notices shall satisfy two separate but related procedural requirements for activities to be undertaken by the City of Quincy.

REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

On or about September 26, 2001 the City of Quincy will submit a request to the HUD for the release of HOME Investment Partnerships Program (the HOME Act) funds under Title II of the Cranston - Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act signed into law on November 28, 1990, as amended, to undertake a project known as the Wollaston Manor, for the purpose of acquiring and rehabilitating the property estimated at $200,000 at 91 Clay Street, Quincy.

FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

The City of Quincy has determined that the project will have no significant impact on the human environment. Therefore, an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) is not required. Additional project information is contained in the Environmental Review Record (ERR) on file at the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 where the ERR is available for review and may be examined or copied weekdays 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

PUBLIC COMMENTS

Any individual, group, or agency disagreeing with this determination or wishing to comment on the project may submit written comments to the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development. All comments received by September 25, 2001 will be considered by the City of Quincy prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. Comments should specify which Notice they are addressing.

RELEASE OF FUNDS

The City of Quincy certifies to HUD that James A. Sheets in his capacity as Mayor consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities, and allows the City of Quincy to use Program funds.

OBJECTS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

HUD will accept objections to its release of funds and the City of Quincy's certification for a period of fifteen days following the anticipated submission date or its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of the City of Quincy; (b) the City of Quincy has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient has committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to HUD grant administration office at 10 Causeway Street, Boston, Massachusetts. Potential objections should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT

Norfolk Division

Docket No. 91E0061-PP1
To Leo Bongiorno of Quincy in said County, Esther Bongiorno in Quincy in said County, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Sharyn A. Tocchio of Weymouth in the County of Norfolk representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: a certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, being the lot marked "B" on a subdivision plan by George D. McKay, dated July 1925, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 1656 at Page 15, and bounded and described as follows: Northerly by South Street, fifty-five and 35/100 (55.35) feet; Easterly by land now or formerly of the City of Quincy, Fifty-six and 91/100 (56.91) feet; Southerly by Scammell Street, Sixty-five and 55/100 (65.55) feet; and Westerly by the Lot marked "A" on said plan, being now or late of Robert H. Windship, et ux, Ninety-four and 37/100 (94.37) feet, Containing 4325 square feet of land.

Property address: 117-119 South Street, Quincy, MA setting forth that she desires that -- all -- of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than two hundred ninety-nine thousand dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventeenth day of October 2001, the return day of this citation.

WITNESS, HON. DAVID H. KOPELMAN, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fourth day of September 2001.

Former Wollaston Woman On Plane

plosions caused both WTC towers to collapse. Hundreds were feared dead, including many New York City firefighters and police officers who were near the towers when they collapsed.

McKay, wife of Doug McKay and mother of two children, Matthew and Lauren, is the daughter of Thomas and Susan McAleney of Ellington Rd. in Wollaston.

Prayers for the McAleney family were said Tuesday night at a community prayer service held for the terrorist victims and their families at the Fort Square Presbyterian Church. The service was officiated by the Rev. Richard Brondyke of Fort Square Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Greg Wheaton of Glad Tidings Church, and the Rev. John Swanson of Union Congregational Church.

The prayer service marks the city's attempt along with the rest of the nation to absorb the shock of the worst act of terrorism in United States history.

As of press time, there were no passenger lists available for any of the four jetliners lost in the day's attacks. A third plane crashed into the Pentagon in Washington D.C. and a fourth crashed in Pennsylvania.

Mayor James Sheets said early Tuesday morning that the city was mobilizing its resources to protect the safety of Quincy residents and provide assistance to the city of Boston if necessary. Although no terrorist activity had been reported in Boston, the city's buildings were evacuated and MBTA service was free of charge, two of the many responses to the day's attack.

The mayor said he had been in contact with Dr. Octavio Diaz of Quincy Medical Center's ER and that the hospital was prepared for any emergency which might develop. He was also in the process of meeting with Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Acting Police Chief William Falco, and Quincy Emergency Management Director Anthony Siciliano and would coordinate efforts with Boston

Mayor Thomas Menino as needed.

Classes at Quincy Public Schools, the mayor said, were not cancelled Tuesday because of the logistical problems involved in sending students home. However, high school and middle school students had been informed of the terrorist attacks.

All after-school activities were cancelled.

The mayor said he had also been informed by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) that it had shut off access to Nut Island because the facility serves as a headworks for area sewerage lines.

News of the destruction of the 110-story World Trade Center shook the Bossart family of Merrymount. Exactly one month prior to the devastating terrorist attack, Robert Bossart had taken his children — Jeffrey, age 15, Kevin, age 12, and Katherine, age 10 — to visit the New York City landmark on their way home from a family reunion in Pennsylvania.

executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, made strong runs for the seat being vacated by incumbent Paul Harold.

Taking the other nominations were Brian F. McNamee, 44, chief financial officer for the South Essex Sewerage District and Liang.

Cahill, who wanted to top the field in a show of strength as he eyes a bid for state treasurer, did so with a vote of 7,518. McCauley, former four-term mayor, was second with 7,303 — only 215 behind.

Finn, making his second run at-large, took the third spot with a vote of 6,268. Keenan was fourth with 5,659. McNamee and Liang were fifth and sixth with 3,154 and 2,859 respectively.

Eliminated were Julie A. Berberan, 41, with 2,167; Denis F. Tardo, 51, a member of the Board of Voter Registrars who had 1,111 and Robert J. Boussy, 46, with 564.

Incumbent Joseph J. Newton, 34, seeking his second term, and Maryann P.

Mahony, 62, won the nominations for the Ward 6 council seat.

Newton racked up a vote of 1,261 and Mahony had 605.

Eliminated were Patrick Conroy, 44, and William P. Kiley, III, 43, who tied with votes of 369 each.

The nominees will square off in the final showdown in the Nov. 6 election.

There were no preliminary elections Tuesday for mayor, or councillor in Wards 1, 2, 4 and school committee.

National Tragedy Casts Pall At Polls

By CRAIG SALTERS

There were winners and losers in the city's preliminary elections Tuesday but all candidates agreed politics took a back seat to national unity in the wake of devastating terrorist attacks upon the country.

"It put a pallor over things," conceded Joseph

Finn, who finished in third place to become one of six councillor at-large candidates in the final elections Nov. 6.

Although the national news made the day long and difficult, Finn said being in a public place and sharing grief with others were actually the best ways to cope with the tragedy. "The whole point of terrorism is to isolate you with fear, but we showed that democracy still works," Finn said.

Councillor at-Large Timothy Cahill, who won a spot in the final elections by topping his field with 7,518 votes, echoed that sentiment.

"It was bittersweet," Cahill said of the Tuesday victory. "I feel proud but nobody feels great right now."

Councillor at-Large Frank McCauley, who finished second to Cahill in the field, thanked voters for coming out on a day which was nothing less than a national crisis.

"It was a very difficult day," added Brian McNamee, who also earned a spot as one of the final six at-large candidates. Speaking only about the election, McNamee said he was proud he made the cut but emphasized "we enter another season tomorrow."

Running in his first citywide election, John Keenan finished fourth in the at-large preliminary elections behind Cahill, McCauley, and Finn. "I'm excited by the results," said Keenan. "but it's a whole new race starting tomorrow and I'm looking forward to it."

After fifth place McNamee, the sixth and final spot went to political newcomer Jimmy Liang, owner of the Fuji Restaurant in Wollaston Center.

"The day went very well," said Liang, who thanked local supporters as they enthusiastically cheered him during a post-election victory party.

Finishing closely behind Liang was another first-time candidate, Julie Berberan, who said her candidacy might be over but not her advocacy on such issues as the environment and the renovation of both Quincy High School and Central Middle School. "I lost the race but I plan to win on the issues and I'm not done fighting," said Berberan, who also emphasized putting local elections in perspective against the larger national tragedy.

In a very close race for Ward 3 city councillor, the two top finishers — Doug Gutro and James Mullaney — were at City Hall late Tuesday night awaiting final results.

Gutro, who topped the Ward 3 vote with 1,224 votes, said he was extremely satisfied that the hard work of his supporters had paid off but added that it was "especially important in a time of crisis that the residents of this city came out to vote."

Mullaney voiced hope that the campaign would continue in a positive tone and took time out to thank Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, who finished behind Mullaney by only 28 votes, for "the many years of effort which he has put into this office."

In Ward 6, incumbent City Councillor Joseph Newton said he was happy with the results but added that the day itself was "quite somber."

Maryann Mahony finished second to Newton and said Tuesday's victory was a step in her campaign to represent "the entire Ward 6." Mahony also offered thanks to what she called "dedicated people and fantastic ward support."

Patrick Conroy and William Kiley finished out of the running in Ward 6 with each candidate receiving 369 votes.

More Than 100 Quincy Firefighters Set To Aid NYC

More than 100 Quincy firefighters are set to aid relief efforts at the World Trade Center when, not if, New York City needs them.

"We have over 100 volunteers poised and ready to go as soon as the call is made," said Firefighter William Arienti, president of Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792. "The New York City Fire Department wants to do as much as they can for as long as they can but when they become exhausted, and they will, we will go."

Arienti said the volunteers will go down in shifts so as to maintain adequate manpower levels in Quincy. Arienti said he expected a similar number of firefighters, if not more, to attend any upcoming memorials for New York City firefighters, hundreds of whom lost their lives responding to the Sept. 11 terrorism attacks.

The Quincy Fire Department provided similar assistance and attended similar memorials in the wake of last year's tragic fire in Worcester.

"Massachusetts has a plan and Quincy is part of that plan," Arienti said.

After Terrorist Attacks Friends Around The World Pour Out Concerns To Harold

By PAUL HAROLD

The impact of the New York and Washington tragedies to people around the world was brought home to me on a personal basis by the dozens of phone calls and e-mails I received within hours of the terrorist crashes from Mexico to the Philippines.

Some were from longtime friends and others were from people I had met only briefly at lectures I had given for the U. S. State Department, here or overseas. Both groups felt a need to express their outrage at the innocent killings and the need to express the support of their country for the United States and the American people during this crisis.

The first e-mail was from a longtime friend, my jogging partner when he was consul general in Boston, Patrick Curran, who was recently assigned to Lusaka as Ireland's new ambassador to Zambia. The tragedy left this Irishman, for the first time, at a loss for words, "Words cannot describe the events of today," he e-mailed.

A British friend whose campaign for Parliament I worked on, David Campbell-Bannerman, was more verbose and philosophical in his words, "Can a free, liberal, civilized, democratic state defend itself against calculated and insistent evil?" He went on the support an appropriate military response. "I firmly believe a democracy has a right to defend itself against such aggression where the consequences of not doing so are this catastrophic," he wrote.

A diplomatic message came from Frederic Mauro, secretary for the president of the French Senate. In part he said, "I want you to know my solidarity and friendship with the people of America. God bless America."

Horst Rischbieter from Germany could only question what happened, while John MacTaggart of Scotland referenced the horror of the television broadcasts.

Among the e-mails from Africa and Asia were two from Muslim friends. Dr. Safir Azam of Pakistan wrote, "I am very distressed Harold was recognized for his lectures at Amerika Haus on U. S. Constitutional Law. The Goethe bust is one of the highest awards given by the city.

"I am very distressed for the innocent people who have died and more people who may die in an act of revenge on the Middle East. I just can't face any more news."

for the innocent people who have died and more people who may die in an act of revenge on the Middle East. I just can't face any more news." Samir Tijani from Morocco said, "The attack against the public and commercial buildings is an action that clashes with all religious principles and human values. It's really a shock to the world."

Richard Haslam, the former manager of Limerick County, Ireland, called to tell me of the national day of remembrance last Friday in Ireland when all banks, schools and government offices were closed with a memorial service in Dublin led by the Taoiseach (the Prime Minister).

In Austria, the national telephone company provided unlimited free calls to the United States on Tuesday so that Austrians, like my friend Virgilio Castillo of the United Nations, could inquire about the safety of family and friends and to voice their support from the President and the American people.

Tuesday's tragedy has appropriately been compared with Pearl Harbor.

But the communication age in which we live, allows us to instantly put the attack into a world-wide context and allows the average citizen, not just presidential advisors, to hear the candid reaction from people around the world.

This direct communications is a powerful tool because it bypasses the filter that may be put on by news outlets or the spin applied by government spokespersons.

Help Search World Trade Center Rubble

14 Quincy Police Volunteer In NYC

By TOM HENSHAW

Forty-eight hours after the hijacked commercial jets plunged into the World Trade Center in New York City, 14 Quincy police officers were on the scene, helping the police there in their search and rescue efforts.

"I saw one person," said Officer James Silcox. "I'd rather not talk about, if you don't mind."

The Quincy police, who went down to New York Thursday, spent 16 hours in Ground Zero, the site of the former 110-story twin towers, removing buckets of loose debris.

"After the loose debris was removed," he said, "the Iron Workers went in and cut the heavy beams and hauled them away. Then we went back to work on the loose stuff again."

The heavy equipment couldn't be used, he said, for fear that it would crush the bodies and perhaps even live survivors that were hidden underneath the debris.

"When we weren't on the line," said Silcox, "we slept a bit, ate and then went back. They had plenty of stuff --- clothing, blankets, cots, food, everything."

"As soon as we arrived they outfitted us in helmets, harnesses, even indicators that told you when you were in trouble."

When they arrived, the Quincy contingent was given a choice --- they could ride with New York officers in police cars in the rest of the city or they could search and rescue. They chose the latter.

"We stayed together as a group," said Silcox, "and worked with a special service unit of the New York police. We were only one group of police from all over the country."

Although the job they had to do was a horrific one, Silcox emphasized that he and other relief workers received nothing but kindness from city residents.

"This tragedy really brought out the best in New Yorkers," he said.

The 12-member Quincy delegation returned Sunday in the van loaned to them for the purpose by the Verco car rental company and another group replaced them.

"Some of the guys are thinking about going back in a week or two," said Silcox. "They figure it will be a couple of months before they've gone through all the debris."

If anyone other than police or firefighter is thinking of going to New York to help out, Silcox advises them not to do it.

"It's great to see someone volunteer but it's a waste of time," he said. "They are not letting anyone but police and firefighter through. It's still a crime scene."

Quincy officers who went to New York Thursday included:

Sgt. Thomas Corliss, Officers Paul Brown, Thomas Cleary, E. J. Hartnett, Terence McDonnell, James Silcox, Roger White, Brian Mahoney, David Levine and Mark Kennedy.

Among the second group that left Saturday were Lt. Thomas Bolinder and Officers Leo Coppens, Scott Smith and Timothy Sorigi.

Seven Things You Can Do To Help

- ★ Buy an American flag and display it proudly - at your home, ★ in your car, at your office.
- ★ Listen patiently to someone who needs to talk. ★
- ★ Mark your calendar today to give blood six months from now. ★
In living memory of those who perished.
- ★ Give yourself permission to limit the time you and ★ your family spend watching the coverage.
- ★ In honor of those who died, look for an opportunity ★ to do some good in your neighborhood.
- ★ Tell family and friends that you love them. Tell them again. ★
Because no matter how much time you have, it's never enough.

★ Refuse to lose your optimism. ★
That's what America's enemies want...and what they can never have.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 17, 1787, the Constitution of the United States of America is signed by 38 of 41 delegates present at the conclusion of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. Supporters of the document waged a hard-won battle to win ratification by the necessary nine out of 13 states.

• On Sept. 23, 1846, German astronomer Johann Gottfried Galle discovers the planet Neptune at the Berlin Observatory. Neptune, generally the eighth planet from the sun, was postulated by the French astronomer Urbain-Jean-Joseph Le Verrier, who calculated the approximate location of the planet by studying gravity-induced disturbances in the motions of Uranus.

• On Sept. 19, 1900, Robert Parker and Harry Longbaugh, better known as Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, rob the First National Bank in Winnemucca, Nev., marking the first time that the duo worked as a team.

• On Sept. 18, 1904, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glidden complete the first crossing of the Canadian Rockies by automobile, arriving exhausted from their 3,536-mile trip. The couple had driven from Boston, Mass., to Vancouver, Canada, in their 24 horsepower Napier.

• On Sept. 22, 1914, in the North Sea, the German U-9 submarine sinks three British cruisers — the Aboukir, the Hogue and the Cressy — in just over one hour. The one-sided battle, during which 1,400 British sailors lost their lives, alerted the British to the deadly effectiveness of the submarine.

• On Sept. 20, 1946, the inaugural Cannes Film Festival opens at the resort city of Cannes on the French Riviera. More than 30,000 people come to Cannes each May to attend the festival.

• On Sept. 21, 1989, the Senate Armed Forces Committee unanimously confirms President George H. Bush's nomination of Army General Colin Powell as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Powell was the first African-American to achieve the United States' highest military post.

The Election Went On

As news of the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. spread quickly through City Hall last Tuesday morning the question arose:

Should the election be called off?

There were some, among the election workers hired for the day, who said they would like to go home.

Perhaps frightened because the two airliners that smashed into the World Trade Center were hijacked out of Logan Airport just a few miles away and fearful of what else might happen in this area.

Or, perhaps to get home to watch the coverage of this tragic event on television.

And, maybe it would keep people from coming to vote. It may have. Only 29 percent turned out.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, City Solicitor Steve McGrath, and Board of Registrar members William Draicchio and Charles Sweeny gave it some thought.

"But the negatives far outweighed any positives for postponing the election," says Shea.

Among them:

Quincy had 52,253 registered voters eligible to cast ballots. And because there might someday be a miracle election day when every registered voter actually votes, 52,253 ballots had to be printed. At a cost of 16 cents each or a total of $8,360.48.

If the election was postponed, another 52,253 ballots at a cost of $8,360.48 would probably have to be printed.

Postponement could interfere with the registration of new voters for the Nov. 6 final election and the election itself.

Last Tuesday's preliminary cost an estimated $60,000 according to Shea. And with everything already set up and voting already underway, it would have been in that neighborhood even if it were postponed. And then there would be another $60,000 for one some other day.

But it wasn't the money cost or the problems in postponing that was the convincer to go on with Tuesday's election.

Shea, McGrath, Draicchio and Sweeny -- the latter two World War II veterans -- were in agreement: No lousy, cowardly terrorists were going to put a stop to one our most cherished freedoms: the right to vote.

Later that day, Gov. Jane Swift was also in agreement and declared elections throughout the state would go on.

Quincy was in the lead on that.

Abandoned Cat Rescued From Sealed Box

The efforts of a security guard and the Quincy Animal Shelter are being credited with the rescue of an abandoned cat left recently in a box at the Wal-Mart retail store off Falls Blvd.

Keith Derbyshire, a part-time security guard at Wal-Mart, received a report of a cat crying near the store's dumpster. A check of the dumpster found nothing but Derbyshire quickly heard the cat's cries from the parking lot. Although still alive, the cat was in a box completely sealed shut with tape with no airholes.

Not knowing if the cat

might be rabid, Derbyshire brought the box to the Quincy Animal Shelter on Broad St. where Feline Manager Wendy Browne opened it.

The cat, which has since been named "Jacqueline," had been nearly suffocated but Browne was able to cool the animal off.

A grateful Jacqueline is now resting comfortably and will be available for adoption after she is seen by the shelter's volunteer VCA veterinarian this week. Those interested in adopting Jacqueline should call the shelter at (617) 376-1349.

MANY OF William Phelan's green mayoral campaign signs now also have a red, white and blue look.

Some of the signs have miniature and sticker flags on them but most adorned with red, white and blue ribbons.

"We did it in response to the President's request that Americans show our flag," says Phelan. "And we wanted to do it to show our respect for the victims of the terrorist attacks."

Phelan's brother, Chris, says they weren't able to decorate more signs because stores had run out of flags and just about everything that was red, white and blue.

PHELAN

TIM CAHILL, was both a winner and a loser election night last Tuesday.

Cahill, seeking his eighth term, topped the nine-candidate field for councillor at-large. And was feeling quite pleased about it as he drove home that night and parked his 1995 bright red Cherokee Jeep in front of his house on Grenwood Rd.

The next morning it was gone. And at this writing was still missing.

The license plate number is 814 8 KD in case you see it anywhere. "You can also recognize it by the two Cahill campaign bumper stickers on it," Tim says.

Incidentally, Cahill says that while he was in Squantum on election day, a few people thought he was Bill Phelan, who is challenging Mayor James Sheets.

"They've been confusing me with Steve Tobin (state representative) for some time," notes Cahill. "Guess it's easy for people to confuse candidates who are six feet tall and around 40."

CAHILL

JOHN CAIN lost his bid for a Ward 3 city council nomination, but he had a winner in the family.

Three days after his loss, daughter, Erin, 12, was elected mayor of Central Middle School where she is in the eighth grade.

"Dad, you couldn't get elected but maybe I can," she told her father before the school election.

And another family member was with a winner. Son, Ian, 19, a sophomore at Boston College, campaigned for state Senator Steve Lynch who won the Democratic nomination for the late Joseph Moakley's seat in the 9th Congressional District.

Ian has interned with Lynch at the State House. Lynch told him if he is elected in November, Ian will have the opportunity to intern with him in Washington.

"You should have had Ian campaigning for you," friends are kidding Cain.

Cain, who lost the nomination by only 43 votes to Kevin Coughlin, has thrown his support to Coughlin in the final election.

3 Quincy Residents Promoted By Suffolk County Sheriff

Three Quincy members of the Suffolk County Sheriff's Department have received promotions at the Suffolk County House of Correction.

Sheriff Richard Rouse announced the appointments of Peter Abban to sergeant and Brian Bardon and Thomas Healy to corporal.

"Their continued dedication and hard work within the Suffolk County Sheriff's Department is commended," Rouse said.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 postcard view of Dorchester Street, or the road to Chapel Rocks, at the end of Scantum. Scantum Park, site of some of Quincy's earliest hotels, is on the left. The building on the right was the old Scantum Inn later to become the home of one of Boston's first radio stations. It was torn down in 1943 to develop houses. The trolley tracks ran to the Atlantic railroad depot.

America: We're All In This Together

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I have never felt so proud to be an American as I did last Friday night standing along Wollaston Beach with so many others holding our flags and candles. It was an expression of solidarity between friends, neighbors and strangers that we were one people together.

Old people, young people, little kids, couples and families all standing in unity.

Together all of us were doing something other than feeling like a terrorist victim.

As the cars honked all along Quincy Shore Drive out of respect to those of us standing guard along the beach, all of us understood the meaning of being an American.

The people put this together because the people are the United States of America. Buildings may have toppled but not our collective spirits. While none of us had to face the terror on Sept. 11, we all felt the pain. Standing holding a candle or waving a flag is one little thing to do but when you multiply it over and over again, it renewed all of us. Our spirit stands stronger than ever.

Thank you Quincy for showing me that.

Sal Giarratani

P.S. When my daughter and I left the vigil, we decided to ride up and down Wollaston Beach to thank all those folks who took time out of their lives to stand up for America.

As we honked and waved our American flags, we were thanking them as we had been thanked during our vigil time at Wollaston Beach down by Billings Road. We'll all in this together.

Bay State Community Services Expresses Thanks

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of Bay State Community Services in Quincy, a heartfelt thanks to Representative Peter J. Koutoujian for speaking with local youth groups regarding the structure of state and local government. We understand that legislators are very busy and are grateful for Rep. Koutoujian's participation. His involvement in this training was important to us, reinforcing his commitment to the youth of our commonwealth.

On Thursday, Sept. 6, State Representative Peter J. Koutoujian and the program director for the Blue Hills Tobacco Free Community Mobilization Network at Bay

State Community Services, Suzanne Arbing taught five local youth organizations about the structure of Massachusetts local and state government. Koutoujian educated the youth on the state and local structure of the courts and how a bill becomes a law.

The representative made the presentation interactive by placing different youth in government positions to explain how the structure works, from the governor on down. The representative went out of way to educate youth and answer their questions. It is not often that youth get the opportunity to spend time with a legislator, so opportunity was very meaningful to us. The training was very upbeat and enjoyable for all who attended.

Many of the youth commented that the presentation was youthful, fun and informative. The training was held at the Central Square Library in Cambridge. The youth who attended this training are involved in youth tobacco prevention programs.

After the presentation of youth presented the representative with a book called, A Question of Intent which entailed the story of the Food and Drug Administration's uncovering of the tobacco industry.

Bellotti, Grossman Nominated For Lt. Gov., Treasurer

By PAUL HAROLD

Two Quincy residents were nominated for state-wide office in this week's primary: Francis Bellotti, Democratic nominee for lieutenant governor, and Joseph Grossman, Republican nominee for treasurer.

Sept. 20 - 26
39 Years Ago

The city's turnout of 57 percent was higher than usual because of the unusually high number of contested seats in both parties for state-wide, county and legislative seats.

In the two most watched races, Edward Kennedy defeated Edward McCormack 2-to-1 in the city for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate nomination for Attorney General.

Twenty-one year-old John Sullivan of Wollaston won the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Sheriff, making him the youngest nominee for that office in the history of the state.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY PROPOSED

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa planned to send an order to the city council to create a redevelopment authority in the city to take advantage of matching state funds.

The mayor said that an authority was needed for the city to qualify for a 50 percent match in state aid. He said an authority was needed to undertake the multi-million Quincy Center project advocated by the planning department that would expand parking and would widen Granite St. including the construction of a new bridge.

The mayor emphasized the fact that the proposed authority would be limited to redevelopment in Quincy Center and would not impact any neighborhoods.

DELLA CHIESA RECEIVES LETTER FROM BERLIN MAYOR

Della Chiesa received a letter from Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt, thanking the mayor and other U.S. mayors for signing a proclamation of support on the first anniversary of the erection of the Berlin Wall.

"Berliners will allow nothing to shake their friendship with the United States," Brandt wrote.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 17, 1787, the Constitution of the United States of America is signed by 38 of 41 delegates present at the conclusion of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia. Supporters of the document waged a hard-won battle to win ratification by the necessary nine out of 13 states.

• On Sept. 23, 1846, German astronomer Johann Gottfried Galle discovers the planet Neptune at the Berlin Observatory. Neptune, generally the eighth planet from the sun, was postulated by the French astronomer Urbain-Jean Joseph Le Verrier, who calculated the approximate location of the planet by studying gravity-induced disturbances in the motions of Uranus.

• On Sept. 19, 1900, Robert Parker and Harry Longbaugh, better known as Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, rob the First National Bank in Winnemucca, Nev., marking the first time that the duo worked as a team.

• On Sept. 18, 1904, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glidden complete the first crossing of the Canadian Rockies by

The Election Went On

As news of the terrorist attacks in New York City and Washington, D.C. spread quickly through City Hall last Tuesday morning the question arose:

Should the election be called off?

There were some, among the election workers hired for the day, who said they would like to go home.

Perhaps frightened because the two airliners that smashed into the World Trade Center were hijacked out of Logan Airport just a few miles away and fearful of what else might happen in this area.

Or, perhaps to get home to watch the coverage of this tragic event on television.

And, maybe it would keep people from coming to vote. It may have. Only 29 percent turned out.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, City Solicitor Steve McGrath, and Board of Registrar members William Draicchio and Charles Sweeny gave it some thought.

"But the negatives far outweighed any positives for postponing the election," says Shea.

Among them:

Quincy had 52,253 registered voters eligible to cast ballots. And because there might someday be a miracle election day when every registered voter actually votes, 52,253 ballots had to be printed. At a cost of 16 cents each or a total of $8,360.48.

If the election was postponed, another 52,253 ballots at a cost of $8,360.48 would probably have to be printed.

Postponement could interfere with the registration of new voters for the Nov. 6 final election and the election itself.

Last Tuesday's preliminary cost an estimated $60,000 according to Shea. And with everything already set up and voting already underway, it would have been in that neighborhood even if it were postponed. And then there would be another $60,000 for one some other day.

But it wasn't the money cost or the problems in postponing that was the convincer to go on with Tuesday's election.

Shea, McGrath, Draicchio and Sweeny -- the latter two World War II veterans -- were in agreement: No lousy, cowardly terrorists were going to put a stop to one our most cherished freedoms: the right to vote.

Later that day, Gov. Jane Swift was also in agreement and declared elections throughout the state would go on.

Quincy was in the lead on that.

Abandoned Cat Rescued From Sealed Box

The efforts of a security guard and the Quincy Animal Shelter are being credited with the rescue of an abandoned cat left recently in a box at the Wal-Mart retail store off Falls Blvd.

Keith Derbyshire, a part-time security guard at Wal-Mart, received a report of a cat crying near the store's dumpster. A check of the dumpster found nothing but Derbyshire quickly heard the cat's cries from the parking lot. Although still alive, the cat was in a box completely sealed shut with tape with no airholes.

Not knowing if the cat

might be rabid, Derbyshire brought the box to the Quincy Animal Shelter on Broad St. where Feline Manager Wendy Browne opened it.

The cat, which has since been named "Jacqueline," had been nearly suffocated but Browne was able to cool the animal off.

A grateful Jacqueline is now resting comfortably and will be available for adoption after she is seen by the shelter's volunteer VCA veterinarian this week. Those interested in adopting Jacqueline should call the shelter at (617) 376-1349.

MANY OF William Phelan's green mayoral campaign signs now also have a red, white and blue look.

Some of the signs have miniature and sticker flags on them but most adorned with red, white and blue ribbons.

"We did it in response to the President's request that Americans show our flag," says Phelan. "And we wanted to do it to show our respect for the victims of the terrorist attacks."

Phelan's brother, Chris, says they weren't able to decorate more signs because stores had run out of flags and just about everything that was red, white and blue.

PHELAN

TIM CAHILL, was both a winner and a loser election night last Tuesday.

Cahill, seeking his eighth term, topped the nine-candidate field for councillor at-large. And was feeling quite pleased about it as he drove home that night and parked his 1995 bright red Cherokee Jeep in front of his house on Grenwood Rd.

The next morning it was gone. And at this writing was still missing.

The license plate number is 814 8 KD in case you see it anywhere. "You can also recognize it by the two Cahill campaign bumper stickers on it," Tim says.

Incidentally, Cahill says that while he was in Squantum on election day, a few people thought he was Bill Phelan, who is challenging Mayor James Sheets.

"They've been confusing me with Steve Tobin (state representative) for some time," notes Cahill. "Guess it's easy for people to confuse candidates who are six feet tall and around 40."

JOHN CAIN lost his bid for a Ward 3 city council nomination, but he had a winner in the family.

Three days after his loss, daughter, Erin, 12, was elected mayor of Central Middle School where she is in the eighth grade.

"Dad, you couldn't get elected but maybe I can," she told her father before the school election.

And another family member was with a winner. Son, Ian, 19, a sophomore at Boston College, campaigned for state Senator Steve Lynch who won the Democratic nomination for the late Joseph Moakley's seat in the 9th Congressional District.

Ian has interned with Lynch at the State House. Lynch told him if he is elected in November, Ian will have the opportunity to intern with him in Washington.

"You should have had Ian campaigning for you," friends are kidding Cain.

Cain, who lost the nomination by only 43 votes to Kevin Coughlin, has thrown his support to Coughlin in the final election.

Dylan Roche Winner Of 7th Annual Sunflower Contest

Eight-year old Dylan Roche and his mother, Paris, teamed up to win the seventh annual "Grow Together" sunflower contest sponsored by the Beechwood Community Life Center, Almquist Flowerland, and The Quincy Sun.

Dylan, a fourth grade student at Wollaston Elementary School, recently accepted a basket full of prizes donated by Beechwood and city merchants and received his own subscription to The Quincy Sun.

The "Grow Together" family contest is sponsored each year and takes place throughout the city. Robert and Rhealyn Almquist once again donated highbred sunflower seeds to more than 200 family participants.

The contest rules are simple: two or more family members must agree to "Grow Together" and the tallest sunflower wins the prize.

Young Dylan and his family are three-time winners in the seven-year old contest. In 1997, Dylan, then age five and a kindergarten at Beechwood, grew a prize-winning flower that stood 10 feet, four inches tall. He won again in 1998 and now in 2001.

After winning three times, Dylan agreed that his family should not be contestants in the future.

"But I still want to plant sunflowers each year just for the fun of it," he said. "If anyone wants to know, I can tell them how I plant, water, and take care of my seeds."

At Torre Dei Passeri Social Club Saturday Arts And Crafts Fair, Bake Sale To Benefit Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As a Quincy native stricken with a deadly strep infection and her family strive to return to a normal life, her friends and relatives here continue their outpouring of love and support to assist them.

The latest expression -- a benefit art and crafts fair and bake sale -- will be held by the Friends of Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek to assist Sharon and her family Saturday, Sept. 22 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 380 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169. The Torre Dei Passeri Social Club has donated its hall for the benefit.

Bette Ann Mahoney of Hull, a cousin of Sharon's, said the fundraiser she is helping to organize is a "labor of love." She said Sharon, the Quincy Point native who has lost both arms and legs to a deadly strep infection, now has a nurse who is taking care of her so that her husband, Lon, a firefighter in Wauwatosa, Wisc., can return to work.

"She's got a new nurse who is staying with the family," Mahoney said. "Sharon likes her a lot. That's to help her husband so that he can go back to work."

Lon has been at home taking care of Sharon since both her arms and legs were amputated in February to prevent the spread of a deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria and save her life.

Mahoney said Sharon and Lon, who have two children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9, have been overwhelmed by the innumerable expressions of support by family, friends and citizens in the Quincy area.

SHARON (PAOLUCCI) SWATEK

"(Sharon) can't believe how wonderful people are. When she first got home from the hospital, she put a pencil in her mouth and typed a message of thanks on her website. Her website guest book is 44 pages long. The messages of support -- there's been a ton of them. They're very uplifting. She can't believe how wonderful people are. People from Quincy she hasn't seen in 20 years ... They're really super people," Mahoney said.

Sharon's website -- www.swatekfund.com -- also features photos from earlier fundraisers held on Sharon's behalf, including a benefit held recently at St. Joseph's Church parish hall which raised $50,000 to help offset staggering medical expenses.

Sharon recently had two more surgeries which amputated her legs again above her knees because of the severe infection. But she remains strong, courageous and an inspiration for everyone.

"She's wonderful," Mahoney said. "She is so strong."

Saturday's arts and craft fair and bake sale will feature dozens of home-made crafts, some made by local residents and relatives of Sharon, Mahoney said. Betty Oliverio of Quincy has hand-crocheted some beautiful snowflakes out of white cotton which will be displayed on a Christmas tree. One of Sharon's cousins, Joanne Zambruno, who has never met Sharon, has donated wreaths, candles and aquatic garden vases.

"Joanne has never met Sharon. She married into the family. Her late husband, Jack Zambruno, Jr., was originally from Quincy. Joanne filled her tiny white car with boxes of crafts and drove from Erie, Pennsylvania to Quincy to participate in this crafts fair. When she opened her car, it was filled with boxes and boxes of crafts. It was like a clown car she filled it up so much," Mahoney added.

Other crafts featured at the fair include three-dimensional decoupage, pictures and kits; decorated photo albums for all events; post-it notebooks in purse sizes, hand-stamped stationery sets, hand-stitched needle works including cross stitch and embroidery, and cut and pierced lampshades.

Hand-made afghans, candles, safety pin jewelry, dolls, clay pen sets, pin woven clipboards and many other beautiful items will be available.

Altrusa International will be selling their crafts and Denise Vain will have Mary Kay products available, Mahoney said. All proceeds will also go to Sharon Swatek Fund.

The fair will also feature face-painting by Susan Wencek, another cousin of Sharon's. A nativity scene with 12-14 inch pieces hand-painted by Wencek will be sold.

Mahoney said any financial support generated by the fair will be appreciated. "Whatever we can make, I'll be so happy. It's a labor of love."

Sharon's mother, Mrs. Rosalie (Kyler) Paolucci of Summer Street and her brothers, including Mark, a Quincy firefighter, still live in the Point. Her father, the late Albert Paolucci, also was a Quincy firefighter.

Another fundraiser, a golf tournament sponsored by the Dennis Cronin family of Cronin's Publick House, will be held Friday, Oct. 5 beginning at 7:30 a.m. at Presidents' Golf Course in North Quincy.

A reception will follow at Cronin's Publick House, 23 Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point. Registration forms are available at the popular pub. Entry fee is $10 and should be made out to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund.

Local Salvation Army Joins Relief Efforts For New York City

The Quincy Temple Corps of The Salvation Army is joining other units from across the state in providing funds, materials, and manpower to New York City as it recovers from the devastating terrorist attack upon the World Trade Center Sept. 11.

"This is not your everyday relief effort," said Major Linda Jones, who commands the Quincy Temple Corps along with her husband Major Douglas Jones, one of 20 Salvation Army officers from Massachusetts who left for New York City Sunday to serve as spiritual counselors during the relief efforts.

In addition, the Salvation Army is operating 20 mobile feeding units in the area and providing new clothes to relief workers.

Jones emphasized that new adult clothing was of great importance to relief workers digging out the rubble from the Sept. 11 attack, noting new clothing items most in need were blue jeans, shirts, underwear, and socks.

To supply the mobile feeding units, Jones said, bottled water was in great demand as were peanut butter and jelly and canned meats to make sandwiches for hungry relief workers.

Jones said the best address to send donated items was the Salvation Army's Massachusetts Headquarters at 147 Berkeley St., Boston 02116.

Those wishing to make monetary donations should make out checks payable to The Salvation Army and mark "for response to the attack on America" on the checks.

Quality Of Life Affected By Relationships, Seniors Told

By LANCE MORGANELLI

"The quality of our lives is affected by the quality of our relationships."

That was the message Emmett Schmarsow gave Quincy seniors and officials at the 6th annual Senior Conference held Saturday at Broad Meadows Middle School.

Schmarsow, the conference's keynote speaker, is a senior advocate and has been an official of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs for 25 years.

Speaking about his own job and many others like it statewide, Schmarsow said there are few jobs where the main requirements are to possess smarts and love.

After working closely with senior citizens for so long one observation he made was seniors have a sense of humor. Schmarsow said most people's personalities do not change over time.

"If you're crabby at age 20, you're going to be crabby at age 80," he said.

Schmarsow said Webster's dictionary stated the word of the year is "senior moment."

"I hit 50 this year, which I'm told is the borderline between 'why not?' and 'why?'" he said.

The fastest growing section of society is the elder population, according to Schmarsow. The senior population is also changing sitting statistics that show an increase in elders admitted to hospitals for roller blade and snowboard accidents.

Florida currently has a 17.16 percent senior citizen population and by 2030 one in five will be seniors.

Schmarsow said transportation is critical to seniors and that a significant need is to maintain and develop the senior transport system.

"If you take away someone's car keys, you're taking away their life," he said. "If you can't get out of your home, you're trapped."

Schmarsow said it is cheaper to keep resources to assist seniors in a community than financing an institution.

"We're building a senior center (in Quincy) for you, me and my generation --- 30 years from now there will be more seniors," he said, indicating that the center is an asset for the future, not just a current project.

The average retirement age is 61.4. Most people then have 20 years of life after that, said Schmarsow, who then asked what are these people going to do with that 20 years?

The latter part of the conference consisted of a two-part workshop. Seniors had a choice of 15 different classes ranging from healthy cooking and asset preservation to Internet use and stress management.

Keith Buckley, Tai Chi instructor, emphasized the importance to let the body be stretched out when doing the procedures as opposed to rigidly extending the body with harsh force.

Energy is everywhere such as when therapeutic touch or the laying on of hands is used to heal, according to Buckley.

The healthy cooking workshop taught several ways to work toward fit bones and the right amount of fiber in a diet.

Among other snacks and dishes the workshop made was a "High Calcium Smoothie." The recipe for the smoothie includes: three scoops Edy's frozen yogurt, one cup high calcium orange juice and one cup skim milk. Mix the ingredients in a blender for 30 seconds and serve promptly.

Keohane Funeral Home led a workshop which helped seniors pre-plan for funeral options.

Questions of cremation were raised and explained that legally next of kin must give permission to use the cremation process. Agreements can be made ahead of time in which the person makes his or her own decision. There is a 48-hour waiting period after death before any decisions can be finalized.

Emphasis was made in regard to cremation is not necessarily much cheaper than burial costs.

Sharon Beals, executive director at Beechwood on the Bay Community Center, spoke on "What's Available in Quincy for Seniors."

"Worst thing about being in a nursing home is there is no choices," she said, along with the need to keep active in some capacity whether it be mental or physical.

Beals cited a plethora of activities at Beechwood, including art and music classes, cribbage games, exercise classes and information sessions.

"Make a choice to do something different, see someone different," she said. "There is a difference between getting older and feeling older."

Sheets, Phelan Agree To 3 Debates In October

The two candidates for mayor in the city's Nov. 6 general election -- incumbent James Sheets and challenger William Phelan -- have agreed to formats for three separate debates to be held in October.

The respective campaigns are in the process of working out the logistics and dates for the debates, which will be sponsored by The Patriot Ledger and involve local news media, including coverage by Quincy Access Cable.

The agreement between the two candidates comes after Phelan, a member of the School Committee, wrote a letter dated Sept. 10 to Sheets requesting a series of debates which would "offer us both the chance to talk directly to voters about the record and our plans for Quincy's future."

In a statement released this week confirming the three debates, Sheets said that he was proud of his accomplishments over the past 12 years and was eager to debate Phelan.

"I look forward to being able to present both the many improvements we have made and our vision for Quincy's future to the people of our city," Sheets said.

Liang: Burning Signs Goes Too Far

A political sign for councillor at-Large candidate Jimmy Liang posted on a supporter's front lawn in North Quincy was set afire early Tuesday morning, prompting a response by Quincy Fire and Police Departments and expressions of outrage by the candidate himself.

"I'm not concerned about my campaign but for people's safety," said Liang, who said his campaign has dealt with a dozen or so lesser incidents of vandalism on signs by "staying positive" and simply replacing the signs.

But Liang said the burning of one his signs, which took place on Freeman St. in North Quincy, is going too far.

"This is putting people's lives in danger," said Liang, who earned the sixth and final spot in the councillor at-Large field in preliminary elections Sept. 11, the first Asian-American to do so in city history.

"With other people trying to attack our democracy and freedom from the outside, for someone to threaten democracy in our own city is just outrageous," Liang said.

The incident is under investigation, Liang said.

Flynn & Co. Lists 41.5 Acres Adjacent To Weymouth Air Base

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based real estate firm, has been contracted as the exclusive agent for a 41.5 acre parcel of underdeveloped land in Rockland, MA.

The land is adjacent to the former South Weymouth Naval Air Base, which is the on-going subject of major development plans. Flynn & Co. CEO and Listing Broker Dan Flynn said he sees the parcel's proximity to the air base as a major selling point.

"This area is slated to be the South Shore's next hot spot for development," Flynn said. "The parcel we've listed will benefit from the infrastructure improvements that the air base development demands. That will likely translate into greater accessibility and visibility for this site."

DANIEL J. FLYNN & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based real estate firm, has been contracted as the exclusive agent for a 41.5 acre parcel of underdeveloped land in Rockland, MA.

In addition to its proximity to the air base, the site is surrounded by several industrial and business parks and residential neighborhoods, and is close to the South Shore's major highway, Route 3.

"This is a prime site for many kinds of development," Flynn said. "We expect to locate a suitable buyer for this property quickly."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. is a full service real estate firm specializing in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate, real estate auctions, property management and construction. For more information, call 617-479-9000.

Through Neighborhood Housing Services, Dedham Institution For Savings $75,000 Available To Qualified First-Time Homebuyers

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore (NHS) and Dedham Institution for Savings (DIFS) have joined forces to offer financial assistance to potential First-Time Homebuyers.

This grant has been allocated for use as down payment and closing cost assistance funds and will be released on a first-come, first-serve basis. This pilot program leverages the combined resources of a local non-profit housing agency and a local savings bank.

A total of $75,000 has been reserved for this program as of Aug. 15. Eligible candidates must meet criteria for income, and geography by purchasing a home in the lending area serviced by both NHS and DIFS. Specific towns include Dedham, Randolph and Stoughton among others.

Mortgage loans will be made by Dedham Savings through MassHousing's (formerly known as MHFA) loan program. For qualified buyers, the mortgage may then be supplemented by down payment and/or closing cost assistance. Income guidelines are available on MassHousing's website and will vary based upon the location of the town or city researched.

Participants in this program are required to complete a certified MassHousing homebuyer's workshop offered through Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore. Dedham Savings offers classes in conjunction with NHS on a regularly scheduled basis.

Workshops offered through other MassHousing approved agencies are acceptable with a referral letter from NHS.

For more information about this new program, consumers can contact Debbie Kidd at Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2227, ext. 24.

Personnel at Dedham Savings to contact are Beverly Somerville, Community Loan Officer at (781) 320-4888 or Beth Santella, Loan Officer at (781) 320-4885.

Homebuyer Workshop At Crane Library Sept. 26

Neighborhood Housing Service, an MHFA & HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer Information Workshop in partnership with the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank Wednesday, Sept. 26 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage based on needs.

Each participant will have an opportunity to meet with Red Hilton from Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification. Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to utilize local down payment and closing costs grants available across the South Shore.

To register or more information, call 617-770-2227.

Estimated 6,000 Unite At Veterans' Memorial Stadium Prayer Vigil Unites City In Grief, Faith, Tolerance

By CRAIG SAUTERS

An estimated 6,000 Quincy residents filled the stands of Veterans' Memorial Stadium Sunday night to offer prayers for the victims of Sept. 11's terrorist attacks as well as reaffirm their faith in their country and one another.

"You are the backbone," Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue reminded Sunday night's audience, urging them to work together "to heal our good Uncle Sam."

With the ink on the programs barely dry, a crowd of all ages and backgrounds turned out on 48 hours notice for the interfaith prayer service organized by the city and led by the clergy of Quincy Point, traditional home to many faiths including the Islamic Center of New England, which has received various threats in the wake of terrorist attacks upon the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

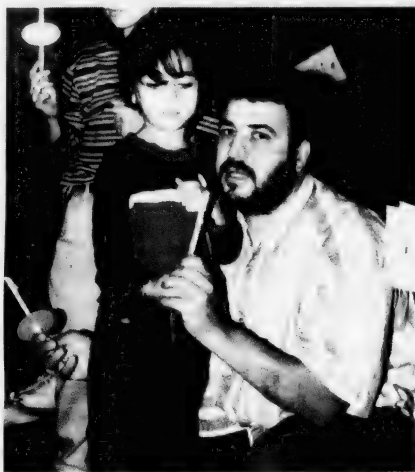

"America is grieved and so are Arab Americans," said Imam Talal Eid of the Islamic Center of New England. "We condemn this vicious and cowardly attack on innocent civilians and the destruction of property."

Adding that roughly 700 American Moslems "haven't come home yet" from the Sept. 11 attacks, he told those gathered in remembrance that "terrorism has no label. Its only label is blind hatred."

The Rev. Robert Monagle of St. Joseph's Church spoke of the tradition of tolerance in Quincy Point since its earliest days of shipbuilding and offered a pointed rebuke to the Sept. 11 terrorists.

"The perpetrators claim that they were pleasing God, that they were engaged in a 'holy war,'" Rev. Monagle said. "But we gather tonight as the clergy of Quincy to tell you our God is a loving God. Our God is not a God of Hate. Our God does not want innocent people to die."

Near the end of the service the Rev. Ann Suzedell of Quincy Point Congregational Church lit a "candle of hope," the flame of which was passed from candle to candle until the home side of the stadium shone in the darkness.

"The terrorists thought they could damage our faith and diminish our spirit of liberty," Rev. Suzedell said. "They were wrong. The light shines on."

In his opening remarks, Mayor James Sheets recalled America's Civil War and the horrors of World War II and promised that, similar to those dark days, America would emerge a stronger nation.

"This nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom," said Sheets, quoting the words of President Abraham Lincoln.

Sheets said Tuesday that he was "thrilled" with the way Sunday's interfaith vigil came together and thanked the Quincy Point clergy and the efforts of Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymondi for making the night possible.

"We had 5,000 candles and they were all gone at the end of the night," said Sheets. "It went very well and I think it was important that the Imam was there."

The interfaith vigil also included the singing of spiritual and patriotic songs — including "God Bless America" and "Let There Be Peace On Earth" — led by former City Council President Peter Kolson; the recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance; a moment of silence for the victims of Sept. 11's terrorism; and the presentation of colors by the honor guards of the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

Recognition was also given to the more than a dozen Quincy police officers recently returned from rescue efforts at "ground zero" in New York City as well as the more than 100 Quincy firefighters who have volunteered for relief efforts.

Although flags and candles were passed out for the event, many residents brought their own. Vigil participants filled the homeside stands of the stadium, estimated to hold 5,000 people, and spilled out onto the lawn and walkway.

The stands on the visitors' side of the stadium were draped with three large American flags.

At the end of the hour-long service, residents donated funds to firefighters and police officers standing by the gates, raising $12,923 for the New York City Police and Fire Widows' and Children's Benefit Fund.

One benefit of the fund, said Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor, is that funds raised go directly to the families of the rescuers who died with no intervening bureaucracy.

Those wishing to donate to the fund should send checks to: New York City Police and Fire Widows' and Children's Benefit Fund, P.O. Box 3713, Grand Central Station, New York City, NY 10163

Helping Children Cope With The Terrorist Attacks

By LAURA ORTH

The tragic events of Sept. 11 have left an overwhelming sense of anxiety, fear and uncertainty in people all across the United States. As we struggle to cope with our own feelings about the disaster, we understand that our children, too, are experiencing the same feelings of anxiety and helplessness. But parents, teachers, and other caregivers are often at a loss as to who to help children cope with such a traumatic life event.

Children react to trauma at varying rates and in a number of different ways. It's important not to push kids, but to let them cope in their own way and at their own pace. As adults, we can assist children with understanding and reacting to these tragedies by following some age-appropriate suggestions out-

Pre-School Age Children

During time of widespread fear and uncertainty, some younger children may revert to behaviors they had previously out-grown such as bed-wetting, thumb sucking, baby talk, or fear of sleeping alone. They may complain of stomach aches or headaches, experience nightmares, or even be reluctant to go to school. It is important to remember that these children are not misbehaving, they are simply afraid. As adults, we need to help them cope with these feelings.

- Reassure them they are safe
- Encourage them to talk and ask questions
- Explain what happened in a simple and honest manner

- Reinforce their sense of stability by keeping routines and schedules
- Limit exposure to media, especially television coverage of the events

One important note about talking to younger children, particularly those age four and under, is that parents must decide if they are going to discuss this tragedy with their children at all. It is very difficult to explain this matter to a very young child, and it may unduly frighten them. Each parent must decide what is right for them.

Grade School Age Children

Older children, such as grade school age children, may start to ask questions about the disaster. Try to answer them in clear and simple language, and be completely honest.

Children in this age group will experience feelings of concern for their own safety as well as the safety of those around them. Reassure them in specific ways, but avoid giving false reassurance such as "it'll never happen again." They will see through this and feel unsure about other reassurances you may offer.

- Avoid giving false reassurances
- Monitor their exposure to media
- Allow them to express themselves

- If they need to take a break from discussing it, let them
- Help them find ways to take appropriate action, such as collecting relief funds

Adolescents

Youth of this age are capable of understanding the more abstract aspects of the disaster, such as the political, philosophical, or financial ramifications of such an event. Adolescents may fluctuate between wanting to talk, and wanting to shut the whole matter out completely. Don't push them to talk, just let them know that the lines of communication are open when they need to discuss their concerns.

Adolescents may express their fear through acting out or regressing to younger habits, such as sleeping with a favorite stuffed animal. Don't discourage this behavior, simply allow them to get through this tough time in the ways that help relax and soothe them.

- Monitor media and internet exposure
- Encourage adolescents to discuss the events with family, friends, teachers, or clergy

- Suggest doing something positive, such as giving blood or donating food

Bayview Associates Can Help

There is no way to make sense of this kind of tragedy, however, helping children understand the events and cope with their reactions can reduce the risk of lasting emotional consequences. Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health, has licensed psychologists, social workers, and psychiatrists who can help. If your child could benefit from talking about the disaster with a licensed professional, call (617) 847-1950.

Laura Orth, LICSW, is program director of Child and Family Services at Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health. SSMH is a community resource providing mental health and substance abuse services throughout the South Shore, Southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod. For more information, call (617) 847-1950.

Tips On Raising A Strong Kid

(NAPS) -- What does it take to help a child excel in school, on the playing field, and in the community?

Who better to answer that question than the parents of the Strongest Kids in America?

Lat year, as part of the first Strongest Kid in America event (which rewarded a child with a $10,000 U.S. Savings bond for college), parents across the country were asked to write essays on how a child in their exhibited three aspects of "strength": academic strength, athletic strength, and strength of character in their community. The parents of the 25 finalists for the "Strongest Kid in America" honors were then asked to share their parenting tips.

Common Values

Pointers For Parents

While the winning essays focused on each child's talent, it's the parents who deserve credit for raising the kids. What are the common values the parents instilled in their children? Have a look:

- Determination -- Children must have the persistence, enthusiasm and discipline to achieve goals.
- Compassion -- Kids must have empathy for others.
- Confidence -- Children must have a strong sense of self and a belief in their abilities.

Top Tips

When asked what methods in particular help to achieve these goals, parents again responded ake. The most common answers were:

- Encourage reading
- Challenge your child academically through games and contest.
- Always praise your children when they accomplish a goal.
- Encourage your child to participate in sports.
- Participate in family recreational activities.
- Lead by example; be a role model for your child.
- Promote spirituality.
- Help your child to become more respectful and considerate of others.

What About Discipline?

No one's perfect, and children often learn their most valuable lessons by making mistakes. So how do these talented parents deal with their children when issues surface? Here are the ways the parents of the Strongest Kids in America handle problems and try to help prevent them in the future:

- Always communicate with your child -- never be afraid or reluctant to address an issue.
- Set limits and expectations and enforce them.
- Express your disapproval.
- Help children distinguish between right and wrong.
- Explain that actions have consequences.

These universal lessons should assist any parents as they help nurture and raise a child.

Heart-Healthy Shopping Made Simpler

(NAPS) -- If you're like the average shopper, you spend nearly three-quarters of an hour on each trip to the grocery. Many shoppers spend even more time scrutinizing food labels and packages, studying ingredient lists and labels for low fat, low cholesterol items. In fact, eight out of ten Americans say they are seeking out these types of foods in order to reduce their risk of heart attack and stroke.

Fortunately, heart-healthy shopping can be simpler than many people realize. According to dietitians, it helps to look for foods carrying the American Heart Association Food Certification Program's heart-check mark. The foods bearing the Association's red heart with the white check mark have been evaluated to ensure they meet the American Heart Association's nutritional criteria and can be part of a heart-healthy diet for people over the age of 20. In order to carry the heart-check mark, a single serving of a food product must:

- be low fat (less than or equal to 3 grams);
- have low saturated fat (less than or equal to 1 gram);

- have low cholesterol (less than or equal to 20 milligrams);
- have a sodium value of less than or equal to 480 milligrams for individual foods; and
- contain at least 10 percent of the Daily Value of one or more of these nutrients: proteins, vitamin A, vitamin C, calcium, iron or dietary fiber.

Meats must meet the USDA's standards for extra lean.

The heart-check mark is a convenient grocery shopping tool because you can see the information on food products when you're making your purchasing decision. Amid the dizzying array of food healthy claims, you can rely on the American Heart Association's heart-check mark. Shoppers can be confident because the information comes from what many consider the public's most reliable source of nutrition information, the American Heart Association.

For more information on diet and nutrition, visit www.americanheart.org or call toll free (800) AHA-USA1 and ask for a free copy of the Shop Smart With Heart brochure.

Game Marked By Candles, American Flags Presidents Blank Middleboro, 28-0

By CRAIG SALTERS

A hard-hitting, opportunistic Quincy High School defense set the tone Friday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium as the Presidents opened their season with a 28-0 victory over Middleboro.

Both teams stumbled out of the gate offensively in a first half marked by penalties. Quincy's offense, however, was able to get on track while the Schems failed to score against a Quincy defense led by senior line-backer and co-captain Tom Shruhan, senior lineman Chris Sullivan, and the special teams work of junior Sean Munchback, who also caught a 27-yard pass for a key first down in the third quarter.

Quincy's first score came with five minutes left in the first half after a muffed snap on a Middleboro punt gave the Presidents first down at the Middleboro 40-yard line.

Quincy quarterback and co-captain Mike Lorenzano took what the defense gave him, running a quarterback sneak for a first down on a crucial fourth and one, putting the ball near the Schem 28-yard line. Lorenzano then handed off to junior Matt Ramponi who broke two or three tackles before being tackled at the two-yard line. Quincy went back to the quarterback sneak on the very next play as Lorenzano dove in for the touchdown.

Quincy scored its second touchdown of the night a few minutes later when Ramponi kept his balance on a seven-yard pass from Lorenzano and stumbled backwards into the end zone.

In the second half senior Scott Kelly caught a 12-yard touchdown pass and the subsequent two-point conversion to put the score at 21-0 in favor of Quincy. The drive, which began at Quincy's own 48-yard line, was kept alive by senior running back Kris Kamborian who picked up valuable short yardage on a third down from the Middleboro 13-yard line.

Quincy's Ramponi capped off the night with a spectacular 65-yard run with less than a minute to go in the third quarter. A successful point-after by Shruhan put the game at 28-0, the final score of the evening.

Middleboro was not without its chances, thanks in part to the work of junior running back Kevin Avitabile, but costly turnovers by the Schems and a stingy team defense on the part of Quincy gave QHS an impressive win as it starts the 2001 season.

Friday night's game, the first since the tragic terrorist attacks on the nation Sept. 11, was marked by candles, flags waved by home and visiting fans alike, and a pregame address by Quincy High School Principal Robert Keuther. A spirited rendi-

BELT CHECK

When steering becomes nearly impossible and a sharp squeal comes from under the hood, the alternator light on the dash may announce that the accessory drive belt for the power-steering pump has slipped or popped off. Most newer cars and trucks use a single, serpentine belt to drive many accessories. These belts are typically tensioned by an idler pulley with an automatic tensioner. Inspection begins with the belt and each of the pulleys. If the sidewalls on the underside of a V-belt appear to be glazed, it is a sign of slippage. This is typically caused by improper adjustment, or, possibly, a bad pulley. It is important to inspect for potential causes of belt failures to avoid future problems. Keeping your car in top condition, whether it is owned, leased, new, or pre-owned will greatly extend its life. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, for most all of your car's repairs, we have modern test equipment, the right parts, and the best ASE Certified technicians available in the area. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Get acquainted with us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: Sometimes, engine belt problems stem from a tensioner housing spring that is out of position or broken.

Drops Opener To Marshfield, 27-8

North Home Opener Friday Versus Randolph

North Quincy football looks to rebound after a season-opening loss to Marshfield when it opens the home portion of its fall season Friday night at 7 p.m. The Red Raiders host Randolph at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Last Friday night, North dropped its first game at Marshfield, 27-8. Leading the Rams was Jeremy Gonsalves who barreled for 184 yards and four touchdowns on only 13 carries.

James Coughlin scored Quincy's lone touchdown on a 11-yard run with only seven seconds to play.

Pat Bregoli led the Raiders, churning out 80 yards on 16 carries. North's offense moved the ball fairly well from 20 to 20, but stalled after it got to the Rams' red zone.

Marshfield scored first midway through the first quarter, when Gonsalves ran 25 yards for a touchdown.

Two minutes into the second quarter, he led Marshfield in another drive and scored on a 3-yard flanker reverse.

In the third quarter, Gonsalves swept up the left side on another counter play for a 13-yard touchdown. He closed out the Rams' scoring with a five-yard sweep in the fourth quarter.

North Quincy stopped one second-half drive when Gabe Parsons recovered a fumble on the 19-yard line.

Rookies, Untested Upperclassmen Keys For North Cross Country

North Quincy Cross Country Coach Geoff Hennessy must rely on some rookies and untested upperclassmen if he hopes to match last year's 5-3 record in this fall's boys' cross country team.

Captain John Fidalgo has proven an adept leader getting many new boys to come out for the first time, several from North's tournament baseball team. Also out for the first time is basketball standout senior Phil McGillicuddy who tried spring track and qualified for states in two events.

Freshmen include Rob Gardner (Will's brother), Chris Mercurio (brother of standout high jumper Katy Mercurio), Eric Wilson (sister Lynda was a four-time State Meet qualifier), Mike Nee and Ted Fawell.

Sophomores include Nick Anderson, Mike Au-Yeung, Jian Chen, Tony Huang, David Vo, Jason Wong, Wai-Kin Louie, and Cheung Yu. A new junior is Dom Delgado. Seniors are Wayne Moynihan and Mike Feetham.

Coach Hennessy will be joined by new assistant Damian Kellogg, who will work primarily with the boys. Kellogg, who teaches science at North, ran for Penn State and currently runs for the Cambridge Sports Union. He served as Peter Chrisom's assistant last spring.

North will be hard-pressed to replace Jeff Bartoloni and Brian Breslin, who were a strong 1-2 punch in the OCL. Hennessy sees new member Marshfield, Falmouth and Barnstable up front in the chase for the OCL crown with Silver Lake a dark horse.

The girls finished at .500 (4-4) a year ago and have graduated Lynda Nguyen and Kellyrose O'Brien, but welcome back All-star Natalie Caron who will share the captain's duties with four-year veteran Meghan Haines.

A nice freshmen crop should help. Caitlin Dow, Christina Forde, Katelyn Girard, Adrienne Doucette, Christi Haines (Meghan's sister) and Val Ayer are improving daily and should help immediately.

Sophomores include Beth Goodrich, Elisabeth Gribaudo, Lauren Ready and Lisa Rubino. Goodrich was a standout in basketball and softball a year ago. O'Brien's known quantity on the track (sisters Kellyrose and Genevieve) were both standouts. Rubino and Jafarzedeh attended Brown University Cross Country camp this summer gaining valuable experience, and Hennessy calls Ready and Luo his most improved runners from a year ago.

"Everyone's better, we're deeper, if we stay healthy we could do okay," he said.

North's meet with Taunton last Tuesday was postponed to Oct. 11. The official OCL opener was Tuesday at Falmouth. Hennessy sees Falmouth and Barnstable as the front runners for the girls OCL crown.

How To Report A Crime: Summary Of Steps

The following is a summary of steps to take when reporting a crime to the police. You should familiarize yourself with these instructions, so that you will be prepared in an emergency.

- Identify yourself - Name, Address Phone Number -- If you wish to remain anonymous you may. The Police will respond to the reported situation as if you had identified yourself.
- State the type of crime (burglary, assault, suspicious person or vehicle, etc.)
- Is the crime in progress or is this a past crime.
- Where is, or did, crime occur. (Specific address, name of building or other landmark, color of building and location on street.)
- Suspect armed. (gun, knife, other weapon)
- Description of suspect (approximate height, weight, race, clothing, hair color and length, male, female, and how many)
- Description of vehicle used. (Color, year, make, body style, license number and any other characteristics of the car: loud muffler, dents, stickers, missing hubcap).
- Direction in which suspect traveled. (Toward another street or if on foot between what homes or businesses).
- Stay on the line until the dispatcher tells you to hang up.

• After calling the Police, call your neighbors and let them know what is going on. You all will become the eyes and ears of the police.

TERMINOLOGY WHEN REPORTING A CRIME

- BURGLARY: An unlawful or attempted forcible entry into a home or any structure to commit a crime (property crime)
- ROBBERY: The forcible taking of another's property against his/her will, by violence and/or putting him/her in fear (person-to-person crime).
- LARCENY: The unlawful taking of property without force/violence.
- ASSAULT: An intentional, unlawful threat by word or act to do violence to a person, coupled with an apparent ability to do so.
- BATTERY: Physical assault of a person with, or without the use of a weapon.

Visiting Nurse Of Boston Joe Murphy Golf Tourney At Presidents' Golf Course

The Visiting Nurse Association (VNA) of Boston -- the largest home health care agency in the northeast -- and the Murphy family of Hyde Park are partnering for the third annual Joe Murphy Golf Tournament Oct. 1 at Presidents' Golf Course in North Quincy.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the VNA of Boston which cares for infants, children and many isolated elders who don't have the necessary resources to pay for proper healthcare. With the help of tournament sponsors and other agency supporters, the Agency last year provided free and subsidized home care to more than 17,000 patients in Greater Boston, including more than 1,070 in Quincy.

The tournament is an expression from the Murphy family of their appreciation for the high-quality, compassionate care Mr. Murphy received from VNA of Boston staff. With the help of agency nurses, he was able to remain at home, where he wanted to be and with the people who mattered the most.

The VNA of Boston is currently looking for items that can be bid on during the live auction, or given away as gifts. The agency also seeks tournament sponsors and sponsors for a number of golf-oriented items.

Golfers are also needed. Individuals cost $125, and foursomes are $500. To sign-up, or for more information about sponsorship and donation opportunities, call the Visiting Nurses at 617-779-3303.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) After much traveling this year, you're due for some settled time with family and friends. Use this period to check out situations that will soon require a lot of serious decision making.

October 22) Confidence grows as you work your way through some knotty situations. Watch out for distractions from well-meaning supporters that could slow things down.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Consider spending more time contemplating the possibilities of an offer before opting to accept or reject it. But once you make a decision, act on it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're in a very strong position this week to tie up loose ends in as many areas as possible. Someone close to you has advice you might want to heed.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Congratulations. This is the week you've been waiting for: After a period of sudden stops and fitful starts, your plans can now move ahead with no significant disruptions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're in an exceptionally strong position this week to make decisions on many still-unresolved matters, especially those involving close personal relationships.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The new moon starts this week off with some positive movement in several areas. A special person becomes a partner in at least one of the major plans you'll be working on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You work hard and get things done. You also inspire others to do their best. You would do well heading up a major corporation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep that keen Bovine mind focused on your financial situation as it begins to undergo some changes. Consider your money moves carefully. Avoid impulsive investments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll need to adjust some of your financial plans now that things are changing more quickly than you expected. All the facts you need haven't yet emerged, so move cautiously.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Personal and professional relationships dominate this period. Try to keep things uncomplicated to avoid misunderstandings that can cause problems down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That elusive goal you'd been hoping to claim is still just out of reach. But something else has come along that could prove just as desirable, if only you would take the time to check it out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to get away from some much needed rest and relaxation. You'll return refreshed and ready to take on the workplace challenge that awaits you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Irish Rovers To Perform Benefit For Food Pantry

The nationally-acclaimed Irish Rovers will perform a benefit holiday show Wednesday, Dec. 5 at Lombardo's in Randolph to raise money for the Interfaith Social Service's annual "Feed the Hungry" campaign.

The legendary Irish band, noted for spirited sing-alongs and rousing Irish medleys, will be performing both holiday favorites and popular hits from the last 30 years, including their signature song, "The Unicorn," a musical rendition of the original poem by Shel Silverstein. The Rovers are also well-known for their favorite song, "Wasn't That A Party."

"We are really looking forward to the Irish Rovers' Christmas Party," said Bettyanne Muir Lang of Interfaith Social Services. "The event will help spread joy during the holiday season while supporting a very worthy cause."

Tickets are $50 each. Donations are tax-deductible. All proceeds go to Feed the Hungry, which serves the Pantry Shelf food program of the Quincy-based Interfaith Social Services.

The Pantry Shelf has been supplying nutritious and wholesome food to those in need throughout the South Shore community for more than 25 years. Last year, the Pantry Shelf served over 6,000 people throughout the region -- including more than 2,500 children.

Cocktail hour begins at 6:30. The Rovers will take to the stage at 8 p.m.

For more information on buying tickets or making donations to Feed the Hungry, call the ISS office at 617-773-6203.

Big Sister Association Information Sessions Oct. 17

Caregiver Support Group At Allerton House

Adult Children of Aging Parents (ACAP) will meet on the first Thursday of every month, beginning on Thursday, Oct. 4 from 7:15 to 8 p.m. at Allerton House at Hancock Park Assisted Living Community, located at 164 Parkway in Quincy.

ACAP is a newly formed self-help support group that brings together family caregivers, relatives, and supportive others who have concerns for the well-being of an aging person.

The mission of the group is to relieve the social isolation of the family caregiver and to enlarge one's support base.

For further information, call the Welch Education office at 781-337-4542.

Bethany Congregational

The Rev. Gary Smothers, interim minister, will conduct the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

His sermon is entitled, "A Sad Story." He will also have a moment with the children of the Church School before they go to their classes.

Scripture reader will be Barbara MacFarlane. Pam Sawyer and Danielle Palmariello will serve as greeters.

Music for the service will feature the Chancel Choir directed by Tom Boyer and soprano soloist Lewann Mina.

Doris Allen and Herman and Dorothy Mersereau will host the Fellowship Hour following the worship service.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers.

Covenant Congregational

Guest speaker Julie Bliss will give the sermon "We Don't Earn God's Peace, We Learn God's Peace" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., Quincy Center.

God Bless America*

While the storm clouds gather far across the sea,
Let us swear allegiance to a land that's free,
Let us all be grateful for a land so fair,
As we raise our voices in a solemn prayer:

God Bless America
Land that I love
Stand beside her, and guide her
Through the night with the light from above,
From the mountains, to the plains
To the oceans, white with foam
God Bless America
My home sweet home,
God Bless America
My home sweet home.

Deware Funeral Home

Registry Book For Terrorist Victims

In this time of national mourning, the Deware Funeral Home of Quincy and the more than 150 Dignity Memorial Funeral Providers throughout America invite the public to express their sympathy to the families of terrorist victims and the firefighters and police officers who lost their lives while attempting to rescue them.

Fore residents of Quincy and the South Shore, a registry book is available for signing at the Wollaston Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy.

The books will be collected and become part of a permanent memorial to the victims.

As a sign of national unity, Freedom Ribbons will also be made available to all visitors. The striped ribbons borrow from the colors of the American flag, with red signifying the victims; white, the affirmation of freedom; and blue representing the support of our military.

In addition to the local register signing, an opportunity for online memorialization of the victims and a national listing of participating Dignity Memorial locations is available at www.dignitymemorial.com or by calling the Deware Funeral Home at 617-472-1137.

Register books are available for signing starting Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and noon to 4 p.m. weekends in the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy. Register books will be available for signing until Sept. 30.

God Bless America*

While the storm clouds gather far across the sea,
Let us swear allegiance to a land that's free,
Let us all be grateful for a land so fair,
As we raise our voices in a solemn prayer:

God Bless America
Land that I love
Stand beside her, and guide her
Through the night with the light from above,
From the mountains, to the valleys
To the oceans, white with foam
God Bless America
My home sweet home.
God Bless America
My home sweet home.

Deware Funeral Home

Registry Book For Terrorist Victims

In this time of national mourning, the Deware Funeral Home of Quincy and the more than 150 Dignity Memorial Funeral Providers throughout America invite the public to express their sympathy to the families of terrorist victims and the firefighters and police officers who lost their lives while attempting to rescue them.

For residents of Quincy and the South Shore, a registry book is available for signing at the Wollaston Chapel of the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy. The books will be collected and become part of a permanent memorial to the victims.

As a sign of national unity, Freedom Ribbons will also be made available to all visitors. The striped ribbons borrow from the colors of the American flag, with red signifying the victims; white, the affirmation of freedom; and blue representing the support of our military.

In addition to the local registry signing, an opportunity for online memorialization of the victims and a national listing of participating Dignity Memorial locations is available at www.dignitymemorial.com or by calling the Deware Funeral Home at 617-472-1137.

Register books are available for signing starting Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and noon to 4 p.m. weekends in the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Quincy. Register books will be available for signing until Sept. 30.

Marie Curry Walk Raises $100,000 For Free Mammograms

The fourth annual Marie Curry Walk will raise more than $100,000, announces the Quincy Medical Center.

More than 700 people participated in this year's event held Sunday. Some 600 walkers took part last year.

Funds raised will provide free mammograms for women in need and promote breast cancer awareness.

Christine Schuster, president and CEO of Quincy Medical Center, said proceeds from the walk provide receive free screenings for women and other medical services at QMC.

Schuster emphasized people can turn to QMC for help in receiving mammograms, even if they don't have insurance.

Mammograms at QMC range in cost from $90 to $180.

Proceeds from the walk go towards a fund named for Marie Curry, who died of breast cancer in 1995. Her husband, local businessman Bob Curry established the Marie Curry Fund in 1996 with a $100,000 donation. To date, the Fund has raised more than $600,000, primarily from the walk.

The event is co-sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on Women and Quincy Medical Center.

West Nile Virus Found In 3 More Dead Crows In City

Three additional dead crows in Quincy have tested positive for the West Nile Virus, bringing the total number of infected birds located in the city to five.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health contacted the Quincy Health Department Sept. 17 to report the additional crows, which were submitted to the laboratory between Sept. 7 and Sept. 12 and were located near 91 Assabet Rd., 10 Lois Terrace, and 23 Berry St.

Although the state reports that 75 to 100 percent of the birds now being tested are positive for the virus, officials say an outbreak among humans in Massachusetts is unlikely due in large part to the time of year and the cooler weather.

While dead birds are an indicator of the presence of West Nile Virus, the disease is spread to humans through mosquitoes and, to date, no mosquitoes have tested positive for the virus in Quincy and the numbers of mosquitoes are decreasing due to the colder weather.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project, which placed a "gravid trap" along Furnace Brook Parkway in late August to collect and test mosquitoes, will continue to monitor the trap. The aerosol fogging for nuisance control has ended, again due to the cold weather experienced during the early morning hours. However, larval control measures continue to be applied by Norfolk County Mosquito Control in the salt marshes of the city.

The city's Department of Public Works continues to assess catch basins located near locations where birds have tested positive to determine if further larvicide treatments are warranted.

Again, although an outbreak of the West Nile Virus among humans in Massachusetts is deemed highly unlikely, people are still urged to take necessary personal precautions.

Dead birds should continue to be reported to the Quincy Health Department at (617) 376-1285 or 1286. The Health Department will in turn notify the Animal Control Officer who will assess whether the bird is suitable to be submitted for testing.

For more information contact the Quincy Health Department at (617) 376-1278, 1285, or 1286.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SEALING THE DEAL

Parents of young children are well acquainted with sealants, the clear or whitish plastic material that is applied to the chewing surfaces of the back teeth (or any area where decay looks likely to occur). Sealants act as barriers, protecting teeth from the plaque and acid that can lead to cavities. Children are prime candidates to have their permanent molars sealed because these chewing teeth have crevices that might trap food particles and encourage the growth of bacteria that give rise to tooth decay. Adults are also good candidates for sealants, especially if they are at high risk for decay due to chewing surfaces with pits and fissures, inherited dental factors, or limited ability to brush and floss.

If you have any further questions about sealants, please ask us. Sealants are a proven technique that may be suitable for preventing decay. Our goal is to help preserve your smile throughout a lifetime, and sealants can help make that possible. We welcome you to the 21st century of modern dentistry and to an unparalleled level of service in your search for a beautiful smile. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule a dental appointment. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Adults who are taking medications that cause "dry mouth" may also want to protect their teeth with sealants.

JOYS OF FREE FALL are reflected in the face of Bob Noble (bottom) as he and veteran chutist Paul Peckham start their descent from 13,500 feet to celebrate Bob's 50th birthday.

Bob Noble: 'Something I Wanted To Do' QHS Coach Leaps Into 50th Birthday

By TOM HENSHAW

It was something that Bob Noble, the head football coach at Quincy High School, "wanted to do for some time," particularly since former President George H. W. Bush did it for his 78th birthday.

So last week, his wife, Donna, got him the ultimate gift for his 50th birthday — a parachute jump.

At precisely 1:30 Sunday afternoon, Bob Noble, clipped to veteran jumper Paul Peckham, bailed out of a twin-engine plane 13,500 feet over the central Massachusetts town of Orange.

They were in free fall for the first 7,500 feet, stabilized by a drogue chute. Then the main chute opened and they floated softly and safely to earth and a champagne celebration.

Most of the Noble family and a few friends were on hand to watch Bob's big moment in the sky. In fact, one of his friends, Chris Forte of Everett, liked it so much he decided at the last minute to jump himself.

Included in the gallery were his wife, Donna; his daughters, Kathryn and Liz; his sister, Alicia Gardner; a nephew, William Gardner; his mother and father, Gloria and Bob Sr.; and two friends, Angela Hogrell and Chris Forte.

Peckham, a member of the Orange sky diving organization, Jump Town, is a former paratrooper and a veteran of more than 1,100 jumps.

City Council Gives Unanimous Approval

Full Compensation For City Workers Called As Reserves

by CRAIG SALTERS

City employees serving as reservists who are called to active duty need not worry about losing weekly pay, insurance benefits, or any other benefit while serving their country.

Acting in the wake of Sept. 11's terrorist attacks and the nation's increasing state of military readiness, the City Council Monday night unanimously passed a resolve compensating city employees called into active duty with regular pay minus their military allowance and continuing any current benefits such as insurance.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott authored the resolve, saying it was important that city employees not be adversely affected when called to active duty.

Although the resolve is for all city employees, McDermott said the resolution was introduced to address concerns of the city's police officers and firefighters.

Seeks Documents On Nearly $100 Million In 'Tipping Fees'

Phelan Files Freedom Of Information Request On Quarry Hills

Mayoral candidate William Phelan filed a request Sept. 21 under the Massachusetts Freedom of Information Act to obtain all city documents pertaining to the Quarry Hills Golf Course Project in West Quincy.

Phelan said the purpose of his inquiry was find out exactly where the nearly $100 million in "tipping fees" paid out to the project by the Massachusetts Highway Department, the agency in charge of the Central Artery Project, went.

"I want to know why the city will not end up with the approximately $100 million (in tipping fees) and who, in fact, will," said Phelan, who called the golf course project an example of an "insider deal" approved by the mayor. Mayor James Sheets responded by saying that the project go through the office of City Auditor Michael McFarland and that all funds were being used properly.

"All the money has gone into completing the project," said Sheets, who added that the project is an

McCauley Warns Of Possible State Aid Decrease

Councillor Frank McCauley has sent a memo to fellow councillors warning of a possible decrease in state aid for Fiscal Year 2002 and urging the council to approve no new major expenditures against the revenue of FY2002.

McCauley, chairman of the Finance Committee, said a review of recent figures shows that the city's "estimated expenditures exceed estimated revenue by $1,339,745" and warned that "the decline in state revenue for Fiscal Year 2002, if it continues through September, could result in a drop in state aid (for the city)."

The mayor's office responded by saying that McCauley had made similar predictions in the past which did not come to fruition.

"Councillor McCauley projected a deficit last year and there was no change in What if you had a heart attack like Quincy Police Chief Frane did in December? He was rushed to Quincy Medical Center. That saved his life.

But what if Jim Sheets hadn't fought to keep that hospital alive? Negotiated. Spoken out. Lobbied on Beacon Hill. Traveled to Washington, DC. What if he didn't have the experience to do what needed to be done?

What if Mayor Sheets had given up hope, as so many others did?

— Quincy Police Chief Thomas Frane

What if our hospital had closed and the nearest E.R. was blocked by miles of rush-hour traffic? Could you survive?

Yet he didn't give up. As he has so often, Mayor Jim Sheets worked tirelessly to the eleventh hour to keep Quincy safe. To keep Quincy alive.

Quincy is a great city. And thanks to Mayor Jim Sheets, it just keeps getting better.

Redistricting Plan Keeps Delahunt's 10th Pretty Much Intact

The State Senate has released a congressional redistricting plan based on the 2000 census that pretty much preserves Cong. Bill Delahunt's serpentine coastal District 10 with only minor changes.

The proposed plan trades Avon, Holbrook, 13 precincts in Brockton and one precinct in Hanover from District 10 in return for Pembroke, Plympton and three precincts in Rockland.

A Senate document said the plan "reflects practical geographic, demographic and political realities and principals of political continuity, fair electoral opportunity and population equality."

"We tried to recognize the principals of redistricting," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "We tried not to pit one congressman against another. We tried to recognize all the old traditional boundaries."

Delahunt's district re-

WILLIAM DELAHUNT mains top-heavy in the north with 88,025 people in Quincy, 53,988 in Weymouth and 51,701 in Plymouth, but the Cape is moving up with 47,821 in Barnstable and 32,660 in Falmouth.

The Senate plan also eliminates the possibility of a fight between Congs. Marty Meehan and James Tierney and gives minorities a better shot at electing a congressman from District 8.

"We created a district that is 51 percent minority or people of color by removing Belmont and Wattertown and adding wards in Boston," said Morrissey.

Michael Capuano is now the congressman.

Morrissey said under the Senate plan all 10 districts in the state will have either 634,909 or 634,910, which continues an equality plan handed down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Under the old plan," said Morrissey, "12 cities and 23 precincts were divided between congressional district. Under our plan, only 10 cities and 10 precincts are divided."

"Achieving full population equality requires that a few cities and town be divided into more than one congressional district," explained the Senate release.

"The Senate plan, however, divides fewer municipalities than the old map and does not divide any municipality between more than two congressional districts."

The Sun Begins Its 34th Year

The Quincy Sun begins its 34th year with this issue as "Historic Quincy's Home-town Weekly Newspaper."

The first issue of The Sun appeared Sept. 26, 1968 and since then we have concentrated coverage on what's going on in Quincy.

And we're proud to carry the name Quincy in our banner.

We have been blessed with loyal readers down through the years, readers who like having a community newspaper—a newspaper devoted to their community interests.

And we have readers in just about all 50 states, former Quincy residents who like to keep up on what's going on "back home." As they say, "Once a Quincyite, always a Quincyite."

The Sun has won a number of New England Press awards down through the years.

It was also designated a National Blue Ribbon Newspaper for its "high standards of service to the community."

And has been recognized by many local organizations for that service to the community.

A newspaper has a responsibility to its community and to its readers to report the news fairly and accurately. We have tried to do that since 1968 and will continue to do so.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 27, 1540, in Rome, the Society of Jesus — a Roman Catholic missionary organization — receives its charter from Pope Paul III. The Jesuit order played an important role in the Counter-Reformation and eventually succeeded in converting millions around the world to Catholicism.

• On Sept. 24, 1789, the Judiciary Act of 1789 is passed by Congress and signed by President George Washington, establishing the Supreme Court of the United States as a tribunal made up of six justices who were to serve on the court until death or retirement.

• On Sept. 25, 1897, author William Faulkner is born near Oxford, Miss. In 1949, he won the Nobel Prize in literature. His "Collected Stories" (1950) won the National Book Award.

• On Sept. 30, 1955, actor James Dean is killed when his Porsche 550 Spyder crashes head-on into another car on a deserted stretch of highway near Paso Robles, Calif. The tormented young actor was the embodiment of an entire generation's restless rebellion, made famous by his role in "Rebel Without a Cause."

• On Sept. 26, 1960, for the first time in U.S. history, a debate between major party presidential candidates is shown on television. John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in a Chicago studio to discuss U.S. domestic matters.

• On Sept. 29, 1988, Stacy Allison of Portland, Ore., becomes the first American woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest, which at 29,035 feet above sea level is the highest point on earth.

• On Sept. 28, 1989, former Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos, whose corrupt regime spanned 20 years, dies in exile in Hawaii three years after being driven from his country by a popular front led by Corazon Aquino.

Can They Move Up?

Will the candidates who took the top spots in the preliminary election Sept. 11 hold them Nov. 6? Or, will a runner-up or two -- or more -- over-take them?

The latter might find encouragement in Quincy's political past in both ward and at-large city council races. Let's take a look:

This year Kevin Coughlin ran 235 votes behind John Garland in Ward 3; James Mullaney 401 behind Douglas Gutro in Ward 5 and Maryann Mahony 656 behind Ward 6 incumbent Joseph Newton.

It would appear that Garland, Gutro and Newton would have a definite edge in the final election. But, in politics, there apparently are no guarantees.

Leo Kelly, who has been in his share of political battles, recalls four elections in Ward 1 in which the second place finisher in the preliminary election went on to win in the final.

In 1963, Leo Hannon topped Frank McCauley by a scant four votes in the preliminary election. But McCauley won the final -- by 46 votes.

Hannon also figured in the next one in 1967. He took first place over Edward Graham by 344 votes in the preliminary but Graham came back the winner by 284 votes in the final.

Kelly was involved in the next one in 1973 with Paul Harold. Harold won the preliminary by 166 votes. Kelly took the final by 48.

The fourth was in 1984 when Kelly left the Ward 1 seat after being elected to six terms to take a Quincy Housing Authority appointment.

Robert Johnston, late headmaster of the Woodward School and newcomer Michael Cheney locked horns in a special election squeaker to fill the seat.

Johnston finished first in the preliminary by eight votes. Cheney came back in the final to win by 79.

The Ward 1 seat was open in all four of those elections and the preliminary results were a lot closer than this year's. And the Ward 3 seat being vacated by incumbent Patrick McDermott was the only ward seat open going into the election.

But you might say the Ward 5 seat is now open with incumbent Steve Durkin losing a nomination to Mullaney by 28 votes.

John Cain and David McGillicuddy who weren't nominated are throwing their support to Coughlin in the Ward 3 race. Cain had 828 votes and McGillicuddy 308 which they hope to move into the Coughlin camp.

Durkin, as of this writing, hadn't indicated if he will take a neutral stand in Ward 5 or back either Gutro or Mullaney.

Mahony is left with an incumbent to deal with and will need a chunk of some of the Patrick Conroy and William Kiley votes (each got 369) to catch Newton.

But moving from second to first in ward races can be done as those four Ward 1 elections prove. Will it or won't it happen this year?

AND, THE COUNCIL at-large picture can also change from the preliminary to the final election. It has at least six times since 1959.

This year incumbents Tim Cahill and Frank McCauley and Joseph Finn took the top three spots in that order. McCauley 215 votes behind Cahill and Finn 1,035 behind McCauley.

John Keenan was fourth, trailing Finn by 609 votes.

Both are after the seat Paul Harold is leaving.

That fourth spot has been a good omen for candidates is six preliminaries as they went on to win one of the three seats in the final election.

But in four of those elections, the candidate had the same name: John Quinn, a name with political magic.

He went from fourth to third place winner in both 1959 and 1963, to first in 1967 and to second in 1977.

George McDonald zoomed up from fourth in the 1969 preliminary to first in the final. And, in 1975 Paul Harold jumped from fourth to second in the final.

QUINN

Can Keenan do it this year? He will have to get up some steam with Finn running strong.

Although they finished fifth and sixth respectively, Brian McNamee and Jimmy Liang consider themselves still in the ball game and will be out there campaigning to move up the ladder.

McDONALD

HAROLD

Liang made Quincy political history as the first Asian-American to ever be nominated for an elective office.

In what order will the six finish?

THE FACT THAT those two possible recounts that loomed election night didn't materialize would appear to be a tribute to the accuracy of the city's present optiscan voting system, City Clerk Joseph Shea believes.

Ward 5 incumbent Steve Durkin and Ward 3 contender John Cain lost nominations by just 28 and 43 votes respectively.

In the old days of paper ballots and later the punch card system, those close votes would virtually have meant automatic recounts.

But because the new system with modern computer counting is so accurate, both Durkin and Cain opted not to file for recounts.

The new system, of course, is also speedier with tabulation of the results. The preliminary election results were known by 9 o'clock, an hour after the polls closed.

SHEA

YOU MIGHT SAY Frank McCauley is running -- and limping -- for re-election to the city council at-large.

McCauley was campaigning door-to-door in North Quincy a week ago and slipped on porch stairs at a Hovey St. house, pulling a muscle in the left thigh area.

"I can walk," he says, "but I'm taking it easy. I should be back in full swing shortly."

McCauley, incidentally, is the only person in the city's history to have held all four elective offices: mayor, councillor at-large, ward councillor and school committee.

MILESTONE: Good friend Frank Kearns celebrates No. 89 Sunday and is still keeping active.

A Quincy Housing Authority commissioner, he is a long-time advocate for the city's elderly, homeless and needy. He received The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award in 1991 for his volunteer work including serving meals at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

He's been a friend indeed to many in need.

Happy birthday, kid.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the newly built Metropolitan Boulevard or what is now known as Quincy Shore Drive. The road actually created the beach along here because Quincy's shore in this area was mostly marshland. The fence on the right was to keep people from falling into the marsh. The road also was used to cover a new sewer main that was put in for service from Squantum to Nut Island in Houghs Neck. Long a suspect in Wollaston Beach's pollution mystery, that sewer main is now almost one hundred years old. The hill in the distance was Rufe's Hummock, a small drumlin at the end of Fenno Street that has since been leveled. Before the Boulevard was built there were a half dozen cottages on the hummock.

Honor The Faith Of All The People

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
It was very special to take part in the recent Sunday Evening Candle Light Vigil held at Veteran's Memorial Stadium in Quincy to see the love and faith of so many come together in this dark time of America's history. It has been very touching indeed to see the outpouring of faith, hope, and patriotism that has been sweeping the country.

There was one thing, however, that caused me grave concern. Though the Imam and the Jewish Rabbi rightly proclaimed the name of God in their words to the people, the Christian leaders remained silent as far as invoking the name of Jesus Christ. Though they spoke and spoke e eloquently. His name was not mentioned. A huge percentage of this nation is Christian and how alarming it is that many people seem to feel it is inappropriate or not politically correct to mention Jesus Christ's name publicly. I believe this is a sad and dangerous precedent.

As we as a nation truly work and walk and pray together in these dark times, let us take a long, hard look at this tendency so that together we might truly honor not only the Lord but the faith of all of our people.

Thanks From The American Red Cross

(The following is an open letter to the readers of The Quincy Sun)

Dear Readers,
In the aftermath of the tragic events of Sept. 11, the public has been tremendously supportive of the American Red Cross in our efforts to care for the victims, their loved ones, emergency workers, and others. Your amazing response enables us to help these people with the vital gifts of blood and emotional as well as physical support.

Since the morning of Sept. 11, hundreds of individuals, corporations, and organizations have called, stopped by our office and blood donation centers, or contacted us to give their blood, their money, and their time. With your caring, generous assistance we have been able to provide crucial emotional support, guidance, and referrals. We are meeting the needs for blood in New York and Washington and everywhere else blood is needed around the nation. We have offered shelter, warm blankets, food, and beverages to victims and their families and to the courageous fire, police, and other rescue workers at the disaster sites and at airports around the country, around the clock.

And here in Massachusetts we have set up a telephone number for Massachusetts residents who have lost or missing immediate family members as a result of the World Trade Center, Pentagon, or Pennsylvania plane crashes. The Red Cross assistance will be provided on a case by case basis and may include assistance with transportation to funeral services, financial assistance for funerals, and support from Red Cross-trained disaster mental health volunteers who are licensed, mental healthcare professionals.

The number is 1-800-564-1234, ext. 480 and will be staffed from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily with a voicemail service after hours.

On behalf of all of us at Red Cross, I would like to express my deepest appreciation to each and every one of you for this tremendous outpouring of concern and assistance. Together, we will continue to respond over the weeks and months ahead. The American Red Cross has always relied upon the remarkable compassion of our donors and volunteers to sustain us through traumatic times and you never fail us. Thank you.

American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay

Show No Mercy Over NYC, DC Attacks

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
With regard to the cowardly and deadly attacks on the World Trade Center in New York and the Pentagon in Washington, DC, I hope that the United States Army has not destroyed the napalm that was used during World War II. In my opinion, it is more effective than any long-range guided missile for destroying a city.

As Senator John McCain stated, "May God have mercy on them because we won't."

10 Offices Moved To City Hall Annex

By PAUL HAROLD

Ten offices were moved this week to the city hall annex on Saville St. under the direction of Department of Public Works Commissioner Charles Herbert.

The consolidation, Herbert said, would result in greater efficiency. Departments moved included public works, sewer, cemetery, purchasing, wire and veterans housing.

MEADOWBROOK EXPANSION OPPOSED

Two hundred West Quincy residents protested the proposed $1 million expansion of the Meadowbrook apartment complex between Furnace Brook Parkway and Connell St.

Leading the opposition was Ward 4 Councillor John O'Brien who said neighbors always understood that single family homes would be built in the area. Councillor at-large Frank Orcutt also opposed the zoning change, saying the proponents' argument that the housing would benefit veterans was not accurate since few veterans could afford the $93.50 monthly rents.

NOON RELIGIOUS PROGRAMS RESUMED

The Quincy Church Attendance Council announced the noon-time religious programs at the Strand Theater would resume for four days beginning in October. The theme of the first program was "Interfaith In Action."

The program was sponsored by the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Probuc clubs as well as the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

Council leaders included Walter Carroll, Louis George, W. Roy Dawes and Rev. Victor Sawyer, founding president.

The contest, sponsored jointly in Massachusetts by the Treasury Department and Liberty Mutual Group with assistance from the Massachusetts Department on Education, was open to students in Grades four, five, and six and received over 950 entries from schools across the state.

Kevin Nguyen, a sixth grader at the Sterling Middle School, received second place and a $500 Series EE Savings Bond; Jimmy Tran, a seventh grader from the Sterling Middle School, received third place and a $200 Series EE Savings Bond; and Steven Nguyen, a seventh grader also from the Sterling Middle School, received honorable mention and a $50 Series EE Savings Bond.

Bond awards were provided by Liberty Mutual Group.

After a luncheon hosted by Liberty Mutual, an awards ceremony was held aboard the USS Constitution.

August Moon Festival Saturday At Welcome Young Playground

The seventh annual Quincy August Moon Festival will take place Saturday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Welcome Young Playground in North Quincy.

More than 20 companies, not-for profit organizations, and city agencies will take part in this year's festival, an event which celebrates the ancient mid-autumn festival in a spirit of diversity and multiculturalism.

The festival includes activities such as a Lion Dance, traditional cultural performances, martial arts demonstrations, arts and crafts, and a Kids Fun Corner as well as fire engines, trained dog demonstrations, demonstrations by Community Police, music, games, and raffles.

Chinese food catering will be provided on site by Saigon Panda Restaurant, 49 Billings Rd.

Ribbons and bows of red, white, and blue will be given to remember the victims of the Sept. 11 tragedy and the continuing relief effort. Traditional lanterns and gifts will be raffled out at the event every half hour.

Festival sponsors include the State Street Corporation, the City of Quincy, and South Cove Community Health Center.

Admission is free.

Welcome Young Playground is located just north of North Quincy High School between Hancock St. and Newbury Ave.

Beechwood Book Project Promotes 'Read Together'

Pre-schoolers and seniors at Beechwood on the Bay have launched a special year-round project designed to encourage children and parents/grandparents to read together and raise funds at the same time.

"We invited everyone to donate books, hard cover and paper back," said Frances Smith and Mary Hennessey, senior volunteers at the Center.

"We're receiving and selling great books, mostly adult books: novels, histories, autobiographies, mysteries, self-improvement, nature, recipe books and more.

"One young family told us that they now call one night a week 'Reading Night,' after dinner. The TV, computer and phone are 'off' for 1 1/2 hours as they 'read together.'"

The seniors and kids at the Center scrubbed out wheelbarrows and have them at the Center's entrance, filled with books for resale. Twenty-five cents buys a paperback best seller; 50 cents is the cost for "gently read" hard cover books.

Proceeds for the special intergenerational "Read Together" project will benefit seniors who need Beechwood's special services, such as the Elder Home Repair Program, Alzheimer's Association, emergency Alert Bracelet Project, Alzheimer's and MS Support Groups.

For more information, call 617-471-5712.

Quincy Sisters Participate In Marshfield Fair Flower Show

Jeanne Herlihy and Ruth Griffin, both of Quincy, members of the Wollaston Garden Club, recently participated in the Standard Flower Show, Design Division presented by the Marshfield Fair and the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

The theme of this year's garden show was "A Day at the Farm." The two Quincy sisters won third prize in the Class 1 category of "Rise and Shine" in which participants created a floral design with breakfast table setting.

Jeanne and Ruth, both newcomers to the Wollaston Garden Club, love flowers, Americana antiques and unique found objects. Their winning floral display featured abundant yellow sunflowers, roosters and farm antiques.

Besides learning about and sharing the love of gardening, Wollaston Garden Club members frequently enter into competitions, as well as perform local beautification projects. The Wollaston Garden Club welcomes new members and guests, both men and women, to any of its monthly day and evening programs. Events and times are posted in local newspapers.

For more information on the Wollaston Garden Club, contact Jo Costello, club president, at 617-471-3669.

Quincy Firefighters Collect $21,000 To Aid NYC Comrades

In just a two-hour period Friday afternoon, Quincy firefighters raised over $20,000 for the New York Fire Fighters 9-11 Disaster Fund by collecting donations at various city intersections.

Coupled with more than $800 donated by Bad Abots of Quincy Center from a separate collection taken at Sunday's Irish music festival, more than $21,000 will be given to the fund, part of relief efforts for New York City in the wake of Sept. 11's terrorist attacks.

"The people of Quincy were unbelievable," said William Arienti, president of Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792. "Words can't convey the thanks."

Quincy firefighters taking part in the impromptu collection were: William Arienti, Steven Baylis, Michael Hobin, Jeff Starr, Dennis O'Brien, Richard Bryan, John Banuk, Steven Sweet, Kevin O'Connor, Timothy Burchill, Steven Kamb, Thomas Bowes, Jay Toner, James Connolly, John Coughlin, Steven Graham, and Kevin Tape.

Also participating in the collection was Michael O'Connell, mechanic for the Quincy Fire Department.

Those wishing to contribute to the fund should send their donations to: New York Fire Fighters 9-11 Disaster Relief Fund, P.O. Box 65858, Washington, DC 20035-5858.

Gutro Endorsed By Two More Unions

Doug Gutro announces his candidacy for the Ward 5 city council seat has received two additional labor endorsements.

The Painters' District Council No. 35 and Sheet Metal Workers Local No.

17 recently endorsed him, bringing the total number of labor endorsements of his candidacy to 10.

"I continue to be grateful for the growing support I have received throughout this campaign, especially the support from working families," said Gutro. "I am looking forward to serving as a reliable voice on the many issues which are important to working families throughout the city."

NQHS Choir, Band To Salute America Oct. 3

The North Quincy High School choir, under the director of Tracy O'Sullivan, and band, under the director of Richard Kenneally, will salute America with patriotic music Wednesday, Oct.

3 at 6:30 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

The Renaissance Theatre students, under the direction of Ann Carroll, will also contribute significant historical quotes and readings.

The concert will be free

Harborside Park Dedication Snug Harbor School

333 Palmer Street, Quincy
Sunday, September 30th
1:30 PM

It is one year since over 500 CNA employees, Germantown Neighborhood Council, South Shore YMCA, school staff and community volunteers built a new, safe playground at Quincy's Snug Harbor School. The finishing touches have been made with a memorial patio, trees have been planted and the playground will be officially named. Please join us in this celebration.

Open House Oct. 13 At Central Fire Station

The Quincy Fire Department will hold an Open House Saturday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Central headquarters, Quincy Ave.

The open house is being held in conjunction with the National Fire Protection Association and Pap Gino's in observance of National Fire Prevention Month, Oct. 7-13.

Papa Gino's has donated pizza parties each October at fire stations hosting an open house to promote fire safety.

Visuals at the open houses include firefighters demonstrating the way to escape a smoke-filled room, fire prevention tips and training, and Sparky, the fire safety mascot, interacting with children.

To All The Citizens Of Quincy

We, the Catholic priests and deacons of Quincy, like yourselves, are still reeling from the terrible events that took place in our Nation, in New York City, Washington, D.C., and on the fourth plane that crashed in Pennsylvania. We grieve with all who have lost loved ones, friends and neighbors and associates in those terrible acts of terror. We stand in solidarity with all our fellow Americans, who in a new and profound way are drawing together faithful to our identity as "We the People," who "E Pluribus Unum" "from the many One." We also stand in solidarity with peoples throughout the world who recognize that this terrorist attack was not simply an attack against the United States of America but on civilization itself.

We agree with our President and country's leadership that this not a war between the West and the Middle East and most especially agree that this certainly is not a war between religions. We state forthrightly and repeat our holy Father, Pope John II's cry that there can be no one who claims "to kill in the Name of God."

As we have in times past stand in solidarity with our Jewish neighbors, when terrible acts of anti-semitism have shown themselves, so we too desire to stand in solidarity and reach out to our Middle Eastern neighbors, fellow citizens and those who recently have come to our country. Many of the Middle Eastern neighbors are fellow Christians and even Catholics. But we also desire to stand in solidarity with those neighbors who are Moslems who are true practitioners of Islam, which means "peace." Sadly, their religion has been hijacked by the terrorists who claim to be doing such things in the name of their religion, just as surely as the innocent passengers in the four planes hijacked and destroyed on September 11. We abhor and reject all acts, words or thought patterns against our true Islamic neighbors and fellow believers in the one God of Abraham.

In the days, weeks and months ahead it is unity that we need to work at. Unity is our best weapon against the actions of such that wrought the terrible attacks against us as a people and nation. Solidarity, "being our brother's keeper" and "good neighbor" seeking unity and justice and sharing in communications and even good, both material and spiritual within our own nation and with people of "good will" throughout the world is the most important action all of us can do in the face of evil done not simply to our nation, but to the entire civilized world.

Gennaro's Beer, Wine License Still On Hold

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

For the second time in two weeks, a request for a beer and wine license for Gennaro's Restaurant, 12 Blanchard St., has been delayed until Oct. 30 because the License Board needs to see specific plans for the proposed expansion of the restaurant.

Last week's delay was because two board members were not in attendance. Chairman Joseph Shea excused himself before Gennaro's request was heard because his daughter was undergoing surgery for a soccer injury.

Addressing the board at Tuesday's meeting, owner Gerard Martocchio told the board that customers tell him that eating in his restaurant is like "eating in the North End without outrageous prices."

He further stated that his customers also have said they would "like a glass of wine" with their meals, commenting that "Italian food and wine go together."

Martocchio, who purchased the building recently, said he hopes to break open a wall between the restaurant and the photo vision store in the front, which is moving. He said he wants to "enhance the dining experience of customers and plans to serve beer and wine with meals only. No bar is planned."

His hours he said will remain the same, closing at 8:30 to 9:30 and closed on Sundays.

Stressing the fact that he only wants to keep his reputation of serving a quality of food and friendly atmosphere, he said he only wants about 20 more seats added to the 40 seats he has now...

Louise and Violet Cellucci, both of Faxon Lane, last week said they were afraid the issuing of a beer and wine license would increase traffic and parking congestion that makes walking down the street a difficult one.

However, Martocchio said he had spoken to Stewart Steele, from the Quincy Municipal Credit Union whose new building will be constructed across the street from the restaurant. He promised Gennaro that patrons would be able to use a certain amount of parking spaces as long as Martocchio signs a liability paper.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he has heard from more neighbors who support Gennaro's request and have said they have "no problem". He said neighbors have called Gennaro a "fixture" who serves a good product. Gorman said even Ron Della Chiesa on his radio show praised Gennaro. Gorman said he has a "wonderful relationship" with his neighbors.

Another supporter was Bob Pinato, retired letter carrier who called Gennaros an "asset to the city" and said he has a qualified staff and keeps a clean and neat restaurant.

Walter White, director of inspection services said he hadn't had a chance to review the parking plan and said it would be referred to traffic engineer, Jack Gillon.

He told Martocchio, "I applaud your spirit and energy," but plans have to be reviewed and solutions addressed before action can take place.

Chairman Joseph Shea, who said he wasn't "definitive about this" noted that with more seats planned for the restaurant it would mean "more parking" and told Martocchio, "if you were't situated next to a neighborhood there would be no problem."

Finally, Martocchio said "Quincy is a great city; in which I want to "solidify my future."

TAKE TEA AND SEA

While green tea has been shown to lead to reduction of dental cavities, scientists wondered whether the more popular black tea could produce a similar benefit. Made from the fermented leaves of the same plant that produces green and oolong teas, black tea is enjoyed by 80% of the world's tea drinkers. Cavities occur when bacteria feed on sugars in foods and release acids capable of dissolving tooth enamel. Researchers found that black tea contains compounds that act as antioxidants and kill or suppress the growth of cavity-causing bacteria. Black tea was also found to effectively reduce plaque buildup. No one is suggesting that drinking tea is a substitute for brushing and flossing, but it may be a useful adjunct.

This informative column on tea has been brought to you as a public service. We stress the importance of preventive dental care for the entire family. When was the last time you had your teeth checked by a professional? Call us now at 617-479-6220 and schedule an appointment. Your total emotional and physical well-being is as important to us as your teeth. We will do what is best for you and we will not compromise. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesia and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

Coughlin Endorsed By Cain, McGillicuddy, Chretien

Former Ward 3 candidates John Cain and David McGillicuddy and former Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, who served from 1988 to 1995, have endorsed Kevin Coughlin for Ward 3 councillor.

"I am tremendously gratified by the support of two of my primary opponents who ran spirited campaigns focusing on neighborhood concerns as well as the support of our highly respected former Ward 3 councillor who had a laudable list of accomplishments during his tenure," Coughlin said. "They have clearly identified in my candidacy not only my decade plus long advocacy for our neighborhoods, but also my commitment to children, working families, and senior citizens."

Chretien said, "I came to know Kevin very well when I was in office because he was involved in many different aspects of community life and with so many concerns including education, traffic development projects, and others."

"If you review his achievements and if you get to know him, I think you'll vote for him," Chretien said.

Cain said he is encouraging his supporters to support and vote for Coughlin because of Coughlin's focus on Ward 3 resident and small business concerns.

"We must place more Ward 3 focus on resident and local business issues," he said. Cain also said he has taken his campaign on Coughlin's behalf door to door because of his belief that Coughlin is the best choice for Ward 3.

McGillicuddy, Ward 3 Democratic Committee Chairman, said Coughlin's experience as an honest and highly respected community leader and activist make him the best qualified person to get things done in Ward 3.

"Kevin's a neighborhood guy who's never been afraid to take on a tough fight and see it through," McGillicuddy said. "He's testified at every level of government on issues that affect working families, children, and seniors. He's a man of integrity, his word is his bond, and he's what our ward needs now to reaffirm that a local government really cares about neighborhood issues."

Five Free Career Seminars At Library Beginning Oct. 3

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., will hold five free career seminars on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Oct. 3 through

Oct. 31.

There is no cost to attend and pre-registration is not necessary.

The seminars are designed so that a participant can take all the seminars in sequence and learn all the skills needed to successfully enter or re-enter and compete in the job market. More experienced job-seekers can attend just the seminars needed to polish their skills.

Seminars are led by professional career counselors from Career Moves, a Boston-based employment counseling service.

The series begins with Re-entering the Job Market. Attendees will learn how to transfer volunteer, school, and home skills to the job market, set goals, and overcome obstacles. The second seminar Oct. 10, Successful Career Change, will help to clarify whether a career change, job change, or life change is needed and then outline the steps needed to make that change happen.

On Oct. 17, the seminar will teach how to create Resumes That Work and open doors to a good job. The fourth seminar Oct. 24, Uncover Your Next Job, will teach attendees how to tap the hidden job market that is never advertised in the newspapers or through recruiters.

The last seminar, Effective Interviewing and Salary Negotiation, will be Oct. 31 and will help job seekers avoid the most common mistakes in interviewing and teach skills to guide the job seeker through the final step in the job hunt.

More information is available by calling the library at (617) 376-1310.

Ample free parking is available.

Beechwood's Project SAFE For Seniors Oct. 13

Beechwood Community Life Center's fifth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms for Elders) Senior Day will take place Saturday, Oct. 13.

The annual service day seeks to promote fire safety, especially for "at-risk" seniors, and is a city-wide effort to inspect and/or install smoke detectors for seniors as well as provide information about fire safety.

Beechwood is calling on all senior service providers, elected officials, clubs, community centers, churches, and seniors from across the city to identify names and addresses of seniors needing free smoke detectors and/or inspection of existing detectors.

Those seniors include anyone who: has less than three smoke detectors; has detectors which need checking, repairing, or replacing; has any questions about smoke detectors; or is interested in receiving fire safety information.

Identifying the names and addresses of seniors needing free smoke detectors and/or inspection of existing detectors will continue until Wednesday, Oct. 10. The Beechwood phone number is (617) 471-5712.

It is estimated that seniors comprise roughly 21 percent of Quincy's population, which equates to 17,500 residents. Of those, over 4,000 are "at-risk," defined as over 75 years of age and/or with impairments that might inhibit fast exit from a fire in the home.

The smoke detector project is an extension of Beechwood's city-wide Senior SAFE Program, designed "to assist seniors in remaining independent and in their own homes for as long as possible."

Seminars are led by professional career counselors from Career Moves, a Boston-based employment counseling service.

The series begins with Re-entering the Job Market. Attendees will learn how to transfer volunteer, school, and home skills to the job market, set goals, and overcome obstacles. The second seminar Oct. 10, Successful Career Change, will help to clarify whether a career change, job change, or life change is needed and then outline the steps needed to make that change happen.

On Oct. 17, the seminar will teach how to create Resumes That Work and open doors to a good job. The fourth seminar Oct. 24, Uncover Your Next Job, will teach attendees how to tap the hidden job market that is never advertised in the newspapers or through recruiters.

The last seminar, Effective Interviewing and Salary Negotiation, will be Oct. 31 and will help job seekers avoid the most common mistakes in interviewing and teach skills to guide the job seeker through the final step in the job hunt.

More information is available by calling the library at (617) 376-1310.

Ample free parking is available.

Beechwood's Project SAFE For Seniors Oct. 13

Beechwood Community Life Center's fifth annual Project SAFE (Smoke Alarms for Elders) Senior Day will take place Saturday, Oct. 13.

The annual service day seeks to promote fire safety, especially for "at-risk" seniors, and is a city-wide effort to inspect and/or install smoke detectors for seniors as well as provide information about fire safety.

Beechwood is calling on all senior service providers, elected officials, clubs, community centers, churches, and seniors from across the city to identify names and addresses of seniors needing free smoke detectors and/or inspection of existing detectors.

Those seniors include anyone who: has less than three smoke detectors; has detectors which need checking, repairing, or replacing; has any questions about smoke detectors; or is interested in receiving fire safety information.

Identifying the names and addresses of seniors needing free smoke detectors and/or inspection of existing detectors will continue until Wednesday, Oct. 10. The Beechwood phone number is (617) 471-5712.

It is estimated that seniors comprise roughly 21 percent of Quincy's population, which equates to 17,500 residents. Of those, over 4,000 are "at-risk," defined as over 75 years of age and/or with impairments that might inhibit fast exit from a fire in the home.

The smoke detector project is an extension of Beechwood's city-wide Senior SAFE Program, designed "to assist seniors in remaining independent and in their own homes for as long as possible."

Through The Eyes And Heart Of A Fire Fighter

By WILLIAM ARIENTI

The past few weeks have been a time of tremendous sadness, shock and insecurity for all of us, but as a Fire Fighter, the event was even more devastating. This country experienced an attack from a foreign entity on our own land for the first time in history. We saw innocent men, women and children used as weapons in a plot to capture control of commercial airliners and smash them into buildings occupied by thousands of unsuspecting harmless citizens.

We saw a stream of rescuers charge into the two firestorms which once were the World Trade Center only to be crushed by the collapse of what was known as buildings of indestructibility.

To date, 6,000 people are dead or missing, but 45,000 escaped death by evacuating the buildings with the help of 381 members of the Fire Department of New York who perished performing their duties.

On September 11, 2001, as I sat and watched debris fall from the sky, tears fell from my face. As the hearts of men and women attempting to flee the building pounded incessantly, so my heart pounded for them. As the plume of smoke, dust and dirt made breathing virtually impossible, my throat tightened with fear for their safety. None of them were alone for they had the prayers of the millions of us who watched.

At that instant, I was never more anxious about my profession, and never more proud of it. This loss has ripped a gash in our collective souls from which we shall not, nor should we ever completely recover.

Since that fateful day, the emotions of Fire Fighters throughout the United States and the world have been of despair. Each day, as we go off to work, we kiss our families good-bye with the understanding that it is a better than average chance that may be the last time we see them. On our arrival home, our families breathe a sigh of relief that we have made it through another day unhurt and alive. Tragically, 381 families of New York

Fire Fighters will never again breathe that sigh of relief, or welcome their husband, father, son or brother home again. Their actions were brave, their sacrifice was ultimate, their fate was divine.

In these times of sorrow, one great inspiration to all of us is the help and support given to us by the citizens we serve. Words can never repay the citizens of Quincy for every word of condolence or encouragement you have said to us, every hug you have given us and every letter or gift you have left at a fire station. Your actions have done wonders to fulfill our emotional needs. In our attempt to raise funds to support the families of our fallen brothers, your outpouring of support was far beyond our greatest expectations. As we are there 24 hours a day, seven days a week to help you, you have been there to help us, and the men of the Quincy Fire Fighters Association so graciously thank you.

Only God knows what will befall us in the future, but it is comforting to know we have your support as we fulfill our obligations.

We will get through this together, as one. We are proud to be Fire Fighters, and even more so to serve the citizens of Quincy.

Thank you.

(William Arienti is president of Local 792 Quincy Fire Fighters Association.)

Sponsored by Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore; GMAC Mortgage Corp., Braintree And Participating GMAC Realtors

Family Wins $10,000 Toward New Home

When Kevin and Patricia Flanagan attended a first time homebuyer workshop sponsored by Neighborhood Housing Services in July they never dreamed they would enter and win the 10K lottery giveaway. The Braintree office of GMAC MORTGAGE CORP., and participating GMAC realtors sponsored the lottery.

Neighborhood Housing Services has recently been the recipient of a $10,000 donation from GMAC Mortgage Company and participating GMAC affiliated realtors, to be used for the purpose of a down payment lottery for a potential first time homebuyer.

Neighborhood Housing Services was looking for a better way to assist homebuyers in the surrounding South Shore towns. With the rising costs of homes throughout Massachusetts and the limited number of homes available, it was becoming harder and harder for the average working family to purchase a home. Neighborhood Housing Services went to GMAC Mortgage and asked them to sponsor the $10,000 lottery. Without hesitation Ellen Duncan, District Manager, Braintree office of GMAC mortgage immediately agreed and contacted 3 local GMAC real estate offices that immediately stepped up to the plate as well.

Unlike other lotteries and grant programs there are no income limits or requirements attached to this lottery. All applications regardless of income level or family size are eligible. Property must be purchased within Massachusetts and could be a single family home, condo or multi-family.

Attorney Jay Davis, from the law firm of Graeber, Davis & Cantwell, called Neighborhood Housing Services after reading about the lottery in the local paper and offered the winning family free legal council, and his office would cover all closing costs. Closing costs generally range from $2500.00 - $4000.00.

Ten names were drawn from the over 70 applications that were submitted. The selection committee, which was made up of four members, interviewed the ten families. The committee had a very difficult task. Each of the ten families where unique in their needs and reasons why they felt they should be selected as the $10,000 giveaway winners. After a long deliberation the committee selected the Flanagan family of East Bridgewater.

The Flanagans currently reside in East Bridgewater with their two sons ages 3 and 8. Kevin Flanagan is employed as a school teacher for the Brockton Public Schools and coaches softball for the City of Brockton. Boco Transportation employs Patricia Flanagan part-time. The Flanagans plan on making their home in Taunton.

Participating GMAC real Estate offices include; B&S Real Estate GMAC, Weymouth office, Premier Properties GMAC, Eastern, Raynham, Bridgewater and Classic Homes GMAC, Quincy.

Carol Cahill Top Conway Seller

Jack Conway & Co. announces Carol Cahill was the top seller in its Quincy office for the month of July.

The top producer awards recognize the agents in each sales office who excelled in listing and selling homes during the month.

"We take great pride in recognizing the sales agents who achieve their goals," said Conway President Richard F. Cahill. "These are the people who know how to treat their customers and understand the importance of top-quality service."

Stop Worrying About Tap Water: Have it Tested

(NAPS)--According to a recent Water Quality Association (WQA) survey, nine out of 10 Americans have concerns about their home drinking water.

Specifically, people are concerned about such things as offensive smells or tastes, possible health contaminants, sediments floating in the water, and hard water. It's not surprising that people are concerned. Water quality has been getting a great deal of attention lately.

Under the Safe Drinking Water Act, the EPA sets the acceptable standards of drinking water of which municipalities must comply. Unfortunately, the WQA findings indicate that those standards may not be good enough in the opinion of nearly half of all Americans.

While the majority of Americans are knowledgeable about contaminants, they don't appear to be obtaining their information from federally mandated water quality reports. Only 17 percent of the WQA survey respondents said they received and read their local water supplier's water quality report (also called a Consumer Confidence Report). These reports provide an overview of contaminant levels present in an area's water supply. The 1996 Safe Drinking Water Act required every public water supplier to distribute annual water quality reports to consumers beginning in 1999.

"Contact your local water municipality today to request a copy of its Consumer Confidence Report, if you haven't already seen it," said Don Brockley, president of St. Paul, Minnesota-based Eco Water Systems, Inc.

In addition to Consumer Confidence Reports, water testing is available through reputable water treatment dealers, private laboratories, and the Department of Health.

COMPARISON SHOPPING

Generally speaking, before they can sell their homes, sellers must become buyers themselves. That is, they are in the market for a real estate agent with whom they can work and who can sell their properties. While you might think this may be a painstaking process of selection, according to research from the National Association of Realtors, a surprising 74 percent of sellers hire the first agent with whom they speak. On the other hand, industry experts generally recommend that sellers compile a list of three to five agents and interview each. Only after comparing their analysis, strategies, and experience related to setting a price, marketing the house, and negotiating a deal should sellers make their selection.

At ERA CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we utilize cutting-edge technology and dynamic programs to assist sellers and buyers with their real estate needs. Our services to sellers include a market analysis, coordination of open houses, and listing the home in Multiple and local newspapers. We negotiate the price of the home with prospective buyers to ensure that you receive full market value. We sell on purpose -- not by accident! Call us at 617-328-1312, or visit us at 128 Mayor McGrath Highway for personnel attention and a "marketing partner." We list residential and commercial properties.

HINT: Roughly 4 out of 5 home buyers and sellers use real estate agents.

Preparation Key When Beginning Search For New Home

By CAROL BULMAN
President

Conway Financial Services

Searching for that "dream home" can be both an exhilarating and nerve-racking experience, and as with most things in life, it's best to be prepared.

Before beginning the search, you not only want to have an idea of where you want to live, but you also should have an idea of the size of the mortgage for which you qualify.

In today's climate, properties stay on the market for a very short time because there are more buyers than listings, so a buyer prepared with financing information is usually in a stronger position.

There are several ways to go about building your knowledge base. Your real estate agent should have a general idea of how to qualify and would be happy to run through some numbers for you. You can go online and do some qualifying on your own to get an idea of your range.

Visit www.conwayfinancial.com and click on the "mortgage calculator" link to find a menu of calculators, including an online application.

You can certainly go to the next step and speak with a mortgage officer, who can prequalify you over the phone and also explain what is involved in getting a preapproval. This call should be done prior to making an offer on a home.

Savvy sellers will consider whether a buyer has a prequalification letter when evaluating offers for their home. This is in addition to the customary considerations of price and whether there is a housing contingency in the offer.

Lenders offer a variety of mortgage options, all with different qualification standards attached to them. So if you find yourself becoming discouraged with the results of your pre-qualification worksheet, be sure to contact a mortgage officer to discuss other options that may be available to you.

Automated underwriting systems, offered on many products you find at your local mortgage company or bank, have expanded the qualification standards during the past four or five years. The once-universal income and total debt ratios of 28 percent/36 percent (used in the standard qualifying formula on this page) can be modified in many instances.

Because these automated systems measure risk by comparing your profile with millions of past homebuyers in a database, ratios can be stretched when "compensating factors" are considered. Compensating factors may include a good credit profile (measured through the use of credit scores), a good savings history, stable job or significant downpayment.

Do all of these things need to be in place at the same time to get a mortgage?

Positively not. This is the beauty of these new systems — they weigh and measure each of the aspects of your credit profile, with stronger situations outweighing the weaker ones.

Mortgage programs also are available for those with less-than-perfect credit and for those looking to put zero down on a property. But the first step is to get an idea of your affordability range. This can be done by a little old-fashioned arithmetic.

Visit our web site, speak to your Realtor or simply use the qualification worksheet on this page. These steps will give you an idea of where you stand, but then go to the next step and contact an experienced mortgage officer to find out what other opportunities are available to you.

Realtors Offer Mortgage, Rental Assistance To Families Of Terrorist Victims

In an effort to aid families who lost loved ones in the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York City, Washington, D.C., and Pennsylvania, Realtors® in Massachusetts and across the U.S. have contributed more than $2 million to a housing relief fund that will provide temporary assistance to victims' families in meeting their monthly mortgage and rental housing expenses.

Eligibility for the Realtors® Housing Relief Fund is open to the immediate family of all victims, both deceased and severely disabled, including fire, law enforcement and emergency personnel. Funds will be used exclusively to provide households with financial assistance in making mortgage and rent payments on a primary residence.

The housing relief fund was originally established by the National Association of Realtors®, which made an initial $1 million contribution, but the Fund will be administered locally by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR). The intent behind the Realtors® Housing Relief Fund is to ensure that the many families of terrorism victims from Sept. 11 do not face the additional burden of losing their home, an event that could occur due to a lack of mortgage insurance of a substantial loss of income from the household's primary wage earner.

"The senseless acts of violence we have witnessed this month have brought enormous personal loss to many families, and at this very difficult time they should not have to worry about losing their homes as well," said Massachusetts Association of Realtors® (MAR) President David Walsh. "Our goal is to preserve home ownership and ensure that no one goes homeless as a result of this tragedy."

Affected families who are interested in applying for assistance from the Realtors®

Housing Relief Fund may contact the Massachusetts Association of Realtors® at 800-725-6272 to request an application. Applications also are available on-line by logging onto the MAR web site at www.marealtor.com and linking to the Fund home page.

In Massachusetts, applications will be reviewed by the MAR Charitable & Educational Foundation's Board of Trustees, which expects to approve and issue grants to qualified applicants within seven days of receipt of the application. Funds will be awarded on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Neighborhood Housing Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA & HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold a free First Time Homebuyer Information Workshop in partnership with the Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank Wednesday, Sept. 26 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized. Focus will be different aspects of the homebuying process, including locating a property within budget, making an offer, and determining the best mortgage based on needs.

Each participant will have an opportunity to meet with Red Hilton from Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification. Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to utilize local down payment and closing costs grants available across the South Shore.

Pat Bregoli Powers Offense Raiders Rout Randolph, 36-0

By CHRIS POISSON

If you were at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Friday night, North Quincy's No. 33 seemed to be every where you looked.

Not only did Pat Bregoli line up at his usual spot in the backfield, but he also served as the placekicker and, at times, the quarterback — tossing a beautiful touch-down pass that the announcers thought was starting QB Dennis Thomson.

Who knows, the senior quad-captain could even have been at the concession stand selling pizza or at the gates handing out tickets. It doesn't seem that far-fetched after watching him last Friday night.

Bregoli, who left midway through the third quarter with his team well ahead, finished the night with two rushing touchdowns, a two-point conversion reception, and that TD pass — helping North Quincy rout Randolph, 36-0, for its first win of the season in non-league action.

"He has to be Quincy Sun player of the week," joked first-year head coach Tony Green, who watched his tailback rush for 118 yards on 12 carries.

As good as Bregoli was, it's more like the Red Raiders were players of the week. Every one contributed in some way, as the team played its best game in recent years.

North Quincy (1-1) will try to carry this momentum into tomorrow (Friday) night when it hosts Falmouth (0-2) at 7 p.m.

After going three-and-out to open the game, Randolph fumbled the snap on the punt attempt and North Quincy took over at the Blue Devils' 6-yard line. Three plays later, North Quincy capitalized when Bregoli plowed in from 1 yard out. Bregoli missed the extra point.

"That was very important," Green said of his team's first score. "The kids here haven't won a whole lot recently. If we didn't get up right away, it could've been a longer, more difficult game."

Late in the first quarter, North Quincy extended its lead to 14-0. Junior fullback Chris Dolbeare (7 carries, 61 yards) busted through the middle for a 28-yard TD run with 1:28 left. Thomson hit Bregoli for the two-point conversion.

On its next possession, North Quincy continued with its ground assault, churning out an 8-play, 57-yard scoring drive capped by Bregoli's 2-yard TD run for a 20-0 lead. He had gains of 22 and 19 yards on the drive.

On Randolph's ensuing series, the Red Raiders' defense kicked it into high gear. Senior defensive tackle Albert Chow sacked quarterback Pat Sullivan for a 7-yard loss on first down. After an incomplete pass, junior defensive back Dan

Mahoney wrapped up Sullivan for another 7-yard loss on a blitz. On fourth down, the Red Raiders rushed the punter, tipped the ball and took over at Randolph's 19-yard line.

After rushing attempts by Bregoli and junior James Coughlin netted minus-1 yard, Green decided to move Bregoli to quarterback. It paid off, as Bregoli heaved a 20-yard TD strike to junior wideout Gary Dalton with 5:10 left before the half. Thomson rushed for the two-point conversion to make it 28-0.

"Bregoli is a man among boys," Green said. "He's obviously a big-time player. We just found different ways to get it to him. We let him play quarterback, tailback. We were going to throw the ball to him, but the game got out of reach. He does it all. He makes me look like a good coach."

North Quincy opened the second half with a 6-play, 63-yard scoring drive that took just 2:28. On the second play, Bregoli ran left, broke a few tackles, cut back to his right and scampered 58 yards, with the help of some nice blocks, to the 8-yard line. Thomson scored on a 1-yard sneak and Dolbeare added the two-point rush for the 36-0 lead.

"The kids played well and they were on top of their game," Green said. "We had very few penalties. Everybody was under control. We killed the clock. Everything fell right into place."

Including its defense. After yielding 27 points in the season-opening loss to Marshfield, North Quincy smothered Randolph like a blanket on bread. The Red Raiders forced the Blue Devils to go three-and-out on their first five possessions, and held them to just two first downs and 23 net total yards in the first half. In the second half they forced two fumbles.

"Coach [Ryan] Craig works his hind off," Green said of his defensive coordinator. "The kids work so hard for him. They love coach Craig. He's a good, sound defensive coach. It's my 36 points, but it's his doughnut. Either way, we all win. It's a good day for North Quincy football."

TOWARD GREATER STABILITY

Electronic stability control is a potentially life-saving feature. In most cases, drivers are not even aware of its presence until an indicator light on the dash tells them it is working. It works by applying brake pressure to individual wheels as the tires lose their grip. A wheel that is slipping will move faster than the vehicle. Sensors, therefore, constantly measure the wheel speed and the position of the vehicle. When a vehicle begins to slip out of line, the control system can slow down the engine. Often, there is no detectable change when the system kicks in. Should your car abruptly lose speed on a corner, however, it may just be the stability control system doing its invisible work.

Next time you need work done on any system, including its stability control system, bring your car, truck, or SUV into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained ASE Certified technicians and our availability of parts will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road quickly. We're conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). ## Quincy Turns It Over To Hanover, 12-6

By CHRIS POISSON

When your team is being compared to the New England Patriots, you know that it wasn't very good week.

Like the Pats Sunday afternoon, the Quincy High School football team wasted a strong defensive effort as it was haunted by an inept offense, expensive penalties and costly turnovers in its 12-6 loss to Hanover last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coming off a superb all-around game in the season opener, a 28-0 win over Middleboro, Quincy took a step back against Hanover — hopefully just a one-week lapse.

"I'm disappointed in some of the things that we didn't do, but I'm not disappointed in the effort that we made and the fire that we played with," said head coach Bob Noble.

Quincy (1-1) will try to find its Week 1 magic Saturday at noon at Catholic Memorial (2-0), which it lost to last year, 14-7.

After rushing for 259 yards in the first game, the Presidents had trouble establishing any kind of running game against the Indians, gaining just 54 yards. The offensive line had a tough time opening holes, as well as protecting senior quarterback Mike Lorenzano, who had little time to throw the ball. He completed 8 of 22 passes for 187 yards, a touchdown and two interceptions.

"We had to rely far too much on Mike making plays for us," Noble said. "Mike is a big part of our offense, but you have to give him an opportunity to make a play. He was under a lot of pressure."

"Our offensive line didn't have a particularly good game," he added. "We have to be more consistent on offense. We have to be able to run the ball more effectively. We can't throw the ball every down, as much as I may like to."

Quincy also had trouble holding onto the ball, fumbling five times, losing two, one of which resulted in a touchdown that proved to be the game-winner.

On the second play of the second half, Quincy turned the ball over on a running play, leaving Hanover in great field position at Quincy's 19. Five plays later, tailback Brian Kemp barreled into the end zone from 2 yards out for a 12-0 lead with 7:29 left.

"We fumbled deep in our own territory," Noble said. "You just can't do that and expect to win."

On Quincy's ensuing series, the team marched 40 yards to the Hanover 30, highlighted by Lorenzano's 26-yard pass to Dan Galligan (2 catches, 96 yards) on third-and-4. But Quincy was whistled for holding on first down and ended up punting four plays later.

Quincy's defense forced Hanover to go three-and-out, but the offense gave the ball right back when Lorenzano threw an interception under pressure on the first play. Once again, the defense got the ball back when senior defensive back Bill Reid picked off quarterback Mike Caven's pass.

The Presidents proceeded to march 53 yards in nine plays to reach the Hanover 25. On the 10th play, however, they came up a yard short on Lorenzano's completion to junior Matt

Ramponi on fourth-and-4.

Ramponi finally got on the board with 1:57 left in the game. Lorenzano heaved a pass downfield that deflected off a defender and into Ramponi's hands for a 46-yard touchdown. The extra point failed.

In the first quarter, Quincy went three-and-out on its second series, but a bad punt gave Hanover the ball at Quincy's 28-yard line. After runs of 22 and 2 yards by Caven, Kemp bullied his way into the end zone from 4 yards out, but the score was called back because of a penalty.

Caven then threw two incomplete passes to set up a 30-yard field goal attempt, which Hanover missed. Except Quincy was called for an offside penalty, giving Hanover another chance. This time Kemp ran off left guard for a 7-yard TD to put his team up 6-0 with 2:25 left in the quarter.

At the end of the first half, Quincy had its best chance to score after Lorenzano completed a short pass to Galligan, who jetted down the right sideline for a 70-yard gain to the Hanover 13. After a penalty pushed them back 5 yards, Quincy dropped a pass, overthrew a wide-open receiver, fumbled the ball out of bounds on third down, and wound up missing a 40-yard field goal.

"We were in a position to score three times and we didn't score," Nobles said. "We got a break there at the end. The ball deflects and we catch it for a touchdown. But we were in a position to score three other times and we didn't score. You can't come away with nothing every time."

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Off To 5-1-1 Start

Although still struggling to find its scoring touch, the North Quincy girls' soccer team has sprinted out to a 5-1-1 start this season and are looking to make its fifth straight tournament appearance.

Traveling to the Cape for the second time in three days, North Quincy fell behind 1-0 to Barnstable after 13 minutes but bounced back to pull out a 2-1 win Monday.

With great pressure from Senior quad-captain Kelly Rice, junior Erin McFarland and freshman Amanda Saylor, North Quincy scored the equalizer off senior quad-captain Allie Lacey's header, with McFarland assisting. North Quincy had several other great chances, with sophomore Jenn Ryan, senior quad-captain Lauren Sleeth and McFarland just missing.

Five minutes into the second half, junior wing Lauren Kalil put a shot into the top corner for her first goal of the year — the game-winner. Senior Kelly Coleman recorded the assist. Rice and McFarland, and juniors Lauren McGee and Katie Timmins all had strong outings.

North Quincy hosted Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) at 4 p.m. at Teal Field and tomorrow (Friday) it travels to Silver Lake.

Last Saturday, the Red Raiders blanked Martha's Vineyard, 2-0. Junior forward Rachel Enos netted her first goal of the season, taking a Rice pass, beating a defender and ripping a shot inside the near post for a 1-0 lead. Junior Katy Mercurio closed out the scoring with her fourth of the year, taking a throw-in from senior Caitlin Herlihy and going top corner.

North Quincy got stellar performances from junior Lisa Schifone, McFarland, McGee and Lacey. Senior goalie Kathryn MacRitchie earned her third shutout.

Last Thursday, the Red Raiders suffered their first loss of the season, a 4-0 setback to Bridgewater-Raynham, the defending Old Colony League champs. Junior Jessica Jacques, Timmins and senior forward Kate Markhard played well.

On Sept. 18, North Quincy and Falmouth battled to a 1-1 stalemate. Falmouth had beaten North Quincy both times last season. The Clippers dominated play early, eventually scoring by knocking in a rebound off a penalty kick. MacRitchie made a nice save on the initial shot.

The quick deficit seemed to fire up the Red Raiders, as they controlled the rest of the game and scored the equalizer halfway through the second half. Ryan took a long pass from Rice and beat the Clipper keeper.

Sleeth provided a hug spark in her season debut after missing three games due to knee surgery. Rice dominated the back, while sophomore Sarah Gregory and Herlihy also stood out defensively.

North Quincy opened the 2001 season with a 4-0 win over Randolph, followed by a 6-1 triumph over rival Quincy and a 2-0 shutout over Taunton.

Against Taunton, North Quincy scored both goals in the first 10 minutes. Sophomore Katy Faherty scored off a Lacey cross for the first goal. Gregory made a great run and crossed a perfect ball to Mercurio, who found the back of the net. MacRitchie earned the shutout.

Experts Warn Of Possible Delay In Flu Vaccine

(NU) — The flu season is still weeks away, but the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is alerting Americans to the possibility of some delays in the availability of flu vaccine — particularly during October.

Even though there will be more vaccine available than last year, CDC officials predict that there will be some delays in distribution. Efforts are underway to promote vaccine available early in the season to those at highest risk of complications from influenza.

The CDC recommends that you get a flu shot early if you are 65 or older or have a long-term medical problem, such as diabetes, heart disease, lung disease, or are a health care worker. The optimal vaccination time is October through November but may include September if vaccine is available. If you are not at high risk for complications from influenza, CDC experts recommend you wait until November or later to be vaccinated when additional supplies of the vaccine will be available.

Influenza, or "the flu" as it is often called, is a serious respiratory disease that affects people of any age and causes thousands of deaths in the United States each year, mostly among the elderly. Influenza is caused by a virus and is spread primarily by coughing or sneezing. Most people are ill with influenza for only a few days, but some get much sicker and may need to be hospitalized.

What You Need To Know About The Influenza Vaccine

Here is what you need to know about the influenza vaccine:

- Because influenza viruses change often, the influenza vaccine is updated each year to make sure it is as effective as possible. Protection develops about two weeks after the shot.

- People at risk for serious cases of influenza or influenza complications and people in close contact with them — including all household members and health care workers — should get the vaccine.

- The best time to get the vaccine is during October and November. But vaccination after November can still provide protection even if influenza is occurring in the community. Most flu activity doesn't occur until December or later. The vaccine can be given at the same time as pneumococcal and other vaccines.

- Some people may get influenza after vaccination but vaccinated people who do get the flu often have a milder case and much lower rates of hospitalization than those who did not get the shot.

- The risk of a vaccine causing serious harm is extremely small. Very few people who get influenza vaccine have serious problems with it. The viruses in the vaccine are killed, so you cannot get influenza from the vaccine.

To learn more about the influenza vaccine, ask your health practitioner or call your local or state health department. You can also call CDC at 1-800-232-2522.

Americans Recognize Healthy Foods But Aren't Eating Enough Of Them

(NAPS) -- When it comes to eating right, most Americans can talk the talk. But when it comes to walking the walk, they're a step behind.

A recent Gallup survey of 1,000 primary grocery shoppers revealed notable discrepancies between what consumers believe about healthful foods and what they actually eat.

According to the survey, 83 percent of consumer respondents were aware that bread and other grain foods provide energy. More than 70 percent correctly agree whole and enriched grains can help prevent heart disease and cancer, and can help with weight control.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Food Guide Pyramid, acknowledged by 85 percent of consumers as a sensible and healthful eating plan, recommends consuming an average of six to 11 servings of bread and other grain foods daily depending on age, gender, and activity level. When it comes to actual consumption, the USDA data shows Americans are getting, on average, 6.8 servings of grain foods daily, barely meeting the minimum recommended serving with women getting only 5.5 servings a day.

"The average person is confused by all the conflicting health data available," said Karin Kratina, M.A., R.D., co-author of Eating Well, Living Well: When You Can't Diet Anymore and consultant to The Renfrew Center. "As a result, consumers' knowledge about nutrient-rich foods, such as breads and grains, doesn't play out in their everyday lives. We need to find ways to give consumers permission to get more grain foods in their diets so they can take advantage of the health benefits of grain-based foods."

Protecting Against Yellow Jackets

Fall is the season when yellow jacket populations reach their peak and in some areas of the US approach what is known as "outbreak epidemic populations." As a result, this is the time of year when hospital emergency departments report their highest number of sting victims.

According to Miles Guralnick, president and chief entomologist at Vespa Laboratories, Inc., the world's leader in the manufacturing of stinging insect venoms used for allergy vaccines, "in some areas of the country, yellow jacket nest populations can number in the tens of thousands and population density can be as high as 10 nests per acre.

"As each nest reaches its peak population, food supplies are dwindling, causing them to scavenge in exposed food areas such as picnics and garbage cans. Yellow jackets also present an additional threat because they typically nest in the ground, which puts them in a direct line of fire with your lawnmower. This close contact with our outdoor activities is why so many people are stung in the fall."

To protect oneself from this hostile horde, the Patient's Guide published in Physician Assistant magazine offers the following tips:

- Wear light colored, non-floral patterned clothing that covers all exposed skin.

- Wear shoes and socks at all times.

- Do not wear scented products such as perfume when outdoors.

- Cover all food and drinks when eating outdoors, especially beverage cans.

- Be cautious around garbage cans and pools of water.

- Remain calm when approached by an insect. Do not swat or flail at it.

- Have problem nests professionally exterminated.

If you are stung, the American College of Allergy, Asthma, and Immunology (ACAAI) cautions that if you experience symptoms such as troubled breathing, hives, fainting, or any symptoms other than pain, itching, redness, and swelling at the sting site, you may be having an allergic reaction and should seek medical attention immediately. If you have had an allergic reaction, you are at high risk of having a similar or worse reaction the next time you are stung. For insect sting allergic individuals, the ACAAI recommends seeing an allergist who can evaluate you for a vaccination program that is highly effective in immunizing against future allergic reactions.

For a free informational booklet on insect stings and insect sting allergy written by the ACAAI, call 1-800-23-STING.

Dad Mom

We miss you both more than anyone knows;

as each day passes, the emptiness grows.

We laugh, we cry, we play our parts.

Beneath it all lie our broken hearts.

We hide our tears when we speak your name;

The ache in our hearts remain the same.

You won't come back, we know it's true, but someday, Mom & Dad, we'll come to you.

God Bless you always Mom & Dad

Sadly missed by Betty, Sonny, Jeannette & David

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Human beings can be very complicated creatures... Ever notice how a man or woman can be pleasant one day and disagreeable the next... cheerful in the morning and downcast in the afternoon... generous in some circumstances and downright stingy in others... more than fair at one time and positively unjust at another... It is not uncommon to hear one person say of another... "You wouldn't believe it was the same man."

The Russian writer Tolstoy once compared man to a river. "The water is alike in all of them, but every river is narrow in some places and wide in others; here swift and there sluggish, here clear and there turbid; cold in winter and warm in summer. The same may be said of men. Every man bears within himself the germs of every human quality, displaying all in turn; and a man can often seem unlike himself -- yet he still remains the same man."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You'll soon have a chance to take a big step up from where you are to where you want to be. Check it out first. Remember: Even the Mountain Sheep looks before it leaps.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week brings a challenge that could determine the future direction of your life. If you're ready for a change, accept it with confidence. A loved one supports your decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A disruption creates a delay in completing your projects. Use this time to pursue a personal matter you were too busy to deal with before. You'll find it will be time well spent.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You still need to be on the alert for any signs of problems that could create serious misunderstandings. A more positive aspect begins to emerge toward the week's end. Be patient.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With things slowing down a bit this week, it would be a good time for luxury-loving Leonines to go somewhere for some well-earned pampering. Things liven up around Friday.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Single Virgos looking for partners are finally getting a break from Venus, who has moved in to make things happen. Attached Virgos see their relationships blossom.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You've been working hard to get things done. Now take a breather and recheck your next step. You might want to make some changes in view of the news that comes your way.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The watchword for savvy Scorpios this week is "preparation." Consider sharpening your skills to make the most of the new opportunity you're about to take on.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) There might still be some loose ends that need tucking up if you hope to get that important relationship repaired. A new spurt of activity starts soon.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's a good idea to keep the positive momentum going by finding and getting rid of anything that could cause you to stumble. Keep the path ahead clear and open.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A period of contemplation is advised before you make your next move. Be sure that where you decide to go is the right place for you. A health matter needs attention.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) That new energy surge that hit you last week continues to send out good vibrations. Try investing a part of it in creating something noteworthy on the job.

BORN THIS WEEK: You like to balance your personal universe, and in doing so, you help bring harmony into the lives of the rest of us.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT

Norfolk Division

Docket No. 91E0061-PP1

To Leo Bongiorno of Quincy in said County, Esther Bongiorno of Quincy in said County, respondents; and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Sharyn A. Tocchio of Weymouth in the County of Norfolk representing that she holds as tenant in common an undivided part or share of certain land lying in Quincy in said County of Norfolk and briefly described as follows: a certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in said Quincy, being the lot marked "B" on a subdivision plan by George D. McKay, dated July 1925, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 1656 at Page 15, and bounded and described as follows: Northerly by South Street, fifty-five and 35/100 (55.35) feet; Easterly by land now or formerly of the City of Quincy, Fifty-six and 91/100 (56.91) feet; Southerly by Scammell Street, Sixty-five and 55/100 (65.55) feet; and Westerly by the Lot marked "A" on said plan, being now or late of Robert H. Windship, et ux, Ninety-four and 37/100 (94.37). Containing 4325 square feet of land.

Property address: 117-119 South Street, Quincy, MA setting forth that she desires that -- all -- of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than two hundred ninety-nine thousand dollars and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided, either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the seventeenth day of October 2001, the return day of this citation.

WITNESS, HON. DAVID H. KOPELMAN, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fourth day of September 2001.

McCauley Warns Of Possible State Aid Decrease

said Mayor James Sheets. McCauley, who said a meeting with Auditor Michael McFarland showed comparable numbers, said that his figures, although estimates, point to a concern that the current economic downturn, only exacerbated by recent terrorist attacks, could result in a drop in revenue for the state and a subsequent decrease in state aid for Quincy.

"The city expects to receive additional revenue but, until such time as we do, until the final numbers are established, we should be cautious," said McCauley, warning against "major" charges, which could include items such as the hiring of additional personnel.

McCauley's memo was sent to fellow councillors along with the agenda for the next City Council Meeting to be held Monday, Oct. 1.

In June, the City Council approved a $193,093,967 budget for Fiscal Year 2002, which began July 1.

Phelan Files Freedom Of Information Request On Quarry Hills

dited every three months.

The mayor added that Quarry Hills Associates, the developer actually building the 27-hole golf course and leasing it from the city for 50 years, will need to borrow between $10 and $20 million to complete the project.

Phelan's Sept. 21 letter of request, addressed to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, requests information on checks and invoices related to the project, monthly statements for the various trust accounts set up for the project, and various payment dates as well as documents relating to the various agreements.

Under state law, the mayor has 10 days to respond to Phelan's FOIA request for documents related to the project.

"It's time for the mayor to clearly explain to Quincy taxpayers exactly who got those millions," Phelan said.

"Did it all go to the developers? Did some of it go to the city? And if not, why not?"

According to McFarland, who as auditor handles the accounts for the project, the city has received $92.9 million so far in "tipping fees" by the Massachusetts Highway Department, which pays the city to dump "Big Dig" fill into abandoned quarries owned by the city.

Roughly $68 million, McFarland said, was paid to McCourt Construction, hired by developer Quarry Hills Associates to haul the fill from the "Big Dig" to the fill site. Approximately $18 million went to Quarry Hills Associates for the construction of the 27-hole golf course and $2 million has been set aside for the eventual construction of the clubhouse.

There are also additional monies, McFarland said, for testing, oversight, legal, and accounting matters.

Originally, McFarland said, the city had agreed to take eight million tons of fill from the highway department but that original figure quickly climbed to 12 million tons, 90 percent of which is already on-site.

McFarland emphasized that all monies had been properly accounted for per the conditions of the various agreements and echoed the mayor's comment that the project is audited every three months by a private firm hired by the city.

The Quarry Hills Golf Course Project seeks to fill and cap three former solid-waste landfills in West Quincy and Milton and transform them into a 27-hole public golf course which will also contain soccer and baseball fields.

Quarry Hills Associates has signed a 50-year lease on the property, after which it reverts back to city control.

After Hot Words:

Council Votes Funding For 6 New Police

By CRAIG SALTERS

By an eight to one margin, city councillors Monday night approved $188,442 for six additional patrolmen for the Quincy Police Department.

The six recruits, along with two recruits whose positions had been previously funded, were sworn in as members of the Quincy Police Department early Tuesday so that five of the recruits could attend police academy training in Weymouth, which began Monday.

An earlier swearing-in ceremony scheduled for Sept. 28, of which councillors were unaware, had to be cancelled when the appropriation was referred to the Finance Committee at the council's Sept. 24 meeting.

The new hires will bring the city's total number of patrolmen to 167, equal to manpower levels for the previous two fiscal cycles, said Acting Chief William Falco at Monday night's meeting.

Despite the lopsided vote, debate prior to approval was contentious as councillors sparred over a number of issues, including Finance Chairman Frank McCauley's contention that the positions should have been funded in the current budget and that expiring Civil Service lists were behind the hirings.

"This is a classic example of how not to go about hiring officers for the Quincy Police Department," said McCauley, who allowed the matter to be brought out of the Fi

Harold Questions QHS Quincy Ave. Land Purchase

A resolve authored by Council President Paul Harold seeking additional information on the city's purchase of land off Quincy Ave. for the proposed new Quincy High School was referred Monday night to the Oversight Committee.

The questions of the resolve will be addressed at a Nov. 13 meeting of the Oversight Committee, which had already scheduled the meeting to deal with two previous council resolves on the controversial issue.

Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton serves as chairman of the Oversight Committee.

Specifically, the resolve asks questions concerning the purchase price of the land in terms of its previously assessed value, whether a two-thirds vote by the City Council is required before the city can buy land, and whether cities or towns are required to issue a Request for Proposals (RFP) before they can purchase land.

Developer D.J. MacKinnon purchased 21 acres of the land off Quincy Ave., part of which had been a former Bethlehem Steel dumpsite, for $1 million in December of 1997 and then sold almost 15 acres of the same property to the city in 1998 for $3.5 million.

While some councillors question the process involved in the land purchase, city officials, including Mayor James Sheets and DPW Commissioner David Colton, point to added value given the property by MacKinnon, who owned adjoining parcels; a city appraisal of the land several thousand dollars more than the city's purchase price; and recent bids for the property which also exceeded the city's purchase price.

Originally purchased as the site of the new Quincy High School, the site was scrapped due to public controversy over whether or not the site, which was laced with asbestos and other toxins, could be safely remediated.

There is roughly a one to two week period between the submission of birds and the reporting of test results.

On Sept. 27, the state informed the city's Health Department that no additional birds from Quincy will undergo testing since the number of birds tested positive to-date has clearly established the presence

10th Crow Here Tests Positive For West Nile Virus

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has contacted the Quincy Health Department to report that five additional crows submitted to their laboratory have tested positive for the West Nile Virus, bringing the total number of positive birds found in Quincy to ten.

Two of the birds were submitted to the laboratory on Sept. 18 and Sept. 19, and were located near 57 Edinboro Rd. and 412 Quarry St.

Another bird was submitted to the laboratory Sept. 20 and was located near 46 Bromfield St.

A fourth bird was submitted Sept. 21 and was located near 945 Quincy Shore Drive.

The most recent bird was submitted Sept. 25 and was located near 54 Haviland St.

Garage Permit At Mellen Bray Becomes Issue

Some residents of the Mellen Bray Condominiums on Weston Ave. in Wollaston say they are upset that a building permit to construct a $1.5 million resident parking garage has not been issued and accuse the city of stalling tactics.

These residents also claim that the city has added "insult to injury" by ticketing their cars parked illegally after the city closed their existing parking garage in the spring for safety reasons.

However, in a letter dated Sept. 27 and sent to all residents of the 144-unit complex, Inspectional Services Director Walter White said that the permit application was simply not complete and called any charges of delay on the part of the city "unfounded."

White's letter states that the permit application was made Sept. 6 and was "95 percent complete" and that engineers for the project were notified of the need for the additional information.

On Sept. 17, White said he received word from the condominium's board of trustees that Copley Management, the company in charge of managing the units, was blaming White's office for delay on the permit.

"I responded in writing with the above information and advised that the permit issuance was imminent, we were just waiting for some additional information from the engineers," reads the Sept. 27 letter. "As soon as we get that information from the engineers, we can issue the permit ... we cannot, under the Massachusetts State Building Code, issue the permit until the application is complete. We are not delaying this project."

Addressing the ticketing of cars, White's letter states that the city "would not ticket the cars with yellow parking stickers" which were issued to Mellen Bray tenants for use during the reconstruction period.

But Mellen Bray tenants, who agreed to pay $11,000 per unit for the demolition and construction project, say they are frustrated by the current situation.

"We just want a place to park," said one resident.

Triangle Service Now Trig's Automotive

A landmark in West Quincy called Triangle Service on 15 Centre St., owned for many years by the Gaudiano family, has been sold to James Triglia and will now be known as Trig's Automotive.

It was also known as the Triangle Filling Station.

Atty. Dennis Harrington, representing the Triglias told the board that the station will still be selling gasoline and repairing vehicles.

He told the board that the Triglias also own Johnson Motor Parks on School St. He said they plan to upgrade the gas station cosmetically, not structurally.

There is also a four family house in a lot next to the gas station which they also purchased which Triglia said would be renovated.

Chairman Joseph Shea commended the Gaudiano family for their many years in business and recalled Mike Gaudiano, who passed away recently and the station a "staple in West Quincy". He called the sale a "good transfer, good for the neighborhood." He said both families the Triglias and Gaudianos have been West Quincy residents for generations.

A Walk-In For School Incumbents

Quincy's three school committee incumbents may be making a little political history in this year's city election.

BRAGG

McFARLAND

Jo-Ann Bragg, Ron Mariano and Michael McFarland have no opposition and unless an 11th hour write-in or sticker candidate shows up, they are guaranteed another term.

This may be a "first" for three school committee incumbents running for re-election at the same time.

"It hasn't happened to my knowledge in at least 40 years," says Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley who also doubles as the city's political historian.

He says it may have happened in Quincy's earlier days as a city and is going to take a look out of curiosity.

Bragg, who is the current school committee vice chairman, is seeking her third term; Mariano his fourth and McFarland his second.

Some observers were surprised that the three got what is called a "free ride" to re-election.

Nothing against the three.

They thought that especially this year there would be more candidates after the site for a new Quincy High School became such a hot issue.

A controversy that started with original plans to build the new school on a toxic waste dump on Quincy Ave., plans which got shot down.

And now the chosen site on Coddington St. near the present high school is opposed by some as a wetlands issue.

Because of the strong feelings about where the new high school should be built and other issues such as MCAS, a pretty large field of candidates for school committee was expected by some political observers.

But it never materialized.

It looked like it might for awhile with at least three potential candidates taking out nomination papers and one of them actually filing and then withdrawing.

There had been some speculation that Mariano might not run for re-election this year which ignited "open seat" interest.

But near deadline time for taking out and filing papers word got around that Mariano was definitely going to seek re-election and the would-be candidates scattered.

But with or without an open seat, observers thought there would be a school committee race. Not a walk-in.

TERRY ASHER, wife of WJDA owner Jay Asher, has had difficulty getting over the tragedy of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center.

Terry, a flight attendant for American Airlines, missed being on ill-fated Flight 11 by one day. She actually had asked to be on that flight Sept. 11 but her schedule was changed to the next day.

But she's not dwelling on how she narrowly missed being on that flight. She is grieving for her 11 friends who were on it: the pilot, first officer and nine flight attendants.

Flight 11 crashing into the World Trade Center resulted in some anxious moments for Jay.

He was in Dublin at the time where the news of the attacks was flashed. When Flight 11 was announced as one of the planes, Jay assured himself that Terry was safe because she wasn't scheduled to fly until the day after.

"But then," he recalls, "I started to worry if she could have been re-scheduled for that flight."

He didn't stop worrying until Terry called him to report that she was all right.

She felt lucky, but was sad and still is saddened by the loss of her 11 close friends. But she is now back flying.

Jay, by the way, couldn't get back home until Sunday, Sept. 16 -- five days later -- when Logan Airport was re-opened.

KEVIN COUGHLIN hopes it's a good omen.

His son, Matthew, a sixth grade student at Atlantic Middle School, spent the summer knocking on doors and campaigning with his father who is running for the Ward 3 city council seat Pat McDermott is leaving.

Matthew must have picked up a few campaign tips.

Returning to school, he campaigned for and was elected Student Council representative from Division 3 of the sixth grade.

"I can only hope to have such success in Ward 3," says Proud Pop.

FRANK McCAULEY has long had the reputation for being tight with a buck -- during his four terms as mayor and now as a city councillor.

But you can't say that about his blood. He's pretty generous with that. Recently donated another pint of blood at the Red Cross bloodmobile at Quincy Point Congregational Church. It was his 117th pint since he began donating just after the Blizzard of '78 in February of that year.

Now let's see, if my arithmetic is correct that's something like 14 and a half gallons of blood he has donated in that time.

But he still keeps a sharp eye on city spending as chairman of the council's Finance Committee.

Fall Harvest At Farmers' Market

Quincy Farmers' Market, which operates Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the John Hancock municipal parking lot, Revere Rd., offers vegetables, organic vegetables and garlic, flowers and ornamentals, such as Indian corn, gourds and pumpkins.

Also, the University of Massachusetts Extension nutrition educators will be on hand this Friday to stir fry vegetables from the market's array of fresh produce.

After an erratic spring and summer, the weather has been superb, said Glenn Stillman of Stillman Farm and Greenhouses of Lunenburg.

"We are now growing more varieties of squash, including delicata, turban, butternut, acorn, golden acorn and buttercup. In addition, we are now starting to harvest our second crop of cousa squash, a new variety of summer squash, as well as sweet corn," Stillman said.

Quincy Farmers' Market also features pumpkins for fall and Halloween decorations and for carving out jack-o-lanterns.

Residents who have received farmers' market coupons from the Quincy Council on Aging are reminded that coupons can be redeemed now through Oct. 26.

For a listing of other local farmers' markets, call toll-free 1-877-MASSGROWN (1-877-627-7476).

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 postcard view of Quincy City Hall at the corner of Hancock Street and what used to be Depot Avenue. Solomon Willard was the architect and construction superintendent of the building. He designed it to look like the old Merchants Exchange building on State Street in Boston. A different contractor supplied the Quincy granite for each side of the building. It cost just over $19,000 to build and Willard was paid only $280. The building on the far right was the Hancock House, which was surrounded by small convenience shops. The trolley on Depot Avenue went around the Hancock House to the depot and came back onto Hancock St. via Saville Street. Just above the trolley is the roof of the depot. The large building with the J.A. Keating sign was across the tracks on Irving Place; it was also known as the Coliseum as it was used for boxing and wrestling matches.

Fight Back America, With Energy Independence

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Across America we grieve, we lament the brutal slaughter of 5,000 innocent people. And we look in horror at that hauntingly empty space in that most familiar skyline that now casts its empty shadow into 5,000 empty chairs in kitchens and living rooms across our planet.

Mothers, children, fathers, brothers, sisters and friends, violently burned and crushed by the evil fiends who offer no solutions, no love—only hate and destruction. An almost invisible enemy whose evil we smell and see, but who, in true cowardly fashion, hides well. And whose evil shadow will now shade their own brethren and loved ones who will become collateral innocent victims of the hellfire of revenge.

Alas America, fight back, fight back, fight back. And when the enemy retreats, do not waste too much energy in the chase, for this is the enemy's strategy of protracted warfare. Instead, cut their supplies and protract unto them. Fortify, then ambush the enemy when he creeps back into sight from the hidden booby-trapped crevasses where these serpents hide in their own squalor.

And as for the Americans not on the front line, your job is also to fight. Not with guns but with hard work and strong spirit to free our great country from the economic overlord of the petroleum-based economy. Energy efficiency and alternate energies are our best weapons of all. And unlike the bullets and bombs that will mostly hit nothing but rocks and dirt, each foray, each step toward energy saving, will be a direct hit on an enemy suckled to the nipple of the petroleum monster.

Turn down the heat. Turn off the AC. Our weapons will be photovoltaic roof tiles, R-19 insulation, glass facing south, trapping and redistributing heat, D.C. battery storage charged by wind and exercise bikes and treadmills, ethanol from our under-used and underpaid farmers fertilized with our excess sewage waste, recycling, and, yes, even safe underground government-run nuclear energy with safe and centralized storage for the spent fuel.

Just think of how the implementation of all these clean and sustainable energy tactics would stimulate our economy. Jobs for carpenters, technicians, engineers and more would plow huge amounts of money back into our economy instead of undemocratic Arab oil kingdoms and tyrannies.

Every gallon of gas saved from biking, busing or carpooling to work is a dollar taken from Arabia and put into America. But most of all, the United States will be beginning to break its most dangerous dependence on a crucial strategic resource that we do not control.

Love Vs. Barbarism

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Barbarism did not begin on Tuesday, Sept. 11, in New York and Washington.

It began when the world began.

It began when only two brothers lived on Earth, when one brother, out of jealousy, killed his other brother.

And, so barbarism flourished ever since.

Many years later, a Jewish carpenter, Jesus of Nazareth, gave a radical method how to eradicate radical barbarism: "Love your enemies!" Instead of accepting his advice, his enemies used barbarism against him, and he was crucified.

If the Muslim terrorists, who accept Jesus as a prophet, accepted his advice, the tragedy on Sept. 11 would have been avoided.

Not long ago, during the '60s, the American hippies, who opposed the Vietnam War, sang a song, "Have you ever tried love?"

President George W. Bush, during his Presidential campaign, proclaimed to the world that Jesus Christ is his guide in life. It seems to be obvious that at this critical moment in the world history, when all life on Earth is in danger to go out, that the advice of Jesus of Nazareth seems to be the only method for mankind to survive.

If mankind were to accept Christ's method, all wars, all bombings, all embargoes and all sanctions would cease immediately.

Quincy's Yesterdays Ramps At Quincy-Braintree Line Reviewed

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, Braintree Selectman Paul Young and representatives of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce reviewed state DPW plans for ramps at the proposed Braintree MBTA station.

Oct. 4 - 10
1965
36 Years Ago

While the initial plans were favored by Quincy because of the relocation of Centre St. and better access to Independence Ave., Young questioned the added traffic on Capen's Bridge.

Both Della Chiesa and Young, however, agreed that the full cost of the ramps should be paid for by the MBTA because the new station created the need for the new interchange.

TWO NEW ROADS PLANNED FOR NO. QUINCY

The City Council approved $7,500 for an engineering study of two new roads in North Quincy that it must would open up areas for new development.

The first would connect the end of Newport Avenue from West Squantum St. with Hancock Street and Quincy Street Boulevard.

The second would provide truck access to the former Squantum Naval Air Station, connecting the air station to the intersection of Hancock St. near the Neponset Bridge. Z. Cranston Smith, the city's representative on the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, said these proposed roads would have to be coordinated with a planned new bridge by the MDC and the extension of the Red Line by the MBTA.

BRONZE STAR AWARDED TO MONTILLO

By order of President Lyndon Johnson, a Bronze Star was posthumously presented to the family of Sgt. George Montillio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Montillio of William St.

The award was presented by Congressman James Burke in ceremonies at the home of Sgt. Montillio's brother, Ernest Montillio of Monroe Rd.

The citation read in part, "for exemplary conduct in ground combat against armed enemy while assigned to the 50th Parachute Regiment, on or about June 15, 1944 in the European Theater." Sgt. Montillio died in a hospital April 17, 1945 of wounds suffered while fighting in Germany.

QUINCY-ISMS

Secretary of State Kevin White certified the city's population at 87,158. . . Tickets for Mayor Della Chiesa's testimonial scheduled for the Surf Ballroom in Hull were limited to 1,100. On the ticket committee were Edward Lewis, the mayor's executive secretary and Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Building and Construction Trades Council. . . The Jewish War Veterans honored outgoing commander Benjamin Rudner and David Lubarsky with the "Mr. X" award.

4th Quincy ArtsFest Draws Record 8,000-Plus

The recent fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest drew its largest crowd of more than 8,000 people in Merrymount Park.

The event featured a Juried Art show, a Juried Photography show, live entertainment, children's activities, art demonstrations, a food court, and other activities.

The ArtsFest was sponsored by the Quincy Art Association, the City of Quincy Park and Recreation Departments, and the Best Western-Adams Inn.

"I want to thank all those wonderful people who visited Quincy ArtsFest this year," said Tom Koch, executive director of the Park Department. "I think that people needed a positive activity to pull them away from the tragic images on television and we were glad to provide an event where the whole family could spend quality time together."

More than 450 works of art and photography were displayed, the most in Quincy ArtsFest history. The winner for "Best In Show" in the Juried Art Show was Donna Basile from Pembroke for "Rock-a-Bye-Baby." The "Best In Show" award in the Juried Photography show went to Stephen Adams from Hull for "Perfect Storm."

Recreation Director Barry Welch said: "This year was unequivocally the best show in Quincy ArtsFest's history. I would like to thank Mayor Jim Sheets, the City Council, Best-Western-Adams Inn, and Boston Financial Data Services for their assistance in helping us achieve a reputation as one of the best events on the South Shore."

"Our success is also a result of the great efforts of the volunteers from the Quincy Art Association and the countless hours they give toward making this show a success."

BETHANY CONCANNON, an 11-year old from Quincy Point, and twins Jonathan and Joseph King, eight-year olds from North Quincy, decorate pottery at the fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest.

Christmas Festival Committee Planning Special Holiday Events

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will hold the first of a series of meetings today (Thursday) to plan special events for the coming holiday season.

Meetings will be held at the Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, opposite Adams Field, at 7 p.m.

Subsequent meetings will be held Oct. 11, Oct. 25, Nov. 1, Nov. 8 and Nov. 15.

Events planned include a poster contest in Quincy public and private school primary grades, band and float activities, costume characters, turning on holiday season lights and decorations, Santa's arrival by parachute, Nativity pageant and the grand climax, the 49th annual Christmas parade Sunday, Nov. 25.

Festival committee members are: General Chairman George White, vice chair Michael McFarland, Kathy Lynch, Joseph Pearson Jr., Brian Carter, Don McCarthy, Paul Kennedy, Fran Flynn, Ted DeCristofaro, David Murphy, Jack Nigro, Peggy Nigro, Bernie Reisberg, John Noonan, Kevin Cook, Tony Siciliano, James Boddie, Rita Kelliher, Bette Campbell, Sean Keanneally, Robert Noble, Gloria Noble, Andrea White and Joe Pearson Sr.

This year's winning parade theme in the Quincy-South Shore area contest is "Christmas in our Hometown," submitted by Steve Maccini of Braintree. He and his family will ride in the parade as invited guests.

DECORATING COOKIES is the task at hand for Adams Shore's Stefan McCarthy, age 10, and Jake McCarthy, age 4, at the fourth annual Quincy ArtsFest.

'It's A Little Sad'

Quincy Catholic Club Disbanding After 93 Years

After 93 years of service, the Quincy Catholic Club has decided to disband.

The organization will make its decision official at a luncheon at the Quincy Neighborhood Club Tuesday, Oct. 16 immediately following an 11 a.m. Mass at St. John's Church.

The luncheon will feature a brief presentation of the history of the club by Norma Gacicia, who will show slides of past events. All past members are welcome at the luncheon and reservations can be made by calling (781) 741-5443 or (617) 773-2470.

"It's a little sad," conceded member Jean Donnelly, who said changes in society and lifestyles have slowly but surely diminished interest in the club, a group which saw its heyday in the 1950's and 1960's.

But Donnelly also pointed to the proud history of the club --whose fundraisers in the past included dances, fashion shows, cake sales, and other activities -- and said the Oct. 16 Mass and luncheon will be "an opportunity to remember all of the wonderful friendships and events enjoyed over the years" and reminisce with old friends, some of whom have been members of the club for 40 or 50 years.

Founded in 1908 "to render aid to the worthy poor," the Quincy Catholic Club saw more and more of its original mission taken over by federal programs, so it revised its mission in 1960 to providing scholarships to high school and college students. Since that time, the club has averaged five or six scholarship presentations annually.

The club itself has not met for some time and currently has no president. Attempts to revive interest in the club have been unsuccessful, Donnelly said.

Past presidents of the Quincy Catholic Club in order of service are: Miss Mary Gavin, Mrs. Daniel Deasy, Miss Mary Lyons, Mrs. William Reardon, Miss Gertrude Carroll, Miss Mary Mischler, Mrs. Robert Foy, Mrs. Timothy Carey, Mrs. Thomas Fallon, Mrs. John Quinn, Mrs. Ambrose Gorman, Mrs. Harold LaCroix.

Mrs. Adolph Concheri, Mrs. Charles deVarennes, Mrs. Charles Brooks, Mrs. Daniel Shea, Mrs. Richard Fetting, Mrs. Charles Reardon, Miss Anna O'Brien, Miss Phyllis Ross, Miss Virginia Ross, Mrs. Erik Lindewall, Mrs. William Boethel, Mrs. Jack Buonopane, Mrs. Claire Hanratty, Miss Helen O'Rourke, Miss Claire O'Rourke, Miss Carol Morris, Mrs. Mary Dilworth, and Miss Jean Hall.

O'Brien Towers Celebrates 30th Anniversary

THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY of the Clement A. O'Brien Towers, an eight-story, 275-unit senior citizens facility on Bicknell Street, Germantown, built in 1971, was recently celebrated at a dinner in the renovated community room. Among those attending were, from the left, artist Steven MacDonald, who painted a mural of the USS Quincy (CA 71) in background; Sandra Ames, president of the Tenants Association that put on the dinner; Mayor James Sheets, Edna Hatfield, 95, one of four original residents still living at O'Brien Towers; Jack Mather, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley.

A CHECK FOR $1,000 is presented by Mayor James Sheets to Tenants Association President Sandra Ames (left) and resident Susan Kelly, $500 of which will go to finance bus trips for O'Brien Towers residents and $500 for various crafts.

RESIDENTS ENJOYING THE festivities were, from the left, Patricia Shields, Mary Begley, Gretchen Grant, Mary White, Edna Nye and Helen LeBlanc.

OTHER RESIDENTS ATTENDING the 30th anniversary dinner included, from the left, Margaret Vurpillatte, Clara King, Hilda Griffin, Dorothy Barrett, Rosemary Wright and Lotta Rickert.

THIS MURAL OF the USS Quincy (CA 71) was painted by Quincy artist Steven MacDonald, a handsome reminder of the fighting ships built at the Fore River Shipyard before and during World War II. MacDonald has also painted murals of the USS Salem and the USS Lexington which hang in other QHA facilities.

JOHN DANSEREAU, vice president of the Tenants Association, and Ruth Nelson, a 20-year resident, helped celebrate the anniversary.

ROBERT FLEMING, property manager of the Quincy Housing Authority; Sandra Ames, president of the Tenants Association and Jack Mather, QHA executive director, in front of USS Quincy (CA 71) mural.

THE RENOVATED COMMUNITY room at the Clement A. O'Brien Towers was the site of a recent dinner celebrating the 30th anniversary of the senior citizens' residential complex.

GOLD CARD MEMBER: Mayor James Sheets (right) recently received a Gold Card Honorary Membership from the Laborers' International Union of North America, the first mayor to receive such an honor, at the union's annual outing in Hopkinton. Congratulating the mayor on the honor are, from left, General Secretary-Treasurer Armond Sabitoni and Thomas Chirillo, business manager of the Laborers' International Union of North America, AFL-CIO.

Mayor Receives Honorary Membership In Laborers' Union

The Laborers' International Union of North America recently presented Mayor James Sheets with a Gold Card Honorary Membership.

Thomas Chirillo, business manager of The Laborers' International Union of North America, AFL-CIO, said that Sheets was the first mayor to be given a Gold Card Honorary Membership, an honor usually reserved for senators and congressmen.

The award was presented at the recent annual Outing of the Laborers' International Union of North America at their training center in Hopkinton. The union's General Secretary-Treasurer Armond Sabitoni and General President Terrence O'Sullivan made the presentation before 1,000 of their members.

The presentation recognized Sheets' blue-collar background and his roots in the coal mining communities of Pennsylvania. It also noted the mayor's "outstanding record of service to the community" and "valued support for the goals and the purposes of the Laborers' International Union of North America."

"The mayor has never lost his love, understanding, and concern for the working man," said Chirillo.

Sheets said he was "deeply honored" to be given the tribute and that his father, who was a coal miner and member of the United Mineworkers of America for 50 years, would be extremely proud of him.

How did Mayor Sheets turn trash...

...into treasure...

It takes experience and foresight to know a great opportunity when it comes along, and to negotiate a great deal for Quincy.

Take the Quarry Hills Golf Course. While some say Quincy "never saw a penny" and "will receive peanuts," Mayor Sheets turned a dump into a beautiful recreation complex that will cost us nothing and will generate a half-million dollars or more every year.

The Quarry Hills project will include:

- Up to 4 soccer and 4 baseball fields
- Public parks and open space
- A nature trail and skating rink.

- Over $5 million in road and highway construction

All at no cost to the taxpayer — even maintenance will cost us nothing.

What's more, 10% of the gross revenue of the golf course is paid to the City. Millions of dollars — far more what real estate taxes alone would have brought — for the people of Quincy.

Trash into treasure. That's the difference experience makes. Quincy is a great City. Thanks to Mayor Sheets, it just keeps getting better.

Colonial Fair Sunday At Adams' Birthplaces

The National Park Service, Adams National Historical Park invites the public to a traditional Colonial Fair Sunday, from noon to 4 p.m.

The event, featuring the sites, sounds and tastes of the 18th century, will be held at the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces, 133-141 Franklin St., South Quincy. The program is free.

Abigail Adams, will welcome guests to her home and invite them to make their mark with quill pen and parchment paper. Visitors can practice military maneuvers with the captain of the local Patriot militia, engage in a skirmish with "Redcoats", and be "paid" in 18th century currency for their service. Participants can enter a drawing to win a silhouette portrait cut by artist Courtney Skinner.

Artisan Julia Smith will demonstrate Delft pottery painting. Meet Elisha Skinner, an 18th century doctor portrayed by Edwin Page, who will pay a house call on the Adamses, Douglas Neumann, will be on hand portraying a soldier in the Continental Army with a remarkable collection of 18th Century military artifacts. Henry Cook will show fashions that sparked a revolution and demonstrate the skill and artistry of an 18th century tailor.

Members of the South Shore Spinners Guild will be on hand to demonstrate the art of spinning and

Circus Night Benefit For Sharon Swatek Fund

Circus Night, a magic variety show to benefit the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund, will be held Saturday, Oct. 13, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Professional clowns from the South Shore Joys Alley 159-A, a local chapter of Clowns of America, international and local magicians, will be featured in the one-hour variety show.

Admission is $5 per person with a $20 limit per family.

Sharon, 42, who grew up in Quincy Point and now lives in Wauwatosa, Wisc., near Milwaukee, was in-fectured with a strep invasive bacteria last February that led to the amputation of both arms and legs in order to save her life.

Sharon is married to Lon Swatek, a Wauwatosa firefighter, and mother of two children, Kelly, 7, and Al, 9.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Rosalie (Kyler) Paolucci of Summer Street, Quincy Point, and the late Albert Paolucci, a Quincy firefighter who died during the Blizzard of '78, his death believed to be related to shoveling snow during the storm.

Sharon is a member of the Quincy High School

Class of 1976 and a graduate of Johnson & Wales College.

Her hospital and medical costs will far exceed her health insurance limits.

Tickets for the variety show are available at the T-Shirt Master, Washington Street, Quincy Point, or by calling 617-773-6979 or 781-344-7894.

'I Was Privileged To Support Them' Salvation Army Officer Returns From NYC Praising Rescue Workers

By CRAIG SALTERS

Asked to describe his recent experiences assisting relief efforts at the "ground zero" disaster site which once was New York's World Trade Center, the Salvation Army's Major Douglas Jones returns again and again to the rescue workers.

"I was privileged to support them," Jones said of the firefighters, police officers, EMT's, and other volunteers he witnessed during the week he spent manning the midnight to 8 a.m. shift at the Salvation Army aid station roughly 100 yards from the site of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. "If there's another (Salvation Army) team, I'll go."

Technically, Jones -- who commands the Quincy Temple Corps along with his wife, Major Linda Jones -- was one of 20 Salvation Army officers from Massachusetts who went to New York City to serve as spiritual counselors to both the victims of the tragedy and the rescue workers at the site.

But the sheer magnitude of the disaster, Jones said, meant that support came in all shapes and sizes, be it physical, emotional, or spiritual.

Sometimes the support was as simple as providing candy to rescue workers in need of quick energy as they dug through the wreckage in search of survivors, or serving sandwiches from the Salvation Army's 30-foot van/mobile kitchen, or providing cots to rescue workers in need of a short rest.

Most of the firefighters, Jones recalled, had to be persuaded to take a break even to eat a sandwich, so convinced were they that survivors were in the wreckage.

"They were trying to rescue their fallen brothers," said Jones simply.

Other times support came in the form of being part of "the total silence" as, at the discovery of each fallen colleague, police and firefighters would immediately line the streets for the departing ambulance, forming a makeshift honor guard.

And sometimes support was even less tangible, such as when Salvation Army volunteers served as grief counselors for Catholic priests who had performed last rites on row after row of newfound bodies, or when volunteers came upon a confused gentleman still searching for his wife, who had been lost in the blast on Sept. 11, her birthday.

"There's no words for situations like that," Jones said, "but we can cry with them."

Despite the suffering, Jones called the experience "rewarding" and said the greatest reward came when rescue workers, stopping for a hot meal or a change of socks, would tell Jones and other volunteers, "We're glad you're here."

Major Jones reminded Quincy residents that donations to the Salvation Army's relief efforts can be addressed to the Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., Quincy 02169 with checks earmarked "New York Disaster," adding that 100 percent of the funds would go to relief efforts.

At present, due to the overwhelming generosity of Americans, the Salvation Army has literally run out of space for item donations and requests organizations and groups not to begin new

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

BUILDING BRIDGES

When one or more teeth are lost, the remaining teeth can shift out of their normal positions. Teeth adjacent to the space, or from the opposite jaw, will often tilt or drift. This shifting and drifting will lead to changes in the bite, which may put stress on the jaws, muscles, and teeth. In the end, the tooth loss can adversely affect the ability to chew comfortably, and appearance may also be affected. Thus, a bridge may be recommended when tooth loss occurs. It consists of a replace tooth or teeth attached to crowns on each side. The bridge is cemented to the teeth adjacent to the space, thereby effectively replacing the missing tooth and preventing any shifting.

All 32 of your teeth work together to help you chew, speak, sing, and smile. If you've recently lost one or more teeth, you're probably especially aware of the importance to your appearance and dental health. Always feel free to discuss your dental concerns with us. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we practice gentle dentistry. You can trust the health of your teeth to our extensive training and experience. Our concern is your comfort and confidence -- our goal is to help you preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com

P.S. Even though replacement teeth are man-made, they still must be maintained in the manner (conscious brushing and flossing) that the remaining natural teeth are.

Campaign Rally For Keenan To Be Held Oct. 11

A campaign rally for John Keenan, candidate for city councillor-at-large, will be held Thursday, Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks Hall, 254 Quarry St.

Tickets are $20 per person or $30 per couple and can be purchased by calling 617-786-9406. They will also be available at the door. Families with children are

In Washington When Pentagon Hit Comer Says Sept. 11 'A Day Of Insanity'

If Dec. 7, 1941 is remembered by all Americans as "a day of infamy," then Quincy's John "Jake" Comer thinks Sept. 11, 2001 will be remembered as "a day of insanity."

"The children today should save the newspapers because this attack will be remembered in the same way as Pearl Harbor," said Comer, who recalled his own memory of the attack on Pearl Harbor as a nine-year old boy selling special editions of The Boston Record on Dorchester's Blue Hill Avenue, passersby paying a dollar for the 10 cent paper and not waiting for change.

Half a century later, Comer, who was in Washington D.C. during the hijacked jetliner attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, said today's feelings of shock, loss, anger, sadness, and national unity are much the same as the emotions following Pearl Harbor.

"They brought this country to its knees," said Comer, who decried the "cold-blooded" months of planning before the Sept. 11 attacks. "We're at war. We really are."

As a past national commander of the American Legion, Comer was in the Rayburn Building of the nation's capital Sept. 11 to hear current American Legion Commander Ric Santos address the Veterans' Affairs Committee of Congress. Comer attended the event with Past National Vice Commander John Mulkern of West Roxbury, Past State Commander John P. Swift, age 96, and Past State Commander Paul Morin, superintendent of the Holyoke Soldiers Home.

Comer had watched the attacks upon New York's World Trade Center on television in Congressman

Barney Frank's office 20 minutes prior to the Legion hearings. "They were extremely quiet," Comer said of Frank and his staff. "Everyone was in a state of shock."

20 minutes later, as hearings got underway, a friend whispered into Comer's ear news of the attack on the Pentagon. Buildings were cleared and officers filled the streets, directing people away from federal buildings. Comer said there was no panic although there was slight confusion when a car bomb exploded in front of the state department.

Comer walked the 10 minutes back to his hotel, phoned his family, and came back to Boston the following day by train. But the memories of that tragic day -- which include well armed soldiers sitting atop the roof of the United States Supreme Court -- will be with him for a lifetime.

"I'm very proud of how people are coming together," said Comer, who said he was touched at the sight of Congressional leaders, Republican and Democrat, conservative and liberal, singing "God Bless America" recently.

Comer also said now was the time to act. "We let them off too easy before," said Comer, referring to the original World Trade Center bombing in 1993, the bombings of American embassies in Africa, and the recent attack on the USS Cole. "This man (suspected mastermind Osama Bin Laden) should not be allowed to breathe."

Over $40,000 Raised At WaterWorks Benefit For NYC Fire, Police

Eat Well's Raise The Flag benefit held recently at WaterWorks at Marina Bay raised over $40,000 to support the New York City fire and police departments and the American Red Cross.

Several bands including Scratch My Back, Dick and Jane, and Central Basement, donated their talents on stage. New England Patriots, Lawyer Milloy, Willie McGinest and Richard Seymour signed autographs and played billiards with the youngsters.

Sgt. Dan Clarke, Massachusetts state troopers, sang the "Star Spangled Banner" and other patriots hymns. Channel 7's Sara Edwards, Randy Greenstein from KISS 108 and Greg Daniels from MIX 98.5 participated. The Quincy Fire and Police Departments helped to collect the donations.

Dick Shea On Long Road To Recovery After Fall

Benefit Social Oct. 19 For Youth Soccer Coach

The Friends of Dick Shea Committee will hold a benefit social to aid in the recovery of Shea, who was left paralyzed with a spinal cord injury in a fall at his home in April.

The benefit will be held Friday, Oct. 19, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., and will feature raffles, a silent auction, a D.J. and food and drink.

Tickets at $25 apiece can be purchased by contacting Riche Meade at 617-773-5329, or Mike Stone at 617-773-8464 or Malcolm MacNeil at 617-471-5317.

Donations may be sent to The Friends of Dick Shea Committee, Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach St., Wollaston 02170.

Shea has been active as a volunteer with Quincy Youth Soccer for more than 10 years, serving on the Board of Directors and as vice president and travel registrar.

He organized and ran the annual end-of-season family picnic and the "Friendship Tournament" and cookout with visiting youth team from Germany and several South Shore towns.

In addition, he helped clean up and line fields for weekend games, provided assistance to the North Quincy High School Soccer Program and coached even after his own children left to program.

"Dick has spent countless hours making the Quincy Youth Soccer League a fun experience for the entire community," said Malcolm MacNeil, president of the QYSL Board of Directors.

"Being a man of strong will, determination and just plain stubbornness, Dick is diligently working toward his long road to recovery and deserves our assistance and support."

Shea, who for many years has suffered from a degenerative arthritic condition, fell down a flight of stairs at his home and suffered the spinal cord injury that left him partially paralyzed.

He returned home from the hospital and care facility in August, faced with a long, arduous and expensive road to recovery, Nurses and physical and occupational therapists visit him daily.

Health care professionals who have seen him say his progress has been remarkable and he has demonstrated a positive and optimistic to his family and friends.

All funds raised at the social Oct. 19 will be placed in trust to help defray the costs of wheelchairs, a hospital bed and other medical supplies and equipment as well as future medical care.

QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER President and CEO Christine Schuster (left) met recently with Massachusetts Secretary for Finance and Administration Stephen P. Crosby to discuss QMC's successful financial turnaround and the ways in which the community benefits from QMC's clinical affiliation with Boston Medical Center. Mayor James Sheets, members of the Quincy legislative delegation, leaders from Boston Medical Center, including Vice President for Network Development Paul Drew and senior leadership from Quincy Medical Center also were in attendance.

WQ First Grader Raises Over $500 To Aid NYC

By CRAIG SALTERS

It took six-year old Nicholas McGaughey of West Quincy some time to process -- on his own terms -- what happened Sept. 11 at the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York City.

But, like most Americans, the first grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School knew immediately what to do about it: absolutely anything he could.

"At first he wanted to donate all of his clothes and all of his toys to New York City," said mother Donna McGaughey, a department accounts manager at the State Street Complex in North Quincy. "When I explained to him that he couldn't do that, he asked me, 'Well, then, what can we do?'"

What Nicholas, on his own, finally decided to do was drape flags on the sides of his red wagon and walk door to door through the neighborhood of Cliff, Kimball, and White Sts in West Quincy. His wagon held plastic jugs decorated with hearts and stars and reading "Please help New York ... thank you, Nicholas."

NICHOLAS MCGAUGHEY, a six-year old first grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School, raised $504 to aid relief efforts in New York City by requesting donations from his West Quincy neighbors.

McGaughey's colleagues at State Street kicked off the fundraising efforts by raising $150 in an impromptu office collection. In addition, Nicholas' fundraising jugs were placed at Abdon Auto Repair on Beale St. courtesy of a helpful uncle and at Craig's Cafe in Quincy Center thanks to a helpful aunt.

All told, Nicholas raised $504 to aid relief efforts in New York City.

"It was really wonderful. The people were just so nice to him," said McGaughey, a resident of Kimball St. with husband Paul and their children Nicholas and his four-year old sister Kayla.

McGaughey, who said the entire neighborhood turned out in support, said one memory she'll always have of her son's efforts was when Nicholas, who was also handing out "The Nation's Prayer" which had been found on the Internet, spoke with a woman whose own son, a member of the military reserves, was being called to active duty.

"It really hit home," she said.

Like many parents, McGaughey, who was on vacation the day of Sept. 11, tried to shield her son from the horrors of the day's events. She thought she had done so but, later that week, Nicholas asked her not to go back to work because she worked in "a bank" in buildings which, to a six-year old, were skyscrapers.

"How do you explain what happened to a six-year old boy?" asked McGaughey, who handled the situation by answering the "thousands" of questions Nicholas had until he understood the situation as best he could.

It was then, McGaughey said, that her son decided to raise funds for, in his own words, "the mommies and daddies who were hurt in New York."

"For him to think of this on his own and give up his play time is pretty decent of a little boy," said McGaughey. "But he's a good-hearted boy and he makes me very proud."

McDermott Endorses Coughlin For Ward 3 Council Seat

Councillor Patrick McDermott announced Tuesday he is endorsing Kevin Coughlin as his successor to the Ward 3 city council seat.

McDermott said he met with Coughlin and his supporters over the weekend and told them: "One candidate has consistently demonstrated a pattern of commitment and resolve on behalf of the residents of this community. That candidate is Kevin Coughlin."

McDermott cited Coughlin's accomplishments on neighborhood issues during his two terms as association president. He noted Coughlin's "close involvement with the Montclair and Wollaston schools, the Family Commission and his professional ability as a probation officer". He said this makes Coughlin a well rounded candidate.

He also praised Coughlin "for his commitment to small and family businesses throughout the district."

McDermott said he endorses Coughlin "enthusiastically and without hesitation or reservation."

McDermott said he decided not to seek re-election for a fourth term because of his added responsibilities as chief of staff at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, and a new law practice.

McDermott acknowledged there has been speculation he will run for the Norfolk County Registrar of Probate.

McDermott, former Ward 5 Councillor Larry Chretien, and former candidates David McGillicuddy and John Cain will co-host a fund-raiser for Coughlin Thursday, Oct. 11 7 to 9 p.m. at the Presidents Golf Course clubhouse.

There is no admission charge for the concert but donations are sought.

Neighborhood Housing Services Helps Homeowners Delead

Ben and Justine Sampson never thought they would ever be able to say, "This is our house." With help from Neighborhood Housing Services, a local non-profit agency located in Quincy, their dream became a reality.

After attending a first time homebuyer workshop offered by the non-profit they learned that down payment assistance money was available to them. The Sampsons had little money of their own to put towards the purchase. However, because of the program the new prospective homeowners were granted $10,000 toward their new home.

The Sampsons are once again knocking on the door of Neighborhood Housing Services. The home, which they purchased, was built in 1952, and was full of lead paint. Lead paint was used in many homes prior to 1978, it was considered to be the finest paint available at the time. However, over the years studies have shown lead paint poses a health threat to young children.

As the paint ages it begins to break down, peel, and chip. The paint chips have a sweet mint taste that children like. Once in the blood stream, lead paint can cause learning difficulties and mental retardation. Most families are unaware of the problem until a child is given a physical by their pediatrician. In many cases it is too late and the child is already lead poisoned. Toddlers sometime chew on windowsills and can swallow the sweet tasting particles. Without knowing, children can also ingest lead dust from their fingers and toys.

Ben and Justine will be eligible to receive up to $20,000 from The Mass Housing Agency in the form of a 0% deferred loan to delead their home. If you are a homeowner and suspect you have lead paint, Neighborhood Housing Services may be able to help you.

For Quincy and Weymouth residents only, an additional program is available through HUD similar to the Mass Housing program. For this program the HUD lower income guidelines do apply. While 50% of the funds received from this program are considered a grant, the remaining 50% is given in the form of a deferred loan.

In order to qualify for these programs there are income guidelines and there must be a child under the age of six residing in a single family home. There are no age restrictions for a multi-family home.

If you would like further information on how you can make your property lead free call Janice Tucker @ 617-770-2227 Extension 22 for more information.

Oct. 20, 27 In Collaboration With The Bank Of Canton

First Time Homebuyer's Workshop At Crane Library

Neighborhood Housing Services, an approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will hold an accredited and MHFA certified First Time Homebuyer's Workshop in collaboration with The Bank of Canton on Saturday, Oct. 20 and Oct. 27.

The workshop will be held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive homebuying certificate which is required by most lenders to qualify for the many different mortgage options such as the Mass Housing Finance Agency, Soft Second Programs, down payment and closing costs grants and other special first time homebuyer financing options.

Neighborhood Housing Services is non-profit organization dedicated to assisting first-time buyers through the homebuying process. The staff at NHS is unique in their approach to obtaining down payment and closing costs assistance as well as rehab grants for their clients, which are available throughout the entire South Shore area.

Workshop participants can learn how they can buy a home with little or no money down.

Agenda is comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on the many changing aspects of homebuying, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

A $10 refundable registration fee is required.

Contact Debbie Ederly (617) 770-2227 ext. 31 for more information and to register for this workshop.

KeySpan Offers New Residential Weatherization Rebate Program

KeySpan Energy Delivery New England's Massachusetts residential heating customers with older homes now have the opportunity to make their homes more energy efficient, and receive a rebate for up to $750 per year.

The new program is open to those with homes built prior to Jan. 1, 1995 and is intended to bring those homes up to present standards. KeySpan customers who qualify for fuel assistance will be referred to the KeySpan Low Income Weatherization Program.

Effective Oct. 1, residential heating customers may contact KeySpan (1-800-292-2032) to inquire about the program and to receive a list of pre-qualified contractors who are approved by KeySpan to do work in its customer's homes.

The rebate will cover 20 percent of the cost of the work, up to a maximum of $750. Weatherization measures installed must be completed by an approved contractor to qualify for the rebate under this program.

Qualifying measures are as follows:

- Attic Insulation
- Wall Insulation
- Basement/Crawl Space Insulation
- Rim Joist Insulation
- Heating System Duct Insulation
- Attic Ventilation (in conjunction with attic insulation only)
- Ductwork Leakage Testing and sealing
- Air Infiltration Testing and sealing

Mullaney Helps Kick Off Beechwood Knoll Fundraiser

During a recent Open House at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School Jim Mullaney, candidate for the Ward 5 Council Seat, and his wife Carolyn met with Carol Ketner, treasurer of the Beechwood Knoll PTO and chairwoman of the PTO's Fall Festival Fundraiser, in anticipation of the Oct. 13 event.

Speaking on behalf of the PTO, Ketner expressed gratitude for the Mullaney's participation in the fundraiser, including the family's donation of a new boy's bicycle and a limited edition collector's series "American Girl" doll to the event.

The Mullaney's were on hand for the Open House because their children attend the school.

The Fall Festival Fundraiser, which will be held Oct. 13 at the school, will enable the PTO to supplement school supplies and extracurricular activities throughout the school year.

Those interested in helping to support the Fall Festival Fundraiser should contact Ketner at (617) 479-8006.

The Mullaney campaign will hold a campaign rally tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Tirrell Room of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry St. Suggested donation is $15 per person and $25 per couple. Tickets will be available at the door.

Raymondi Asks Basketball Court Be Named For Paul Fitzpatrick

The City Council Monday night unanimously passed a resolve asking the Park and Recreation Board to dedicate the basketball court at the William Flynn Playground in memory of Paul G. Fitzpatrick of Dysart St., a lifelong resident of Quincy who died Sept. 27.

The resolve, authored by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, acknowledges that the Park and Recreation Board "has a policy in place for such dedications" but requests that the honor be given Fitzpatrick for his contributions to the community and the fact that "the basketball court at the corner of Elm St. and South St. was the 'home away from home' for 'Fitzy' in his youth."

A 1966 graduate of Quincy High School, Fitzpatrick is a member of the Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame. After earning his degree from Boston State College, Fitzpatrick became a teacher and coach for the Quincy Public Schools and for Blue Hills Regional High School in Canton.

He also served as athletic director at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and was the head coach of the Boston State College men's basketball team.

Council President Paul Harold called the dedication request "a very thoughtful and appropriate memorial."

Fall Festival Oct. 20 At Merrymount School

ELECT JOE FINN QUINCY CITY COUNCIL AT-LARGE

Paid and authorized by the Committee to Elect Joe Finn

Liang Would Ban Contributions From Developers To Councillors

Jimmy Liang, candidate for city councillor-at-large says if he is elected he would propose a resolution banning political contributions from developers, their attorneys and agents to city councillors.

"Our neighborhoods are too important to be affected by this obvious conflict," Liang said. "City councillors are often called about to review and approve special permit applications under planned unit development zoning. Real estate developers simply shouldn't be allowed to contribute to the political campaigns of councillors who make decisions worth millions of dollars to the developers."

"Instead," Liang added, "Councillors ought to be focused on the needs of the City of Quincy and its neighbors."

Although Liang said he believes that no current council members are influenced by these contributions, he said "the potential for conflicts exists and needs to be eliminated."

A review of campaign finance reports reveal that over $6,000 has been donated to city councillor-at-large candidates this year by developers or their agents.

"This raises questions in many peoples' minds as to the legitimacy of the permit process and whether neighborhood issues get a fair shake," he said.

"It is clear that neighborhoods have legitimate concerns over traffic, flooding, population density and environmental damage that can result from development."

"Economic development accomplished in a reasonable manner provides many benefits such as tax revenue to pay for needed services."

"I am not opposed to rational economic development, as our city needs to grow and prosper, but we need to make sure that our neighborhoods don't get left behind in a wake of traffic, drainage and environmental problems."

Liang conceded that state law governs campaign finance and that his resolution may not be legally binding, but, he concluded, "we need to try."

D'Amico Endorsed By Quincy Firefighters Assn.

Michael D'Amico has been endorsed by the Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 for reelection as Ward 4 city councillor.

Association President William Arienti said D'Amico is "dedicated to the safety of the citizens of Quincy and has taken an active role in the protection and well being of Quincy firefighters."

Arienti cited D'Amico's continual efforts to return Ladder 3 to the South and West Quincy area and his work involving the Enhanced 911 system.

Arienti said D'Amico's efforts have assured residents of South and West Quincy of "protection from fire as well as a rapid response of emergency medical services from the Quincy Fire Department."

Arienti said the department is looking forward to the installation of computers on fire apparatus and gave sole credit to D'Amico's efforts for that.

D'Amico pledged to continue "to be a forceful voice working on behalf of every firefighter in Quincy."

Council Votes Funding For 6 New Police After Hot Words

nance Committee but was the sole vote against the appropriation. "A (Civil Service) list was expiring and they did it under pressure."

McCauley added that he was not debating the merits of the actual hirings but the method in which it was done and the need for fiscal restraint in the face of possible reductions in state aid.

"It's my contention that he (the mayor) wasn't going to fund these positions," said McCauley, "but when a list is about to expire, everyone looks for someone to get them on board."

Reached for comment Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets said that he had received no lobbying concerning the list.

"That's pure assumption on the part of Frank McCauley because he has never bothered to call me," Sheets said.

The six new officers, the mayor explained, were not included in the Fiscal Year 2002 budget because Police Chief Thomas Frane, after suffering a heart attack, went on medical leave during the budget process and debates as to Frane's proper substitute left matters in a state of flux.

Expecting Frane back within months, Sheets postponed the decision but later discussed the hirings with Acting Chief Falco and decided that the hirings were necessary to maintain staffing for Community Policing.

Additional funding became necessary, Sheets said, upon the expiration this year of a three-year federal program which paid the lion's share of salaries for additional police officers.

In voting for the appropriation, councillors cited the need for public safety and an unwillingness to jeopardize the Community Policing Program, which Acting Chief William Falco testified would be a possibility if manpower levels were not maintained.

Falco made note of the expected retirement of four officers this year, a number of officers with injury or long-term illness, and 15 officers in the military reserves, five of whom have already been activated in the wake of the Sept. 11 attacks.

Councillors such as Timothy Cahill and Joseph Newton also pointed out the increased importance of public safety as the nation attempts to cope with the new war on terrorism.

Although he voted for the funding and said he would have done so last week, Council President Paul Harold expressed outrage that he and other councillors had been kept in the dark by the mayor's office that the recruits had already been chosen.

"In a face to face discussion I asked 'Have these people been hired?' and the answer was no," Harold told Auditor Michael McFarland, referring to a Sept. 19 meeting to plan the council's agenda.

Harold called the secrecy a "disservice" because it jeopardized the futures of the recruits who had given notice to previous employers but whose positions had not yet been funded.

The $188,442 appropriation will pay for the six new officers from Oct. 1 until the end of the fiscal year.

of the West Nile Virus within the city's bird population.

However, dead birds should continue to be reported to the Quincy Health Department at (617) 376-1285.

Focus will now be geared to exclusive testing of the mosquito population.

To date, no mosquitoes have tested positive for the virus in Quincy and the numbers of mosquitoes are decreasing due to the colder weather.

Norfolk County Mosquito Control will continue to monitor its gravid trap in the city. Aerosol fogging for nuisance control has ended, again due to the cold weather experienced during the early morning hours. However, larval control measures continue to be applied by Norfolk County Mosquito Control in the salt marsh areas of the city.

The city's Department of Public Works continues to assess catch basins located near locations where birds have tested positive to determine if further larvacide treatments are warranted. Although the state is reporting that 75 to 100 percent of the birds now being tested are positive for the virus, an outbreak among humans in Massachusetts is deemed highly unlikely. This is due in large part to the time of year and cooler weather.

However, residents are still urged to take necessary personal precautions, which include: avoiding outdoor activities at dusk or dawn, wearing long-sleeved shirts and long pants, using mosquito repellent that contains DEET (not recommended for infants), and fixing holes in screens.

tomers have brought their own liquor at various restaurants.

Shea said the policy will now be written on the bottom of each common victualer license issued.

Det. Lt. Robert Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent, said he would begin checking all restaurants to make sure the policy is followed.

Parts of the policy are as follows:

- Licensee is not permitted to allow, and shall not allow, patrons or other persons to bring alcoholic beverages on the licensed premises for their own consumption.

- Licensees are not permitted to keep alcoholic beverages on the premises except for a reasonable small quantity that is used in the preparation of certain specialty cooked foods.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

- Granted a common victualer license to Michelle Cai, doing business as Wah Cheung Hing, for premises listed at 406 Hancock St. (it was formerly Neighborhood Pharmacy). The store will sell Chinese products pre-packaged tea, noodles, crackers cigarettes and sell lottery tickets, coffee and tea.

- Granted a common victualer license to Juan Tabares, doing business as Super Chef for premises listed at 195 Newport Ave., pending the repairing of a rear guard and hand rail.

'Mrs. John Hancock' Program Sunday At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

A special program, "Mrs. John Hancock In Your Neighborhood," will be presented Sunday at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Hancock Street and Butler Road.

Belinda West will portray Dorothy Quincy, the woman who captured the heart of Quincy-born John Hancock, patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence, in three performances at 1, 2 and 3 p.m.

Those attending will hear Dorothy's views on the unpleasantness with England, her eyewitness account of Paul Revere's arrival in Lexington and the first hours of the Revolutionary War.

Conducted tours of the colonial homestead will be available. The program is open to the public and free.

Tours will be scheduled from the National Park Service Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St., from 1 to 4 p.m. The last tour leaves the visitor center at 3 p.m.

Trolley transportation will be provided and the tour will include a ride through historic Quincy.

The home will close for the season following the program and tours Sunday.

The National Park Service (NPS), Adams National Historical Park, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Metropolitan District Commission and the National Society of Colonial Dames entered into a Memorandum of Understanding, working in partnership to keep the house open until Sunday.

The home, owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, is administered by the MDC. Congressman William Delahunt, Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Paul Harold have been working with members of the Colonial Dames and the state to successfully acquire a grant to provide interpretive tours of the home and promote public access.

The home had been closed for two seasons due to staffing and funding constraints. Throughout this time the MDC and Colonial Dames worked with the NPS pursuing a partnership opportunity to open the home to the public. They were pleased to announce in August that the grant applied for was received and as a result the home has been open in partnership with the NPS from Aug. 18 through Oct. 7.

MATT RAMPONI (44) takes off for a 20-yard run, one of the few highlights in Quincy's 32-0 loss at Catholic Memorial last Saturday afternoon.

Presidents Look To Regroup Vs. Hanson

Bow To Catholic Memorial, 32-0

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School football team never showed up to its game Saturday afternoon against Catholic Memorial.

Somewhere in its travels from Quincy to West Roxbury, the Presidents deboarded their bus. Maybe they decided to catch a matinee at the Braintree General Cinema.

OK, the Presidents were physically in West Roxbury Saturday playing a football game, but according to head coach Bob Noble and the score, they didn't show up. They lost, 32-0.

"There's not a lot to say," Noble said. "I'm a firm believer that if you don't have anything nice to say, don't say anything at all. We just didn't come to play."

This is a game Quincy (1-2) will likely just try to forget, as it will look to get back on track tomorrow (Friday) at 7 against Whitman-Hanson (2-0) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy will need to find

Lynda Wilson On R. Williams Cross-Country

Sophomore Lynda Wilson of Quincy finished fourth in 20:54 to help the Roger Williams University women's cross country team capture first-place honors at the recent Pop Crowell Invitation at Gordon College.

Also, Wilson and her teammates recently participated in the Run4Kids Charity Event in Cambridge, which benefits the Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Boston, Cambridge School Volunteers, Cambridge City Youth Programs and the MIT Community Service Fund.

its defense from the first two games (6 points per game) and its offense from the season opener (28 points) if it has any shot of silencing the Panthers. Whitman-Hanson, which finished 9-1 last year, are off to another strong start, powered by senior quarterback Tom Pimental and senior tailback Ryan Griffith.

"It's going to be a lot different this Friday night, that I know," Noble said. Catholic Memorial (3-0) scored a touchdown in the first and second quarters. DeWayne Smith ran one in from 6 yards out and L.V. Whitworth reeled off a 28-yard run for a 12-0 lead at the half.

"It was all downhill from there," Noble said.

Indeed, the Knights proceeded to score three touchdowns in the third quarter to run away with an easy win. Jessie Loubier has a 21-yard TD run, Whitworth rumbled 61 yards into the end zone and CM returned an interception 7 yards for the final score. Michael Imhoff kicked the last two extra points.

"There is nothing positive from this," Noble said. "You name it, we didn't do it. We were beat in every phase of the game. The score was truly indicative of the game."

CHECKING YOUR BATTERY

New testing technology makes it possible to give the best estimate yet of a battery's remaining life expectancy. What makes this possible is the conductance battery tester, which measures the battery's conductance, the amount of electrical flow, as well as the performance of the alternator and starter. Thus, it is possible to measure the condition of the battery, alternator, and starter so that it can be determined whether it is necessary to repair or replace any of these components. To perform the test, electrical flow is measured to determine if the battery is operating properly. The tester sends an electronic signal through the battery, and then receives the returning signal to determine the battery's capability to perform.

Cold weather is not that far away. Make sure your car and its battery is in the best condition. Our ASE Certified team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO has earned a wonderful reputation from our many satisfied customers . . . your friends and relatives. We are your local full service auto repair shop and take pride in our workmanship and the service we offer. Stop in and visit us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

SPORTS

Granite Face Middleboro In Playoff Opener Sunday

After two weeks off, the unbeaten Quincy Granite return to action Sunday night to begin their second half of the season — the Eastern Football League playoffs.

The Granite will face the Middleboro Cobras beginning at 7:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. In the first game earlier this season, the Granite scored a 14-7 win over the Cobras at Battis Field, avenging a loss in the first round of the playoffs last season.

Quincy, which finished 9-0 during the regular season, has the home-field advantage throughout the postseason.

The Granite last played Sept. 15, a 21-13 win over the Springfield Blitzin'

Bears. Since then, they've had a bye at the end of the regular season and another bye this past weekend while the wild card games took place.

In the wild card games, Rhode Island defeated Randolph, 12-7, and Middleboro blanked Charlestown, 12-0.

In other second-round games this weekend, Rhode Island travels to Springfield and Clinton hosts Western Mass Machine, both on Saturday. On Sunday, the Marlboro Shamrocks entertain the Mass Havoc.

The semifinals will be held Oct. 13-14 and the championship game will be held the following weekend.

Tickets cost $7 for adults and $5 for seniors and students. Children under 10 are admitted free.

Kara McSweeney Assists In Roger Williams Soccer Win

Senior co-captain Kara McSweeney of Quincy tallied an assist in the Roger Williams University women's soccer team's recent 5-0 win over Regis College.

Running Red Raiders Roll Over Falmouth, 26-14

North At Barnstable Friday Night

By CHRIS POISSON

North Quincy head coach Tony Green said he was concerned last Friday night as his football team went up against Falmouth's under-rated defense.

"Falmouth is a tough team," he said. "They only allowed 14 points against Durfee. Durfee went to the Super Bowl last year. So I was really concerned about their defense."

Well, any worries he had before the game dissolved quicker than the Red Sox' playoff hopes this season, as the Red Raiders scored on their first three possessions en route to an encouraging and convincing 26-14 victory at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With its second straight win, North Quincy (2-1 overall, 1-1 OCL) doubled last year's win total, and another win tomorrow (Friday) night at Barnstable (1-3) will match its total from the previous two seasons combined.

"I feel so good for the seniors," Green said. "The seniors have gone all this time without wins. And it's only two wins, but they're all excited and feel good about it."

"The support staff here is incredible," he added. "Ken McPhee, director of security, was here. The athletic director, the principal and one of the assistant principals were here. The support is just fantastic."

As is North Quincy's running game, which mustered a whopping 371 yards and four touchdowns on 42 attempts.

Senior quad-captain Pat Bregoli paved the way, gaining a 170 yards on 13 carries, including a 71-yard TD sprint. And this outing was fresh off his 118-yard, two-touchdown performance against Randolph the week before.

But it was not just Bregoli's one-man show. North Quincy has Four Horsemen in the backfield, with the likes of senior Chris Dolbeare (10 carries, 81 yards, two TDs), junior Ryan Farnham (11 carries, 77 yards) and junior James Coughlin (6 carries, 29 yards).

And lest not forget senior quarterback Dennis Thomson, who gained more yards on the ground (44 yards, TD) than in the air (3 for 3, 20 yards).

"Apparently, they were concerned about our inside game, so we just went outside," Green said. "You have Bregoli, Farnham, Coughlin and Dolbeare. And our offensive line is good. They're getting better every day."

North Quincy scored on the game's opening possession. On the fifth play of the drive, Dolbeare, running behind a wedge block, appeared to be stuffed for a short gain, but erupted out of a pile in volcano-like action and raced 44 yards into the end zone for a 6-0 lead. Thomson couldn't cash in on a two-point rush.

"We call it the wedge, the wedge block," Green said. "It's a throw back. Nobody wedges anymore. It's just muscle on muscle. All the big guys just slamming each other. We've gotten three touchdowns so far this year on the wedge."

Falmouth responded with a score on its first series, marching 54 yards on nine plays, capped by senior Damien Gonsalves's 3-yard TD run with 3:11 left. Senior Joe Bushy's extra point put the Clippers ahead, 7-6.

Not for long, though. Dolbeare finished off North Quincy's own 54-yard drive with his second touchdown, a 4-yard run with 8:42 left in the second. Bregoli rushed for the two-point conversion for a 14-7 lead.

Then, the Red Raiders surprised the Clippers with an onside kick, which they recovered at the Falmouth 45.

On fourth and 2 from the 37, North Quincy tried to get Falmouth to jump offside for a first down. With the play clock winding down, Thomson looked to pick up the first down on a sneak, but instead ended up with a 37-yard touchdown for a 20-7 lead. Apparently, Falmouth thought the play clock expired, but the whistle never blew.

"We were just trying to get the other team to jump offside to pick up a first down," Green said. "[And the referees] didn't blow it dead. They're not supposed to. They're supposed to let us run the play. Thomson stopped for just an instant. He put the defense asleep. It was not a designed play."

Falmouth answered on its next series, only its second possession of the game. Junior quarterback Billy Perry scampered in from 9 yards out and Bushy's extra point made it 20-14. Perry had a brilliant 25-yard run to set up first and goal at the 9.

In the second half,

Falmouth lost Perry on the second play and replaced him with sophomore backup Kelly LaDow. With Perry out, the Clippers no longer had their most reliable offensive threat, the option play.

North Quincy, meanwhile, still had Bregoli. On the first play of the second half, he took a couple of steps toward his right, cut back to his left, and jetted around left end and down the sideline for a 71-yard score and a 26-14 lead with 8:25 left in the third.

With the 12-point advantage, North Quincy milked the clock, chewing off 10:48 during the third and fourth quarters, and stiffened its defense, blanking the Clippers in the second half.

"Ryan Craig is a great defensive coach," Green said. "He came up with an incredible game plan. But then they showed us something that we weren't ready for: their trips with the motion. So we made an adjustment with John Sarianidis, a volunteer on the staff. Together, they made an adjustment and they just shut it down."

Offensive Lines Powers Apaches, 20-6

The North Quincy Apaches improved their record to 2-1 with a 20-6 win over the Houghs Neck Manets Sunday.

Thanks to the superb effort of the offensive line, led by Akil Benjamin, Chris Garvey, Mark Cuginin and John Benoit, backs Zack Really (2 TDs) and Kyle Costa (TD) were able to power the offense.

Mike O'Mahony also played well in his first start at quarterback.

In the second quarter, Really capped a long drive with a 5-yard TD run. Costa added the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

The Manets had several drives in the second and one in the third, but were unable to reach the end zone. Defensively, the Apaches were led defensive ends Garvey and Really, inside linebacker Costa, and outside linebacker Mike Regan, who made several tackles in the backfield.

In the third, Costa raced 55 yards on a draw play to increase the Apaches' lead to 14-0. Late in the fourth, Really galloped 35 yards up the middle for a 20-0 lead.

The Manets returned the ensuing kickoff for a touchdown to account for the final score.

The Apaches face the Panthers Sunday at 2:30 p.m. In the other games, the Manets take on the Storm at 1 p.m. and the Elks meet the Mustangs at 4 p.m.

Recreation Skating Program Starts Oct. 9

The Quincy Recreation Department will hold registration for its fall Instructional Ice Skating Program beginning Tuesday, Oct. 9 at its main office.

The program, which has been conducted at Quincy Youth Arena for over 26 years, is for boys and girls, ages 6-14, and will be held Wednesday afternoons starting Oct. 17.

Instruction will be under the supervision of Anne Eagles, a U.S. Figure Skating Association Professional, and will utilize the basic program of instruction designed by the U.S.F.S.A.

Instruction is from beginners to advance, with two separate classes. Both classes (Class 1 at 3:10 p.m. and Class 2 at 4:05 p.m.) offer the same levels of instruction and are conducted for nine weeks.

Cost is $55, which includes instruction and ice time. Registration will continue at the department's office, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Enrollment is limited and will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Heather Lynch On All-Tourney Volleyball Team

Heather Lynch of North Quincy, a freshman at Suffolk University, was named to the all-tourney team at the recent Johnson & Wales volleyball tournament.

Lynch was one of eight players selected to the eight-team tournament.

"Heather is an all around good volleyball player," said assistant coach Elaine Schwager. "She is talented and does a nice job for the team."

Lynch is majoring in marine biology.

Degan Road Race Raises Record $30,000

1,869 Participants Most In 9-Year History

By CHRIS POISSON

The William F. Degan Memorial Road Race keeps getting bigger and bigger each year.

The ninth annual event recently raised a record-high $30,000 with 1,869 participants, also an all-time high.

"I thought the day was totally awesome," said race director Rick Fitzpatrick. "There seemed to be more people out with their families and children. It was the most people I've seen, either participating or watching."

"I'm a runner myself. I go to a lot of local races. There's nothing like this race."

The event is in honor of Bill Degan, a deputy with the U.S. Federal Marshal Service who was killed in the line of duty while arresting armed felons Randy Weaver and Kevin Harris at Ruby Ridge, Idaho, in 1992.

Including this year's race, approximately $139,000 has been raised. Proceeds from this year's race will benefit local charities and scholarship funds chosen by the race committee.

A donation will be made to the Sharon (Paolucci) Swatek Fund. Swatek, a Quincy native, faces mounting hospital and medical expenses after she had both arms and both legs amputated in order to save her life from a rare and deadly type of Strep A invasive bacteria.

Other donations will be made to Quincy public schools, the DARE program, the Degan Scholarship for Quincy Youth Hockey and the McKeon Boxing Post.

In the 10K race, Jamie Gallagher of Hull was the overall winner, crossing the finish line in 34:00. Julie Christian of Brewster was the top female runner, finishing in 43:12.

In the 5K race, Stephen Putnam of Weymouth finished first overall with a time of 16:33. Quincy's Carolyn Mullaney grabbed the top female spot, finishing in 20:30.

Here are the top three finishers in each age category:

North Girls' Soccer Edge Plymouth South, 2-1

The North Quincy girls' soccer team continues to march towards another state tournament berth after splitting a pair of games last week.

The Red Raiders edged Plymouth South, 2-1, at home last Wednesday before dropping a hard-fought game at Silver Lake, 2-1, last Friday.

North Quincy (6-2-1) traveled to Marshfield, the Division 1 state finalist last year, Tuesday and today (Thursday) it hosts Taunton at 4 p.m. at Teal Field. On Saturday, it battles rival Quincy for the second time this season at 5 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With the score tied at 1-1 in the second half against Plymouth South, junior Lauren Kalil tallied the game-winner, her second of the week, when she took a feed in front from junior Katy Mercurio.

"Kalil has picked up her play this week," said head coach Paul Gregoli. "Not only is she starting to score, but her recovery runs on defense have been excellent. Mercurio's play to Kalil was a thing of beauty. She may have been the only kid on our team who could have made that play."

North Quincy, which only took one point from the Panthers in 2000, came out. It took only 16 seconds to record the first goal, as Kalil beat a defender and served a perfect cross to senior quad-captain Allie Lacey, who blasted the ball into the net from five yards out for the early lead.

North Quincy's midfield of junior Lisa Schifone, junior Erin McFarland, senior Kelly Coleman and Kalil controlled play throughout the half. However, the Panthers evened the score when a 35-yard rocket found the inside of the far post.

Senior quad-captain Lauren Sleeth nearly scored for North Quincy off a scramble seconds before halftime.

Defensively, North Quincy received exceptional play from seniors Kelly Rice (quad-captain) and Caitlyn Herlihy, and juniors Lauren McGee and Jessica Jacques.

In the loss to Silver Lake, North Quincy was snake-bitten, giving up two goals before coming to life.

Kalil continued her red-hot play, knocking in a Herlihy cross with 10 minutes left in the game. Coleman's blast from 18 yards out hit the crossbar, while Lacey's last second shot was just tipped away by the Laker keeper.

North Boys' Cross-Country Tops Quincy For First Win

The North Quincy boys' cross country team recently broke into the win column, while the girls' squad is still searching for its first win of the season.

With the schedule changed due to Quincy moving into the Atlantic Coast League and Marshfield moving into the Old Colony League, the annual cross-town rivalry happened earlier.

The boys took 13 of the top 15 spots en route to a 21-40 win over the Presidents. Quincy's John Ryan won the meet, with Bill Cosgrove finishing sixth. For North, John Fidalgo (second), Steve Price (third), Rob Gardner (fourth), Phil McGillicuddy (fifth), Chris Mercurio (seventh), Mike O'Malley (eighth), Charlie Vidoli (ninth) and Tony Martin (10th) finished in the top 10.

North Quincy traveled to Plymouth South Tuesday and today (Thursday) it takes on Bridgewater-Raynham. It will also compete in the Bay State Invitational Saturday at Franklin Park.

In previous action, the boys placed only two in the top 10 against OCL champ Barnstable, falling 17-46. At Falmouth, the Clippers eked out a 27-30 win. Fidalgo (second), Price (fifth), Gardner (sixth), Mercurio (eighth), Will Gardner (ninth) and McGillicuddy (10th) placed in the top 10.

"Falmouth had two meets under its belts on its home course before our meet, and that was clearly the difference," said head coach Geoff Hennessy.

Hennessy was also quick to point out that of his top six finishers, only Fidalgo had experience at the state level.

As for the girls, the relatively rookie squad lost to Falmouth and Barnstable, the top two teams in the OCL. In the 18-37 loss to the Clippers, North Quincy put Natalie Caron (fifth), Brenna O'Brien (sixth), Lauren Ready (seventh), Beth Goodrich (ninth) and Caitlyn Dow (10th) in the top 10. Rookie Sheila Jafarzedeh placed 11th. In the 17-46 loss to Barnstable, only Caron (fourth) and O'Brien (ninth) cracked the top 10. Sophomore Danielle LaRose has also performed well this season.

The Importance Of Safe Food Preparation

(NAPS) -- From shopping cart to dinner plate, there are a number of easy steps you can take to ensure that food is as safe as it can be.

Separate: Keep raw meat, poultry, fish and vegetables separate. When the store packs your groceries, insist that frozen foods stay together, vegetables go in the same bag, meats with meats, etc. If anything is dripping, have the store put those items in a plastic bag. Juices are a primary carrier of bacteria.

Refrigerate: When you get your groceries home, chill them immediately. Make certain your refrigerator is working properly and is set at the appropriate temperature. To ensure proper temperature, purchase a thermometer for both your refrigerator and your freezer. The air temperature of your refrigerator should be 40 degrees Fahrenheit and the freezer 0 degrees. Anything that might drip should be in a sealed container or a plastic bag and placed at the bottom of the refrigerator so as not to drip on other foods.

Clean: Wash your hands and all of the utensils that you will be used while preparing your food. Clean knives, can openers, cutting boards, plates and platters, etc. It is strongly recommended that you have a separate cutting board for poultry, raw meat, vegetables and fish. Having separate boards will ensure greater safety. If that is not possible, make sure that you wash the board between using it for different products.

Cook: Foods are properly cooked when they are heated for a long enough time at a high enough temperature. Invest in a meat thermometer and an oven thermometer. Use a meat thermometer when cooking, internal temperatures should be at least 145 degrees Fahrenheit for steaks, 160 degrees for hamburger and 180 degrees for poultry. According to a recent study, only two percent of consumers regularly use a food thermometer when cooking ground meat.

Key Indicators Of A Problem, How To Get Help

Sports Gambling: A Serious Problem

Sports gambling is a leading form of gambling in the United States and an especially serious problem for compulsive gamblers. Due in part to more televised sporting events on cable TV and Internet gambling (including day-trading), opportunities to place bets have increased significantly over the past decade.

"In Massachusetts, during peak sports periods like 'March Madness,' the level of gambling activity increases considerably," said Dr. Howard Koh, commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

"So it is particularly critical to tell those people most at-risk of problem gambling that there is support available to them. The Massachusetts Council on Compulsive Gambling's (Council) Helpline, 1-800-GAM-1234, provides specialized assistance, resources and support services information to problem gamblers."

According to the council, 10 key indicators that someone may have a gambling problem include:

- A preoccupation with gambling.
- Spending more time or money than can be afforded.
- Borrowing money to gamble.
- Gambling larger amounts of money overtime.
- Gambling to win back losses.
- Difficulty in sleeping due to gambling.
- Gambling to escape uncomfortable feelings or to cope with another problem.

• Negative effects on family, school, or work due to gambling.

• Feeling sad, angry, anxious or irritable after gambling.

• Repeated attempts to stop or control gambling.

Experts on compulsive gambling behaviors are available to speak to the dangers of sports gambling. They include:

• Dr. Howard K. Koh, MD, MPH, commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. As commissioner and a noted public health specialist, Dr. Koh can speak to how compulsive gambling can affect health and well-being.

• Kathleen M. Scanlan, M.A., executive director of the Massachusetts Council on Compulsive Gambling. As the author of numerous journal articles on recognizing and referring problem gamblers, gambling among adolescents, and awareness of gambling-related problems, Scanlan is an expert on the prevalence of gambling in Massachusetts, as well as available local gambling resources and support services.

Interfaith Service Of Healing, Remembrance Sunday

The South Shore Coalition for the Prevention of Domestic Violence will host its sixth annual Interfaith Service of Remembrance and Healing Sunday, Oct. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

A silent candlelight procession through the streets will commemorate those who have died during the past year. The evening also includes music, dance, inspirational messages and a call-to-action to end violence and abuse.

Resource information and counselors will be available throughout the evening.

Refreshments will follow the service.

Parking and wheelchair access are available at the church. Childcare will be provided.

For more information about the service, call (617) 773-3319.

Anyone who needs help or a referral can call DOVE (617) 471-1234 or 1-888-340-DOVE (3683).

School Work Help At Union Congregational

Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston, hosts a free weekly one-on-one program for students who need help with school work, MCAS/SAT prep, and other educational objectives -- pairing students with volunteer "learning partners" in a supervised group setting.

The program is held Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the church, concurrent with the Quincy school term (excluding school holidays and snowdays).

HEDUP is a volunteer-based Christian outreach organized to serve people of all needs and backgrounds -- regardless of age, ethnicity, economic circumstance, gender or religion.

Students work directly from their own textbooks or make use of supplementary learning materials, including the highly regarded "Math Made Easy" and the "Reading Made Easy" video tape series available to all participants.

Assignments are available on a "first come, first service basis." For more information, contact Paul Linehan at (781) 843-3343.

Prayer Service Oct. 11 At Wollaston Congregational

Parents are invited to enjoy coffee at 9:30 a.m. and attend church at 10 a.m. They are always welcome at Sunday School at any time.

United Methodist

The pastor, Rev. Carol Stine, will have Adult Bible Class at 9 a.m. and Sunday School will meet at 10 a.m. Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Rev. Stine will conduct the worship with Holy Communion at 10 a.m.

Lector will be Dan Bollen and Ang Giger will serve as greeter. Keith Eisenhauer and John O'Connor will be ushers. The church facilities are handicapped accessible and child care is available.

Coffee hour following the service will be hosted by Kelley Cobble, Nancy Valenz and Jeanne O'Connor.

The sixth annual Interfaith Service for Remembrance and Healing for those whose lives were lost to domestic violence (the DOVE program) will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday evening.

Bethany Congregational

Neighbors in Need Sunday will be observed at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center this Sunday beginning at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Gary Smothers will conclude his term as an interim minister at this service.

Holy Communion on this Worldwide Communion Sunday will be served by members of the Diaconate including Herman Mersereau, Mike and Jane Brundige and Charles Bohlen.

Mr. Smothers sermon is entitled "Called and Sent." He will also have a brief message for the children of the Church School before they go to their classes.

Barbara Robertson and Jean Baker will serve as greeters.

Scripture reader will be Darryl Mikami. The Chancel

Choir will sing, accompanied by guest organist, Ellen Fryling.

A Fellowship Hour will be held following the worship service with Jean Ross serving as hostess. Childcare is available for infants and toddlers.

The first Sunday of the month is also observed as Pantry Shift Sunday. All foods and paper goods contributed go to the Interfaith Social Services Food Bank.

The Prayer Group will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. and the Bible Study Group will continue their study of the Book of Acts at 7:30 p.m.

Blood pressure screening will resume next Sunday at 11:15 a.m. during the Fellowship period. This will occur on the first and third Sunday of each month.

Kathy Pavidis Staff Coordinator At The Boston Home

Quincy resident Kathy Pavidis, RN, has joined The Boston Home management team as staff development coordinator.

Located in Dorchester, the home is a long-term care facility for adults with disabilities, primarily multiple sclerosis and related neurological diseases.

Pavidis also serves as an adjunct clinical instructor at Quincy College and as the director of education at Elihu White Rehabilitation Center in Braintree. In addition, she serves at Boston University Medical Center Hospital as a staff nurse and charge nurse; and Northeastern University, graduate assistant.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We like this saying by John Newton, "We can easily manage, if we will only take, each day, the burden appointed for it. But the load will be too heavy for us if we carry yesterday's burden over again today, and then add the burden of the morrow to the weight before we are required to bear it."

Yes, it is important for us to give our full attention to what is at hand today. If not, we may think about the past or the future so much that we fail to draw the most from life today. When we are interested in what is happening now, we are vitally alive in the now.

Let us welcome each day with complete interest. Let us concentrate on the present moment. Let us begin our day by affirming: "I am vitally alive and interested in what is happening now."

"This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it." -- Psalms 118:24

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Cosmic changes create a potential for disruptions in your travel plans. In the meantime, you might want to consider shifting your focus to another area of your life that needs attention.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for beauty-loving Bovines to enjoy something special for the senses. It will restore your spirit and return you to the workaday world ready for the next challenge.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) With your planetary ruler, Mercury, going retrograde, you might want to slow down the pace in pursuing some of your projects. Rushing things could be counterproductive.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Tensions begin to ease in those once-testy relationships. This helps create a more positive aspect all around. Expect to hear news that could lead you to rethink a recent decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The pace of activity that had slowed last week now begins to pick up. This is good news for Leos and Leonas who have career-building plans that need to be put into operation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Venus offers encouragement to romance-seeking Virgos who are ready to get up, get out and meet more people, one of whom could be that long-sought soul mate.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An ongoing problem with a co-worker might need to be sent to arbitration. Get all your facts together so that you have a solid base from which to make your argument.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You are usually decisive about most matters. But you might want to defer your decision-making this week until you get more facts. Someone is holding out on you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) That quiet period is ending, and a new burst of activity creates some problems at the workplace. But things are soon resolved, and everything goes back to normal.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Relationships could be either helpful or hurtful as you pursue your career goals. You might have to make some difficult choices depending on what your priorities are.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might still have some doubts about a career move that could involve a lot of travel. If so, continue to check things out until you feel secure about making a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love rules as Venus continues to exercise her cosmic influence on both single and attached Pisces. New developments might cause you to change your travel plans.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ROBERT NOBLE of Quincy, commander of the Department of Massachusetts American Ex-Prisoners of War, makes remarks at POW-MIA Recognition Day ceremonies held recently in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne. "Many of us were fortunate that our loved ones were returned to us," Noble told the former prisoners of war and their families who came to honor those not as fortunate, including the recent victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Interfaith Vigil Raises $13,000 For NYC Victims

A total of $13,153.50 was raised by the estimated 6,000 residents who attended the recent Interfaith Prayer Gathering at Veterans Memorial Stadium for the victims of the Sept. 11 terrorism attacks against New York City.

The funds, recently tallied by the treasurer's office, have been forwarded to New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani's Office along with a letter from Mayor James Sheets expressing the sympathies of Quincy residents for the losses of the people of New York and surrounding areas.

"The generosity of the average New Yorker to other average New Yorkers stands as a model for all other Americans to emulate," reads a portion of the letter. "The decency, caring, hard work, and courage that New York's men and women have shown to the world during this crisis is to be greatly admired."

The lion's share of the funds -- $12,923.50 -- were donated to The New York Police and Fire Widows and Children's Benefit Fund with other checks made payable to the "New England Unites, Red Cross Disaster Fund" for $230.

POW-MIA Recognition Day Includes Victims Of Sept. 11

Speaking before an audience of men and women no strangers to sacrifice, Quincy's Robert Noble, commander of the Department of Massachusetts American Ex-Prisoners of War, told those gathered for recent POW-MIA Recognition Day ceremonies at the POW-MIA Eternal Flame Memorial in the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne that the time had come for new sacrifices in a war against a new enemy: terrorism.

"Little did we know when we planned this POW-MIA observance months ago that we would be including in our recognition event the missing from an act of war perpetrated on our own soil," Noble told the roughly 50 veterans and their families gathered for the hour-long ceremony.

"As citizens we must know that we have a long road ahead of us to get back to the way of life we have known and cherished."

Noble, a World War II veteran and former prisoner of war in Germany, provided opening and closing remarks and served as master of ceremonies for the observance, which honored the thousands of American servicemen still missing.

The ceremonies included four candles which were lit to symbolize, peace, hope, the POW's and MIA's of all wars, and the victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

Noble called the passengers aboard the hijacked planes "new prisoners of war" and compared the plight of the families and friends of the victims with the experiences of earlier generations who received "missing in action" telegrams and searched for information about their loved ones.

But Noble also spoke of the "new heroes" of the nation, citing the firefighters, police officers, EMT's and other rescue personnel who rushed to help others and "the men and women who, at the sacrifice of their own lives, brought down United Airlines Flight 93 in an empty field in Pennsylvania."

Noble urged the nation to channel its anger into an awakened sense of patriotism and resolve "to defeat these new enemies of our country."

"We and our leaders must learn a lesson from our terrorist enemies and that is to be patient and resolute," Noble said.

THE PRESIDENCY of the United States is on the mind and in the sights of Marshall School third grader Bill Ye, who recently received a letter and photograph from President George W. Bush. Ye caught the political bug as a second grade student of Marshall teacher Phyllis Reynolds while the class was participating in the Kids Voting Curriculum during the 2000 elections.

Bill Ye Has His Own Eye On White House Third Grader Thrilled At Letter, Photo From President

By CRAIG SALTERS

In an election year marked by some of the most heated ward councillor, councillor at-large, and mayoral contests in years, the highest political ambitions in the city are to be found in the third grade classrooms of the Clifford Marshall Elementary School.

Bill Ye, a Marshall third-grader who took an active interest in last year's presidential election while participating in the Kids Voting Curriculum in the second grade classroom of Phyllis Reynolds, has already declared his ambition to someday become president of the United States and, not one to put things off, is already memorizing the oath of office.

His political chances received a boost recently when he received a personal letter and photograph from his hero: President George W. Bush.

"Congressman Todd Platts sent me a copy of your speeches and Ms. Reynold's nice letter about you," reads President Bush's letter, sent to Ye over the

Dear Bill:

Congressman Todd Platts sent me a copy of your speeches and Ms. Reynold's nice letter about you. I was delighted to see a sample of your work and to learn about your love for our country. I appreciate your friendship and support.

Mrs. Bush joins me in sending our warmest wishes to you for a fun-filled and safe summer. God bless you.

Harold Favors Keeping Business At 169%

Classification Tax Vote Seen Dec. 3

Council President Paul Harold says Dec. 3 would be an appropriate target date for a public hearing and possible vote on next year's tax classification percentage for commercial, industrial, and personal property (CIPP).

By anticipating a Dec. 3 public hearing and meeting, Harold said, the council could provide ample time before and after for discussion of a once routine process which became controversial in December of 1999 when councillors, by a 4-3 vote, changed Mayor James Sheets' proposed 169 percent tax classification to 175 percent, the state maximum.

In December of 2000 councillors returned the classification — whereby the proportion of CIPP value is multiplied by a percentage to shift the tax burden from residential to commercial property — to its traditional 169 percent, but the incident angered many in the business community who opposed both the increase and their perceived lack of involvement on the issue.

Speaking at a meeting of the Quincy Business Council, Harold said he still favored the 169 percent classification and expected no controversy on the issue but wanted to ensure the matter was settled before the city prepares and sends out its tax bills at the start of 2002.

If the bills aren't sent out on time, Harold said, the city would face the "very expensive" proposition of borrowing money to cover

Connolly, D'Amico Debate Over -- A Debate

As Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico and challenger Bryan Connolly prepare for a certain debate Wednesday, Oct. 17 hosted by the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, a proposed debate hosted by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce has the two at odds with one another.

In a statement released Monday, Connolly accused D'Amico of backing out of a debate originally proposed by the chamber for Oct. 11 and then rescheduled, at D'Amico's request, for Oct. 22.

"After all Councillor D'Amico's talk about wanting debates, I am extremely disappointed by his decision to avoid this debate once the invitation was extended," said Connolly, who said D'Amico's action contradicts a previous statement that he has never failed to appear before any candidate debate or forum to which he has been invited.

D'Amico responded that his opponent was "jumping the gun" on the issue, explaining further that he thought the night of Oct. 22 to be free only to discover he had law school classes to attend that night.

"I don't see what Bryan Connolly is whining about," said D'Amico, who added that "the door was not closed" to alternative debate nights before the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and that he had suggested the chamber host a "televised city-wide forum as they did two years ago."

D'Amico called any charge of backing out of the debates "ludicrous."

South Quincy Blaze Injures Two Firefighters

A four-alarm fire Friday at 61-63 Verchild St. in South Quincy injured two Quincy firefighters and caused an estimated $250,000 in damages.

Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said that Capt. Bernard McCauley suffered chest pains at the scene and, because of a previous heart condition, was being examined at Boston-area hospitals.

Quincy Firefighter James Wong suffered minor burns while battling the blaze and was treated and released from Quincy Medical Center that day.

The five people inside the three-family building at the time of Friday's fire, which involved assistance from the Braintree and Boston Fire Departments, escaped without injury.

Chief Gorman said the cause of the fire was cigarette ashes and set the damage estimate at $250,000 "for both building and contents."

McCauley Sees: QMC Leadership Off To Good Start

Councillor Francis McCauley says the new administration at Quincy Medical Center "is off to a good start."

McCauley Tuesday expressed "confidence that the new leadership team at the Quincy Medical Center is off to a good start in administering the Quincy Medical Center."

McCauley, chairman of the City Council Finance Committee, noted that QMC on Sept. 330 completed its second year of operations as successor to Quincy Hospital.

He said Christine

Schuster, CEO of Quincy Medical Center, appeared before the Finance Committee in June to give a report on the first year of operations of QMC.

He said Schuster reported there was a substantial reduction in QMC's operating loss in Fiscal 2000 in comparison with Fiscal 1999.

QMC, he also noted, received a 94 per cent score from the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Health Care Organizations. The score, he said, was the highest in the history of the hospital.

McCauley also noted QMC "has added many new clinical services stemming from its affiliation with the Boston Medical Center."

McCauley served as chairman of the Council Hospital Committee in 1998 and 1999 and worked with the city administration and hospital officials to make the change from a city hospital to a non-profit facility.

He was mayor in the 1980s during an extensive renovation and construction programs at the Quincy Hospital. In October, 1989, the new wing at the hospital was named for him.

David McCullough Guest Speaker New John Adams Statue To Be Unveiled At Partnership Dinner Oct. 30

The new statue of John Adams, commissioned by the Quincy Partnership, will be unveiled at its fund-raiser dinner Tuesday, Oct. 30 at the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel in Crown Colony.

Sculptor Lloyd Lillie, who created this statue and the one of Abigail Adams and young John Quincy Adams beside the United First Parish Church, also commissioned by the Quincy Partnership will be on hand for the unveiling.

Pulitzer Prize winner author-historian David McCullough, whose biography of John Adams is on the New York Times best selling list and already in its fourth printing, will be the guest speaker at the dinner. Black tie is optional.

The Oct. 30 date coincides with the 266th anniversary of John Adams birth.

A social hour with McCullough will begin at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Music will be by the White Heat Swing orchestra.

DAVID MCCULLOUGH

Tickets are $150 each. For more information, contact Edward Keohane of Keohane Funeral Home, chairman of the Quincy Partnership at 617-773-3351.

A private civic minded group, the Quincy Partnership, has also placed lighting outside the city's historic sites and erected "Welcome to Quincy" signs at various entrances to the city.

MWRA Preps For Repairs To Water Pipes in West Quincy

The MWRA is taking test borings in West Quincy to assess the condition of existing pipelines in preparation for the Southern Spine Water Distribution Mains Rehabilitation Project.

The work is expected to be completed by Dec. 1 but actual construction work is not scheduled to begin until sometime in 2004.

The areas in Quincy that are being affected include Furnace Brook Parkway, Route 93, Willard Street, Wampatuck Road, Beal Street and cross country in the Blue Hills Reservation.

The test borings are also being taken in Milton at Adams Street and Beale Street, and in Boston at Adams Street and cross country in the Neponset River Reservation.

Until the condition of the 60 to 80-year-old pipes is known, the extent of the construction needed and the impacts on the neighborhoods are not known.

The work is not expected to affect traffic patterns but police details are being provided.

For further information, call Michele Gillen in the MWRA's Public Affairs Department at 617-788-1191.

Annual Percentage Rate (APR) represents the cost of borrowing money. It includes the interest rate and all fees and charges that are part of the loan. The APR is expressed as a percentage. For example, a 6.50% APR means that the cost of borrowing money is 6.50% per year. The APR is not a true cost of borrowing money because it does not take into account the fact that the interest rate may change over time. THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 8, 1904, the first Vanderbilt Cup automobile racing event is held in Hicksville, N.Y. An early example of world-class motor racing in America, the annual event was created to introduce Europe's best automotive drivers and manufacturers to the United States.

• On Oct. 12, 1928, the Graf Zeppelin, the first commercial dirigible to cross the Atlantic, embarks on its maiden voyage. The Zeppelin, named after its inventor, Ferdinand von Zeppelin, made more than 500 trans-Atlantic passenger flights before it was retired in favor of the hydrogen-inflated Hindenburg.

• On Oct. 9, 1940, St. Paul's Cathedral, which has stood in London for more than 300 years, is bombed. A German blitz destroyed the altar and left much of the city in flames, but somehow the bombs missed the great dome, and the cathedral was entrenched as a symbol of British resolve.

• On Oct. 14, 1964, African-American civil-rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his nonviolent resistance to racial prejudice in America. At 35 years of age, the Georgia-born minister is the youngest person ever to receive the award.

• On Oct. 13, 1977, four Palestinians hijack a Lufthansa airliner to Somalia, where they demand the release of 11 imprisoned members of Germany's Baader-Meinhof terrorist group. After the Palestinian terrorists kill the plane's pilot, a German special-forces team storms the aircraft, releasing the captives and killing the hijackers.

• On Oct. 11, 1984, American Kathryn Sullivan begins the first spacewalk by a female astronaut when she exits the space shuttle Challenger.

• On Oct. 10, 1985, Palestinian terrorists surrender in exchange for a pledge of safe passage to the Middle East after they hijacked a Mediterranean cruise ship, the Achille Lauro, off the coast of Egypt. They were later arrested as they boarded an Egyptian jet.

Sept. 11 And Other Dates

How many crisis or other major events happened and stand out in your lifetime?

Following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, seniors active at the Beechwood Community Life Center in Squantum found themselves thinking and discussing other eventful incidents they have seen over the last 60 years.

At least 13 others they felt impacted their lives in one way or another came to mind, according to Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals:

- Fall of France: May 9, 1940.
- Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor: Dec. 7, 1941, that day of infamy.
- President Harry Truman's upset win over Thomas Dewey: Nov. 2, 1948.
- Korean War outbreak: June 7, 1950.
- Cuban missile crisis: Oct. 22, 1962.
- John F. Kennedy assassinated: Nov. 22, 1963.
- Kent State student shootings: May 4, 1970.
- Arab oil embargo: Oct. 18, 1973.
- President Richard Nixon's resignation: Aug. 9, 1974.
- U.S. bombed Libya: April 15, 1986.
- World Trade Center bombing: Feb. 26, 1993.
- Oklahoma City bombing: April 19, 1995.

Those events had an effect on their lives, the seniors felt, some a lot more so than some of the others.

As a qualified member of the Senior Corps, I hope they don't mind if I add a few more to the list:

- President Franklin Roosevelt's death: April 12, 1945.
- Germany surrendered: May 7, 1945.
- First atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, second on Nagasaki, Aug. 6, Aug. 9, 1945.
- Japan agreed to surrendered Aug. 14, 1945 and formally surrendered: Sept. 2, 1945.
- John Glenn became the first American to orbit the earth: Feb. 20, 1962.
- U.S. involved in Vietnam War: Aug. 7, 1964.
- Martin Luther King, Jr. assassinated: April 4, 1968.
- Senator Robert F. Kennedy assassinated: June 5, 1968.
- Astronaut Neil Armstrong first to land on the moon: July 20, 1969.
- Space shuttle Challenger exploded shortly after take-off, killing six astronauts and New Hampshire teacher Christa McAuliffe: Jan. 28, 1986.

Some of those events -- like the attack on Pearl Harbor -- really shook the nation and changed our lives.

The death of Franklin Roosevelt at the height of World War II saddened the country and also had a special impact on those of us in the military.

For many of us, he was the only President we knew growing up.

I remember my ship being in San Diego getting ready to return to the Pacific after undergoing repairs and an officer passing the word that the President was dead.

We were stunned and being young, wondered aloud: "How are we going to win the war now?"

That's how much influence Roosevelt had on us as a world leader.

But we overcame that loss with Harry Truman and went on to win that war. No one, we learned, is really indispensable.

We managed to overcome the attack on Pearl Harbor, Roosevelt's death, the John and Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King assassinations, and all of the other catastrophes in the last 60 years. And the others that happened before.

I guess what I'm trying to say is, to borrow the lyrics from a patriotic song, "We did it before and we will do it again."

We will overcome that new date in infamy -- Sept. 11, 2001.

And whatever comes after.

IF YOU'RE PLANNING to vote in the Nov. 6 city election and aren't registered, time is running out.

Deadline to register is Wednesday, Oct. 17, reminds City Clerk Joseph Shea. The Election Department will be open until 8 p.m. that day to accommodate you.

SHEA

You can also register during regular City Hall hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. between now and Oct. 17.

A FUND-RAISER FOR City Councillor Tim Cahill (tickets $50) will be held Tuesday, Oct. 16 at the Naked Fish restaurant on Adams St.

And Cahill will be able to drive to it in his own car.

You might remember an item here that his 1995 Cherokee Jeep was stolen from in front of his home on Grenwood Rd., the night of the preliminary election, Sept. 11.

Well, he got it back Sunday.

Boston police found it in a "No Parking Zone" on Harrison Ave. and had it towed. They ran the license plate and contacted Quincy police who notified Cahill.

"It's in pretty good shape," Cahill reports. "Some scrapes and scratches. They left the inside a mess and took my brief case. But there was no major damage."

They also removed the two Cahill campaign bumper stickers he had on the car.

"I guess they did that so they wouldn't be so noticeable while they were driving around in it," he says.

"Or maybe," he laughs, "they were just telling me they weren't going to vote for me."

NO, THIS IS NOT Jo-Ann Bragg's Last Hurrah.

BRAGG

She has a fund-raiser set for tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m. at The Adams, 1 Adams St., Quincy Center. (Suggested donation $20).

But the wording on the flier advertising the event has had some observers wondering. It reads: "You are cordially invited to attend the last Re-Election Campaign Fund-Raiser for Jo-Ann M. Bragg, Quincy School Committee."

It's the word "last" that's been picked up on.

Does it mean this is her last campaign for the school committee?

"No," she says. "It means this is the last re-election campaign fund-raiser for this year. It has nothing to do with the future."

So, potential candidates always on the lookout for future open seats to run for shouldn't get excited.

THREE FAMILIAR POLITICAL figures are co-hosting a reception for James Mullaney, candidate for the Ward 5 city council seat.

The trio: Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti, state Rep. Bruce Ayers and Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott.

The reception is set for Thursday, Oct. 18, 6 to 9 p.m. at the X & O Restaurant, Hancock and Maple Sts., Quincy Center. Suggested donation: $50.

MULLANEY

JIMMY LIANG, candidate for city councillor-at-large, has a get-together fund raiser Sunday. And, he didn't have to look far for a location.

It will be held from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Fuji Restaurant he co-owns at 698 Hancock St. Liang says he personally will prepare and serve up Japanese food to go along with the politics. Suggested donation: $25.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1935 POSTCARD is a view of Quincy banker Delcevere King's famous seaside playhouse, Kampkliff. It was located alone on Pasonageset Knoll, know Shore Avenue, in Adams Shore. Built by King in 1920, it was a bachelor's playhouse for the first two years as he invited thousands of guests to "Come play at my house." He hosted his friends, children, hospital groups, and even the whole city was invited when he ran an ad on the front page of The Patriot Ledger for an open house on July 4, 1922. Kampkliff had a Quincy granite seawall, 15 bathhouses along the shore and searchlights for nighttime swimming on an offshore float. It was only a few feet from the common beach at the end of Narragansett and Chickatabot Roads. After he married, King added living quarters and Kampkliff became his family home until his father Theopolis died in 1935. At that time he moved to the old King homestead at 270 Adams Street. He sold Kampkliff in 1938. It has since been replaced with other houses.

Beechwood Knoll Fundraiser Article Inaccurate

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am writing to correct the story of Oct. 4 entitled: Mullaney Helps Kick Off Beechwood Knoll Fundraiser.

In no way did we, the Beechwood Knoll PTO, write or approve the Oct. 4 article. Carol Ketner did thank Jim Mullaney for his donation of a boy's bike and has thanked "ALL" who have so generously donated to the Fall Festival.

The PTO would like to further state that it has never been our practice to support one candidate over another.

The Fall Festival is one of the major fundraisers of our school year and is being held on Saturday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the grounds of the school. It is a great day for students, their families, and the community. Everyone is welcome.

Mental Illness Awareness Week

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The week of Oct. 7-13, 2001 is Mental Illness Awareness Week, a nationwide recognition of the value and accessibility of mental health care.

Mental illness does not discriminate — it can affect persons of any age, race, religion, or income. The good news is that treatment works. In fact, it has helped millions of people with mental illness reclaim full and productive lives.

In recognition of Mental Illness Awareness Week, South Shore Mental Health is urging individuals and families struggling with a mental illness to seek help and support.

South Shore Mental Health provides mental health and substance abuse services throughout Southeastern Massachusetts and the South Shore. If you suspect you or someone you love has a mental illness, call South Shore Mental Health at (617) 847-1950 or visit our website at www.ssmh.org.

God Bless America -- And Human Life

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Irving Berlin would be pleased that his "God Bless America" is being accorded national anthem status. God has blessed and is continuing to bless this country in many ways. But we, as a nation, should cooperate.

Perhaps, in this time of national sorrow, when the loss of human life is being mourned, it would be well to rethink our stance on immunation. Can we continue to allow government sanction of the killing of over 4,000 babies every day in hospitals and clinics of this country?

There are many who support "God Bless America," we should honor and not interfere with His plan of creation.

First Korean War Casualty Returned Home

By PAUL HAROLD

The body of 23-year-old Pfc. Lloyd MacLeod, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair MacLeod of Alton Rd., the first South Shore casualty of the Korean War, was returned to Quincy this week.

MacLeod was a lifelong resident of the city, having graduated from the Adams School, South Junior High School and Quincy High School.

SALTONSTALL ARMISTICE DAY SPEAKER

Mayor Thomas Burgin announced Sen. Leverett Saltonstall would be the Armistice Day speaker when the John Hancock memorial would be dedicated on the grounds of the Adams Academy.

Burgin said Saltonstall was a logical choice because of his national prominence and that he, like Hancock, was governor of the state.

Delcevere King was chairman of the Hancock memorial committee with John Burke co-ordinating the veterans groups.

DEEGAN GAINS FEDERAL OKAY FOR CITY PROJECTS

City Manager William Deegan returned from Washington with approvals in hand from the National Production Authority for the city to continue construction on projects already underway.

Nationwide, many municipal capital projects were neglected during the war resulting in a huge backlog of applications in Washington.

Approved for completion by the city were the addition to the Quincy Trade School, the addition to the Montclair School, the power plant at the hospital and the new elementary schools at Fenno St. and in Germantown.

Independent Film Series Begins Tonight At Church Of Presidents

The United First Parish Church in Quincy Center, will open the third season of its South Shore Independent Film Series tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. with Comedy Short Subjects from the 2001 Woods Hole Film Festival.

Admission is $5 and refreshments will be on sale.

"We have a successful program as attendance has increased a great deal in the first two years," said Ann Yeomans, coordinator of the series. "There have even been two 'SRO' evenings."

"Also, we have some very devoted, regular customers. We are fortunate to be working with David Kleiroll of Local Sightings, Inc., a major figure in Boston's film world."

Added the church's minister, Rev. Sheldon Bennett: "We enjoy the films and welcoming the greater community to our church on a regular basis. The series has added a new dimension to the South Shore's cultural life."

This year, the film series boasts an additional feature: in November and March, the series will serve as a test audience for two unfinished feature length films, critiquing the films before their final cut.

"We are very proud that our participants are considered a knowledgeable group to perform this service," said Yeomans.

The schedule for this year's program is as follows. Comedy Shorts from Woods Hole Film Festival, Oct. 11; This Town (test audience), Nov. 8; Latino Night, Dec. 13; Old and New Shorts to Ring Out 2001 and Ring in 2002, Jan.

10; Procession, a documentary, Feb. 14; Gavin's Way (test audience), March 14; Best of 2002 Underground Film Festival, April 11; To be announced (possibly world or East Coast premiere), May 9.

Series takes place the second Thursday of each month starting at 7 p.m. Admission is $5. United First Parish Church is located at 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Entrance to the series is through the rear side door.

The program is supported in part by a grant from the Quincy Cultural Council, a local agency supported by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency.

For more information, contact Yeomans at (617) 773-5306.

Ballads Of Murder, Betrayal Oct. 16 At Crane Library

Folk duo Aubrey Atwater and Elwood Donnelly will sing traditional ballads of murder and betrayal Tuesday, Oct. 16 at 7:30 p.m. the meeting room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

The program promises to be of interest to adults and young adults not only for the music but for the stories behind the music.

Atwater and Donnelly perform throughout the United States and the British Isles and their six recordings receive international air play. The duo perform annually at the library's summer concert series.

Ballads are ancient stories in the form of song used to convey important events, teach lesson, and to entertain. For people who did not necessarily read or write, these songs were often an important means of relaying and receiving major news of wrongdoing, crime, love, war, celebration, or disaster.

The ballads often tell us that, despite technology, people are still very much the same and have always been drawn to lurid human plots and tragedies.

The focus of the Oct. 16 program will be on ballads of murder. There is a surprising wealth of these songs in traditional American and Celtic folk music, just as the subject is common and popular in modern movies, books, and television shows.

Atwater and Donnelly will sing a variety of songs about murder and betrayal, explaining the origins and information they have found on some of the actual stories, some of which date back many centuries.

'Men Of Harmony' Concert To Benefit Interfaith Social Services

The South Shore Men of Harmony Barbershop Chorus will present a benefit concert Sunday, Oct. 21 beginning at 3 p.m. at the Congregational Church, 1320 Commercial St., East Weymouth, to benefit the programs of Interfaith Social Services (ISS) of Quincy.

The concert, which is all in men's four-part harmony, will include songs from the early 1900's, patriotic songs, and some contemporary numbers.

In addition to the full chorus, the prize-winning quartet, The Yankee Ingenuity, will perform.

Tickets are $10 or $8 for senior citizens and children 12 and under. Tickets can be obtained at the ISS office at 776 Hancock St., (617) 773-6203.

Interfaith Social Services, established in 1947, provides food and clothing for persons in need, a professional counseling service, and specialized programs for persons recovering from mental illness and families living in shelters.

Bill Irvine Wins Bridge Tournament

Bill Irvine of Quincy recently finished first in the Eastern Mass. Bridge Association (EMBA) sectional tournament.

His team won the Open Pair event at the Memorial Sectional held in Watertown.

EMBA will hold its next tournament Oct. 19-21 at the Radisson Inn, Hyannis. Players will compete at all levels from beginner to expert.

For more information about the schedule, contact Margie Sullivan or Judy Fiske at 508-888-2480.

Ilana Saxe Enrolled At Colby College

Ilana & Saxe of Quincy, enrolled at Colby College this fall as a member of the Class of 2005.

A graduate of Quincy High School, she is the daughter of Gershon Saxe and Elizabeth Scanlan.

Before classes began, she and other first-year students were introduced to the academic program and cultural life at Colby through a three-day, on-campus orientation. Prior to that students embarked on four-day Colby Outdoor Orientation Trips (COOTS)

Sheets Commends City-Wide Program 'Project Safe' To Aid Seniors Set For Saturday

Mayor James Sheets recently met with Project SAFE planners and sponsors to commend the "one-of-a-kind" senior service project and to proclaim the entire month of October as "Fire Prevention and Safe Seniors Month."

Nationally, a week (in this case, this week) is identified each year as Fire Prevention Week. However, Mayor Sheets issued the proclamation identifying the entire month as "Fire Prevention and Safe Seniors Month" in the city to recognize the Project SAFE program, which is sponsored by the Beechwood Community Life Center, and to promote the project's Senior Service Day which will take place Saturday.

For the fifth consecutive year, Saturday's Senior Service Day will see teams of Quincy firefighters and service club volunteers fanning into Quincy's neighborhoods and installing smoke detectors, replacing batteries, and talking to seniors about prevention of fires and falls.

"This is a unique program, providing an essential city-wide service for seniors at no cost to seniors or to the city," said Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center. "To date, we have installed more than 3,000 smoke detectors in the homes of Quincy seniors."

The project was launched five years ago by Beechwood, the Quincy Fire Department, the National Fire Prevention Association, and the Quincy Rotary Club.

On Saturday's Senior Service Day, volunteers of Quincy Rotarians assisted by Quincy Lions and Kiwanians will team with Quincy firefighters to reach out to seniors "at-risk" throughout the city. In all, 20 service teams will be checking, installing, and replacing detectors and batteries.

This year, the Quincy Rotary Club's financial support will be matched by Quincy Lions Club and Quincy Kiwanis Club. All three service clubs will provide volunteers Saturday.

Two youth groups will also be trained to assist the firefighters: North Quincy High School's Interact Club and Quincy Emergency Management's CERT volunteer youth group.

"This combined support and volunteer effort of Quincy service clubs is remarkable," said Beals. "This community program has become a model throughout the Commonwealth and beyond."

Sharon Gamache, executive director of the NFPA Center for High-Risk Outreach, lauded the program and said that NFPA now promotes the service concept and model nationally and internationally.

"At-risk" seniors, including those with any mobility or vision limitations, can call Beechwood to request a home visit Saturday by calling (617) 471-5712. Requests can be received through Wednesday.

For more information or to register, call Kathleen Prince, director of Beechwood's Elder Services, at (617) 471-5712.
